AIDED BY HIS PLUCKY WIFE !

Finally, After Having Been Driven From His Home by Flame, he Kills Himself Just Before the Building is Blown to Bits by Dynamite.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., March 7.—For twenty four hours the quiet little village of Woodward, in the eastern end of this county was the scene of a bloody conflict. Will iam Etlinger, who lived there in a little frame house, with his wife and two chil-dren, had been a fugitive from justice since last fall. He was under bail for at-tempting to kill his wife's father, but when the case was called it was found that he had fled to the mountain fastnesses. When Constable John Barner, who had been sworn in only a few days before, learned on Thursday afternoon that the outlaw had slipped down to his home to see his wife and family he determined to trap him at any cost. Deputizing John Hosterman and C. G. Motz to assist him, they made their way to Etlinger's house. Arriving there, they found the outlaw, with his wife and babies, barricaded in the second story. Barner called upon him to surrender, but was greeted with derision. With a shout to his men to back him up the constable crashed in one of the panels of the door and crawled through the aper-ture. Instantly there was a flash from Etlinger's gun, and Barner fell dead with a bullet in his head. Motz and Hosterman fled in terror and told their story. It set the little town ablaze with fury, and a constantly increasing mob of men gathered togother, armed themselves with guns, and made for the house. The crowd quickly swelled to 2,000 or more.

As they approached the house a fusilade of shots from the upper window warned them to keep their distance. Both Etilnger and his wife, who is almost as bold as he, were armed, and almost constantly firing. Several persons were injured by flying bullets, Frank Guiswhite, who lay sick in his house next door, being shot in the head and shoulder.

Meanwhile the armed crowd without returned the fire steadily. The bombard-ment was continued throughout the night, but the besieged still held their own, and the assailants grew more desperate. Early yesterday morning ammunition began to run out, and a detail was sent here to pro-cure fresh supplies. They returned with cartridges and rifles. These were too much for the desperado, and he took his family to the cellar when the bullets began to fly clear through the light frame structure.

Sheriff Condo and a posso of sixteen men had arrived meantime, and they then made a raid, but Etlinger and his wife repulsed them with a heavy fire. At one time the woman approached a window in the house and lighted a fuse attached to a dynamite bomb, which she meant to hurl into the crowd. A dozen guns were leveled at her, and she quickly disappeared.

Eventually it was decided that the only resource was to set fire to the house and drive the bandit out. There was hesitation about this, because of the woman and children, but the mob was fast becoming uncontrollable, and refused to listen to reason. To avenge Barner's death seemed to be the one thought, and they would listen to no plans of moderation. Shortly 22 and 24 East Centre Street, MAHANOY CITY, PA. and applied is to the frame walts of the house. Instantly the wood ignited, and in a moment the flames were leaping high in the air. But Etilinger continued to fire into the crowd, and yelled defiance at his

The flames had eaten their way half through the roof when a cry of gladness announced that the children had escaped from the building. After a few moments of rapid firing the woman appeared at the cellar door. A thousand voices shouted to her to come out, promising her safety, but she answered that she must die with

"Let him come out, then, and we will not shoot him!" was the cry.

The answer was a yell of derision and a volley from the outlaw. The woman was on her knees, pleading with her husband to surrender, while the rifle bullets whizzed within three inches of her head. Finally she wrenched herself free and ran. Et-linger fired three shots after her, but they were wild, and she was uninjured. Her ankles had been bound together, so that she could not escape she could not escape.

It was then that Eblinger realized that his time had come. With a grin of deflance he thrust his head from the cellar door, climbed to the ground and drew himself up to his full height. Then 200 rifles were raised and leveled at him, but only two shots rang out. Before they had time to press their triggers he raised his own weapon and sent two bullets into his brain. A moment later his body, riddled with bullets, toppled over into the flames. Almost immediately after there was a tremendous report, and what was left of the burning structure went in fragments high into the air. Four hundred pounds of dynamite which he had kept in the cellar had exploded.

Barner's dead body was recovered. The op of the head had been crushed in by bullets and the throat was cut from ear to

Only the House in Session. WASHINGTON, March 7.-The house yes terday passed the legislative appropria-tion bill, which has been under consider-ation for a week. Most of the time, however, was consumed in the consideration of the amendment to abolish the fee syspresented and adopted. The house then entered upon the consideration of the postoffice appropriation bill, the largest of the regular supply bills, which carries $91,943,-707. A bill was passed to abolish the cash payment of pensions, the purpose of which was to protect old veterans who squandered or were swindled out of the pensions on quarterly navdays.

GENERAL WALKER EXPLAINS

Why He Objects to the Blue and Gray

ST. Louis, March 7.—General I. N. Walker, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., is in this city, on route to the department encampment at Minneapolis. He said he had read the Washington dispatch in which Senator Gordon, a commander-fn-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, spoke in reference to the proposed joint parade of the Blue and Gray in New York on July 4. He stated that the Union soldiers harbored no ill will or vindictive feeling towards their late foes in arms, but they do insist that both their banner and their uniform should be laid away, and if possible forgotten, as General Leo suggested when he surrendered at Appo-

General Walker stated that the telegram sent out from Wilmington, Del., last week, giving a purported interview with him in which he was quoted as using vin-dictive language toward. Confederate soldiers, was a pure falsification. He then went on to say:

"We did not think it for the best interest of our common country to join our late foes in battle in a grand parade in New York in July after they had finished un-veiling their monument at Richmond, Va., clad in a uniform that should be doffed at the close of the war, and, while the United States flag might have floated over the en-tire column, would there not have been on the breast of every member of a Confedcase of every member of a Confederate camp in that procession a boutoniers with a minature robel flag? There is not room for, nor will there be tolerated, any other flag than the Stars and Stripes."

A Religious Manue.

HARRISBURG, March 7.-Charles B. His crime was one of the most shocking in the anhas one of the most shocking in the an-nals of the state, and will be supplemented by his self destruction unless prevented by the hospital authorities. Ramsay went mad on religion, and "sacrificed" his wife because of his conviction that Christ was coming on earth again. He is a raving manlac, and the officers had much difficulty in taking him from the jail to the railroad station. He made several at-tempts to commit suicide in Jall. Once he set fire to his clothing. Another time he took a lid from a redhot stove and thrust mania is still on him.

The Coal Trade.

The Anthracite trade is quiet; there will be about the same tonnage produced and shipped during March as in last month, and this quantity will be sufficient to meet the requirements of the market. No great activity or demand for coal is to be looked for in the first half of this year and the output will necessarily be kept within bounds during that time. Business methods should prevail, and there is no movement likely to prevail, and there is no movement likely to be taken in any other direction. Prices are nominally unchanged from the list recently made.

Justices Lawlor and Cardin Hang Up Their Commissions.

WILL ATTEMPT TO OUST OTHERS

They Claim They Are the Only Legally Elected and Bona Fide Justices Under the Law in the Borough-A Hot Fight Expected.

John J. Cardin and M. J. Lawlor to-day commenced business as Justices of the Peace of the Borough and the question as to whether their claims to the offices are well founded in law will now be brought to a well defined issue, as they to-day made arrangements to commence quo warranto proceedings to oust William H. Shoemaker, Jeremiah Toomey, C. W. Dengler, T. T. Williams, P. W. Bierstein, Walter Bynkiewicz, Daniel Bailey and others who may claim to hold or be entitled to commissions as Justices of the Peace in wards. Messrs. Cardin and Lawlor claim they are the only legally elected and bona fide Justices in the borough under commissions received by them yesterday, and they have the commis-sions framed and displayed in their offices.

It is also claimed that the mandamus pro-cedings which are to come before the court at Pattsville on Monday morning are not material, but will be pressed more to show Judges of Election that all votes cast at an election must be returned to the proper au-thorities of the county, the point being that whenever it can be determined what office and what candidate a voter ballets for that ote must be counted and returned.

As to the Baker ballot law, it is claimed the case is not affected by it, the law being directory and not mandatory, and not pro-hibiting any citizen to run for any office he may see fit to seek.

Of course, the other Justices are quite as determined that they are right and, as reported in yesterday's HERALD, will fight the case to the bitter end. The real battle will se waged when proceedings are taken to oust Inquiry as to how Justices Cardin and Lawlor secured returns upon which to base their applications for commissions shows that the Second and Fifth ward returns were made by the Judges of Election, while the First, Third and Fourth wards are covered by affidavits of people who claim that so many votes were cast in the respective wards for the offices claimed. These returns were satisfactory to the State Department and apon them the commissions were granted.

Meanwhile J. K. P. Scheifly is going ahead with his suit for $50,000 damages against the state for withholding the commission he applied for under election in the spring of 1880, his hand and arms in the coals of fire, At that election Mr. Scheifly polled $47 votes horribly burning himself.
