MR. BAYARD WAS CENSURED

The National House Denounces His Speeches in England.

SIX DEMOCRATS FAVOR CENSURE

While Five Republicans Broke Away and Opposed the Action—Senator Morgan Introduces a Joint Resolution Recognizing Cuban Belligerency.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The house yesterday, after three days' debate, adopted the resolution censuring Thomas F. Bayard, ex-secretary of state, and now our ambassador at the court of St. James, for utterances delivered in an address to the Boston, England, Grammar school, and in an address before the Edinburgh, Scotland, Philosophical institution last fall. The vote stood 180 to 71 in favor of the first resolution and 191 to 59 in favor of the second. Five Republicans broke away from party lines and voted against the resolution of censure, and six Democrats voted for it. All the Republicans and nine Democrats voted for the second resolution. Mr. Willis, a Republican from Mr. Bayard's state, made a speech in opposition to the first resolution, and Mr. Bailey, of Texas, not only indorsed the resolutions, but declared that a man who delivered such utterances as Mr. Bayard had at Boston was "unworthy to represent the United States anywhere at any time."

There was a report about the house after the resolutions had been adopted that Ambassador Bayard would resign, but close friends of the administration asserted positively that there was absolutely no foundation for the rumors, which they did not hesitate to ridicule. The resolutions adopted after reciting the objectionable portions of Mr. Bayard's speech, denouncing protection, were as follows:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of the house of representatives that Thomas F. Bayard, ambassador of the United States to Great Britain, in publicly using the language above quoted, has committed an offense against diplomatic propriety and an abuse of the privileges of his exalted position, which should make him the representative of the whole country and not of any political party. Such utterances are wholly inconsistent with that prudent, delicate and scrupulous reserve which he himself, while secretary of state, enjoined upon all diplomatic agents of the United States. In one speech he affronts the great body of his countrymen who believe in the policy of protection. In the other speech he offends all his countrymen who believe that Americans are capable of self government. Therefore, as the immediate representative of the American people, and in their name, we condemn and censure the said utterances of Thomas F. Bayard."

"Resolved, That in the opinion of the house of representatives public speeches by our diplomatic or consular officers abroad which display partisanship or which condemn any political party or party policy or organization of citizens in the United States, are in dereliction of duty of such officers, impair their usefulness as public servants, and diminish the confidence which they should always command at home and abroad."

Messrs. Cummings of New York, Bailey of Texas, Layton of Ohio, Latimer of South Carolina, Sorg of Ohio and Cockrell of Texas, Democrats, voted with the Republicans for the censure resolution, and Messrs. Cook of Illinois, Willis of Delaware and Baker of Maryland, Republicans, voted with the Democrats against it. The house later considered the contested election case of Benoit vs. Boatner for the Fifth Louisiana, and the report of the majority, declaring the seat vacant on account of fraud and intimidation at the election, was adopted by a vote of 131 to 59. Three Republicans voted for Boatner, Senator Morgan presented a new phase of the Cuban question to the senate shortly before the adjournment last night by offering a joint resolution declaring that a state of war exists in Cuba and recognizing the insurgents as belligerents. The pending resolutions are concurrent, while those, being joint, would, if adopted, require the president's signature.

Senator Morgan said after adjournment, in reply to a question, that it was the purpose to afford those who had objected to the concurrent form of the original senate and the house resolutions, and had expressed a willingness to support a joint resolution, a chance to make good their promises. The resolution was, at Mr. Morgan's request, allowed to lie on the table, and was not referred to the committee on foreign relations. His purpose in seeking this disposition of it is to be able to consider the resolution without delay. He says that he will try to call it up on Monday, regardless of the concurrent resolutions now before the senate, and that he hopes that it can be passed with but little delay. Mr. Morgan also says that so far as he is concerned he is willing that any measure passed by congress should be sent to the president, as is necessary with joint resolutions, for his approval or disapproval.

The Cuban resolutions received an unexpected reverse yesterday. Mr. Sherman sought to interrupt the usual course of adjourning over Saturday, unless unanimous consent was given to take the final vote on the Cuban question at a stated time next week. The unanimous consent was not given, however, and the senate voted, 42 to 22, to adjourn over today. The vote was regarded as an evidence of growing opposition to the Cuban resolutions. Most of the day was given to the Cuban debate, speeches being made by Mr. Caffrey, of Louisiana, in opposition, and Mr. Call, of Florida, favoring the resolutions. The Dupont election contest came up long enough to allow Mr. Allen an opportunity to express his views against Mr. Dupont's claim.

PRESIDENTIAL PREFERENCES.

Reed Leads in a Vote by Maryland's Republican Legislators.

ANNAPOLIS, March 21.—A canvass of the members of the general assembly shows that Reed is the first choice of thirty-seven for president and the second choice of nineteen. McKinley is the first choice of twenty-six and the second choice of twenty-nine. Allison is the first choice of nine and the second choice of eight. Morton is the first with five, and is the second choice of nine. Two declare for Roosevelt, and he is the second choice of nobody. One named Lincoln as his first choice and two are willing to take him as second. Benjamin Harrison is the first choice of one and the second choice of one. Two have no preference for first choice, and fifteen have no second choice.

A TRAIN CRUSHES HORSES.

Thrilling Accident at Kreh's Station Early This Morning.

TEAMSTER'S NARROW ESCAPE!

The Warning Whistle of a Locomotive Frightened the Horses so That They Got Beyond Control of the Driver and Plunged in Front of the Train.

A thrilling accident occurred at about six o'clock this morning at Kreh's crossing, in the Gatawissa Valley in which two horses were killed outright, and one injured so badly that it was subsequently put to death, and the driver in charge, William Neiswenter, of 105 North Jardin street, this town, had a remarkable escape from death. He is at his home suffering from very painful, but not dangerous injuries.

Neiswenter is employed as teamster for the Shenandoah Powder Company. The horses were owned by John Roberts, the liverman of town. Shortly after five o'clock this morning Neiswenter started from Roberts' stable with a sleigh and four horses to go to the powder company's mill in the valley. It was his intention to bring a load of powder to town. The mill is located about half a mile from the place where the accident occurred. There are two road branches at Kreh's. One turns to the right leading to Brandywine and the other in the opposite direction and passes the powder mill. The road leading down the mountain to the fork of the roads is very steep and there is a sharp curve near Kreh's station that shuts the Philadelphia & Reading railroad from view. Neiswenter says that as he drove down this hill he heard no bell or whistle, but when he got in view of and close to the track he saw a west-bound freight train approach. The engineer of the train at the same time caught first sight of the team and sounded several shrill blasts with the whistle. Neiswenter was engaged in trying to halt the team, the whistle frightened the two horses in the lead and they dashed upon the track just as the train reached the crossing. The two horses were run down and drawn in under the wheels of the engine. The sleigh and remaining horses were dragged along the gutter at the side of the track by the harness of the doomed horses being entangled in the mechanism of the engine. Neiswenter remained on the sleigh to the very last with the hope that he would be able to save the horses. As the sleigh was dragged along he tried to escape, but some part of a car struck him on the right side of the face and right arm, knocking him off the sleigh so that he fell between the wheels of the train, or under the sleigh. The connecting harness eventually broke and the train went on, leaving the two horses and sleigh in the gutter at the side of the track. The train had been running at such a speed that it went some distance past the crossing before the engineer stopped it. The train returned to the crossing, but there was nothing the crew could do and after seeing that the track was clear they proceeded on their trip.

Although Neiswenter received a terrible blow he did not lose consciousness and before the train returned to the crossing he had walked to Kreh's store and there received temporary attendance. Shortly after a workman from Roberts' farm arrived with a horse and buggy and brought Neiswenter to town. Dr. Callen was summoned. He found the right side of the man's face was badly contused. The right eye was entirely closed and a cut above it required three stitches. The cheek was greatly discolored and lacerated in several places. The right arm was also much contused, but there were no fractures.

Mr. Roberts estimates his loss by the accident at no less than $700. The horses killed were the best he had in his stables. One, a big gray, was a powerful animal recently purchased and it is said $300 would have been refused for him.

Upon learning of the accident Liverman Roberts went to Kreh's station and on returning said that there is a chance for saving the horse that was badly injured. It suffered no fractures but its legs are badly gashed and bruised. The fourth horse was not injured at all and was driven to Beaver Meadow this afternoon.
