SENATOR SHERMAN does not mince matters when talking of the result of the vote on an increased tariff to provide revenue. He prononneed it a disgrace to civilization and said that it was within the knowledge of every man who heard him that there is an engrmous deficiency in the revenues of the government As President Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle both claim the present tariff produces enough revenue, at the same time that they are sailing bonds to make up the deficiency. Scuator Sherman's language is equivalent to an accusation of falsehood against these gentlemen. But the facts are with the Senator.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.-A case which presents a somewhat complicated state of affairs has been referred to the treasury department for determination. Several years ago a Chinaman named Chung Ling Fat came to this country and opened a laundry in the city of Boston. He was successful and frugal and in time accumulated about $15,000. Joe Tye, another Chinaman, it is alleged, stole $14,300 of his countryman's money and sailed to China. Fat followed him, but before he could be apprehended Tye returned to the United States and was arrested and jailed. The question brought to the attention of the trensury department is whether, being a laborer, Fat, under the exclusion laws, can return to this country and give testimony against Tye, Judge Reeve states landing, even for so laudable a purpose as giving evidence against a criminal. Tye will probably be released.

hour has gradually moved from the fore-noon until evening. The word dinner is believed to be a corruption of six hours, or 2 o'clock, the hour at which the Nor man conquerors ate their principal meal. A young man from the Maine woods visited New York on a schooner and wrote home thus: "Hardly anybody here eats dinner at noon. Most of the folks eat theirs at 6 o'clock. The rich don't eat theirs until 7 or half past, and the real upper crust don't dine until some time next day." He had evidently been brought up to think 12 o'clock the proper

The quiet hush that per-yaded the very atmosphere of the house suppressed the boisterous spirits of youth, and early planted a reverent love New England Sabbath. Everybody was expected to go to meeting and stay through both services. Some of the stanch men rode in the sæddle, the good wife on a pil-lien, with the haby in her lap, and the next older child in front or behind. Every first Sabbath of the month the deacor could be seen cantering up the long road with the consecrated jug for the sacra-mental wine dangling from his saddle. It must have been a pleasant sight on Sun-day morning to stand by the church and watch the worshipers as singly, two by two, or in families, they seemed to rise out of the hills, from the east and from the west, from the north and from the south, for Sabbath morning all paths led to church, as all roads led to Rome. In sum-mer time the boys and girls carried their shoes and stockings in their hands, to save them from the wear and tear of the bushes and the long, sandy paths. Mrs. Stowe gives a picture of the old meeting house, which is the best I have found. "To my childish eyes our meeting house was fashioned on the model of Noah's ark and Solomon's temple double rows of windows, of which I knew the number by heart; its doors, with great wooden quirks over them; its beifry, projecting out at the east end; its steeple and bell, all inspired as much sense of the sub-lime as Strasburg cathedral itself. How magnificent to my eyes seemed the turnip-like canopy that hung over the minister's head, hooked by a long from rod to the wall above! How I wondered at the pan-els on either side of the pulpit, carved and painted as a flaming red tulip. The area of the house was divided into large, square pews, finished with a balustrade ten inches high. Through these loopholes the children could watch each other and report discoveries.

The meeting houses were not warmed, but the old and the delicate carried foot stoves, and between the services they all repaired to a small building outside to repaired to a small billiding outside to eat their lunch and warm their nearly frozen limbs.
