STORY OF THE WRECK.

And a Story Fought With Bitterest Memories.

The Awful Grandeur—The Terrible Meaning.

Echoes of a Lost Courage--The Star of a Risking Hope.

A decaying wreck on a wave-washed shore. Ripe-ribbed, sun-bleached, rotting hulk by the beach—a perfect picture of utter uselessness.

Is there not a strange analogy between this desolation and the wreck of your own health, your own hopes, your own life? You are prostrated by physical and nervous weakness, unable to do your work with ease and comfort...

In fact, you are fast becoming a wreck. You will soon become useless—useless to yourself, useless to your family, useless to the world.

Delay has sacrificed more lives than war and famine combined. Thousands languish under nervous and physical diseases that are curable only by Dr. Greene's Nervura.

As on Saturday and Sunday the ship's officers guarded the gangway and swinging ladders very carefully, so that no stranger could get aboard, and there was a very strict order issued not to allow a reporter on board on any account.

The president of the company, Mr. C. A. Grison, said today that after having made a thorough inquiry into the cause of the stranding of the St. Paul, and from what Captain Jamieson had told him, he believed that the captain was not to blame.

As there was no way of getting aboard the steamship the representative of the Associated Press called on Captain Jamieson on the telephone and asked him how the work of unloading and casing the ship was going on.

ST. PAUL STILL CAPTIVE.

The Big American Liner Held on the New Jersey Coast.

THE VESSEL WITHOUT INJURY.

Taking Off the Cargo with Lighters and Carrying It to New York—The Wrecking Company Hopes to Release the Steamer Tomorrow.

LONG BRANCH, Jan. 28.—The International Navigation Company's steamer St. Paul, which ran aground off Long Branch early on Saturday morning, is still lying broadside to the shore.

The company's representatives are not sparing themselves in their endeavor to take the ship out of her dilemma, and the wrecking company's men are working night and day to get her away from the Jersey coast.

The interest manifested by the public in the welfare of the steamship has not abated in the least. The crowds of spectators who assemble on the beach on Saturday and Sunday were larger than that which put in an appearance yesterday.

As on Saturday and Sunday the ship's officers guarded the gangway and swinging ladders very carefully, so that no stranger could get aboard, and there was a very strict order issued not to allow a reporter on board on any account.

The latter vessel lies in sight of her disabled twin sister last evening, and her whistles shrieked an encouraging salute to the stranded steamer.
