Important Statements in the British House of Commons.

OUR COMMISSIONERS RECOGNIZED

Her Majesty's Government Will Submit Documentary Evidence to the Venezuelan Commission to Prove the Justice of Her Claim.

LONDON, Feb. 12 .- The Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Duke of Connaught, the Marquis of Salisbury and other distinguished personages were among those present in the house of lords during the reading of the queen's speech. The Princess of Wales was in the pooresses' gallery, and there were a large number of ladies in the side galleries.

In the debate which followed Sir Will-ham Vernon Harcourt said he was rejoiced at the paragraph in the queen's speech with an early date. He added that no words that could impede such a settlement would fall from him

This remark was greeted with loud cheers, as it disposes of the report that the Liberal leaders had determined to make an attack upon the government's policy in regard to Venezuela.
Continuing, Sir William said that misunderstandings both in England and the United States existed and had caused ruffled feelings on both sides. The idea that America and Great Britain disputed the question of Monroeism was nothing new or question of Monroelsin, he asserted, was not a principle of international law, but one of national policy to which the Amer-icans have a traditional and passionate attachment, and it was the same doctrine by virtue of which Great Britain had in-terfered in various states when her interests were affected. He proceeded:

"I am in entire accord with Lord Salisbury when he says the United States have a perfect right to interpose in any controversy by which their own interests are af-fected, and they are entitled to judge whether their interests are affected and in what measure they shall be sustained. That is a general doctrine upon which all states act. Upon this is founded the bal-ance of power, and upon that ground Great Britain interposed in Belgium, Greece, Turkey any many other places. The Mon-states claim to exercise everywhere.

"If it is proved that the rights of Vene zuela have not been invaded by Great Britain the United States of America will have no cause for complaint. If we have occupied territory to which we have no title we must not make any pretense to maintain that occupation.

Turning to Armenia, Sir William said:

"The reference to the subject in the queen's speech is disappointing. These crimes are matters for our special concern as we are parties to the guarantee of the powers. Under the Cyprus convention Turkey covenants to protect the Christians in Armenia. The support we have given Turkey was conditional upon the coven-ants which the sultan has foully broken." Sir William Harcourt described Lord Salisbury's recent speech on the subject of Armenia as an "unparalelled confession of and have so far met with much success. diplomatic insolvency and national impo-

In replying to Sir William, Hon. A. J. Balfour, first lord of the treasury and Conservative leader of the house, declared that the government would furnish the American Venezuelan commissioners "all the information we are able to give at the earliest possible moment." Mr. Balfour pointed out the impossibility of individual action on the part of Great Britain in dealing with Turkey.

Lord Rosebery criticized the government's policy, and Prime Minister Salisbury was loudly greeted when he rose to reply. Speaking of Venezuela he said:

"I do not think that the invoking of the Moures docteins was contracted."

Monroe doctrine was controversially quite unnecessary for the United States. Con-sidering the position of Venezuela in the Carribean sea, it was no more unnatural that the United States should take an interest in it than we should feel an interest in Holland and Belgium, and from that point of view I trust the negotiations will

"I do not like to go further into a ques-"I do not like to go further into a ques-tion obviously undesirable to state in the condition of negotiations at present, but I have had an increasing belief during the past few weeks that we shall perhaps find some satisfactory settlement, and all dan-ger of a rupture of relations between the two nations be entirely removed. I think we are rightly relying upon the question of arbitration."

This morning's Times publishes the cor-respondence between Ambassador Bayard respondence and Lord Salisbury, in which the British premier agrees to submit to the American Venezuelan commission the documentary evidence supporting England's claims.

HASTINGS IS FOR QUAY.

Pennsylvania's Governor Favors the Senator's Presidential Candidacy.

HARRISHUBG, Feb. 12.—State Treasurer-elect Haywood returned to Harrisburg from Washington yesterday, and when asked concerning the interview in which he declares that Quay will receive the support of the Republican state leaders for president, said: "Senator Quay's name will be presented to the next national convention for president, and he will be nominated and elected surely. This was agreed upon by a conference of all the prominent leaders in Washington last week, and they were unanimous. Nothing will change this determination."

Governor Hastings last night gave out the following statement relative to Senator Quay's candidacy for the presidency: "I am for Quay if he is a candidate. Some time ago, but since the state convention last August, Quay assured me that if I desired the vote of the delegation from Pennsylvania at the next national convention he would be for me. This I declined. I knew there was no show for my nomina tion, and was not hunting for compli-ments. Senator Quay's candidacy would have a two fold effect in Pennsylvania. It would reunite the party on broad and lasting foundations, which every true Republican would welcome, and it would help to dispel the idea abroad in the country that because Pennsylvania is the leading Republican protection state in the Union, and always safe, therefore she should never have a presidential candidate. Pennsylvania's constant Republicanism should be the best argument in favor of a Pennsylvania candidate. I will be for Quay if he is willing to be a candidate."

Don't Expect a Solid Delegation Washington, Feb. 12.—Senator Quay, when questioned yesterday, said that the interview made public by State Treasurer-elect Haywood placing him in the field for president was unauthorized. He made the sitive declaration that he was not a candidate for the presidency, but admitted that he had not done anything to discourage the movement, nor could be, to use his own language, prevent the boys from vot-ing for him if they felt so disposed. He said very frankly that he could not expect to secure the solid delegation.

and read an amended ordinance providing till next winter. for an issue of bonds. It was promptly adopted and will be published at on that the bonds may be issued at an early date.

The change under the amendment gives the borough the right to redeam the bonds at any time after issue and cuts the rate of interest down to four per cent. The old bondholders will be entitled to preference to the amount of their present holdings. The law requires that this option shall be given. By fixing the rate of interestat four percent, the borough will save a great deal more than it would have made from the premium contracted for on the five per cent. issue. The reason the brokers backed out of their contract was that their lawyers had advised them that the borough could only issue bonds redeemable at any time after issue, and had no power to put off that option for fifteen years. This point is covered by the amended ordinance. It is more than probable that all the bonds will be taken up by town parties
