REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

To the Republican electors of Pennsylvania: The Republicans of Pennsylvania, by their duly chosen representatives, will meet in State convention Thursday, April 23, 1896, at 10 o'clock a. m., in the opera house, city of Harrisburg, for the purpose of nominating two candidates for representative-at-large in Congress and thirty-two candidates for Presidential electors, the selection of eight delegates-at-large to the Republican National convention, and for the transaction of such other business as may be presented.

By order of the State Committee.
M. S. QUAY, Chairman.
J. H. B. REX, Secretary.
W. H. ANDREWS, Secretaries.

THINGS POLITICAL.

The Republican state convention will be held in Harrisburg on Thursday, and as the hour for the convening of that important body draws nearer interest in the Presidential canvass increases correspondingly. Pennsylvania has long been the banner Republican state; in the person of Matthew Stanley Quay she has a candidate for whom the party workers would rally to a man; the tide is setting his way, and it would not surprise the knowing ones to find that Quay would receive the second highest vote on the first ballot. Mr. Quay's great strength is attributable, in a great measure, to his loyalty to Republicanism, who is never greater than his party, and never away from his post when the interests of Pennsylvania are concerned. In his political career he has shown courage and magnanimity to an unusual degree. As Republican opinion now trends, Pennsylvania's choice will be the choice of the St. Louis convention, and the nation's choice in November. Let there be no anxiety over the McKinley boom. It has reached the zenith of its glory. The press bureaus have played their part, and even Mark Hanna's "lubricating oil" fails further to keep the machinery moving smoothly.

The second important business of Thursday's convention—outside of the unanimous endorsement of Senator Quay—is the adoption of the platform. New York, Massachusetts, Maine and several other states have spoken in no uncertain tones in favor of sound money and a protective tariff, and Pennsylvania will speak also in the same strain. Protection to American industries, a dollar worth one hundred cents at any time, and reform in municipal government will be the keynote of the campaign in this state. The delegates have a duty to perform, in this respect, that they cannot evade, and what the platform contains should be in few words and to the point—no evasive or juggling phrases.

The convention will likely be called upon to select a successor to Senator Quay as chairman of the State Committee, and it is important that the selection be made by the convention—as was done last year—and not leave it in the hands of the two candidates to be nominated on Thursday. Frank Willing Leach is making a winning fight, and if all signs fall not he will succeed Senator Quay—provided, always, the latter decides to retire. The delegates to the state convention from this county compare favorably with any who have in previous years represented Schuylkill in a similar capacity. They are intelligent, conscientious men, who are not to be traded away by politicians, as insinuated by the Miners' Journal of yesterday. The fling at the delegates in the Journal is unjust and undeserved, and should not have been given publicity in a newspaper controlled by a delegate to the national convention, even as a "rumor." While we believe the majority, if not all of them, will support Mr. Leach for state chairman, we also believe they will do so because they consider him eminently fitted for the office, and that the mass of the people they represent hold the same opinion. No, dear Journal, if the Schuylkill delegates vote for Mr. Leach they will be only expressing the wishes of their constituents, and not a few would-be leaders who are anxious that they do otherwise.

Speaking of Mr. Leach's candidacy brings to mind his opinion of the "rural press." He is quoted as saying that "without the support of the interior papers no man can succeed in Pennsylvania." That is true. The rural press wield a great power in moulding public opinion and are the greatest single political power in the commonwealth. There are a number of political leaders in the state, and several in this county, who realize to their sorrow that what Mr. Leach says in regard to the rural press is true in every particular. And there are others who will also bear testimony to the statement before many more summers.

Since the county convention political news is somewhat scarce, but before many days the hundred and one patriots who are so anxious to serve the dear people will again be pressing their respective claims upon a gullible public. While we believe there are a number of "has-beens" in Schuylkill county who, for the good of the party, should be relegated to the rear and allow more worthy men to take their places, we are also of the opinion that there is entirely too much factional feeling displayed. Every declaration of war from one faction against the other, every statement of the attitude of this or that leader, is only additional fuel for feeding the fire of discord. The Republican party of this county has all it can do to successfully fight the common enemy, Democracy. The bickerings and bad blood engendered by factional fights within our own ranks, if continued, will ultimately place Schuylkill again in the Democratic column. The broad-gauged and liberal-minded Republicans should come to the front and put a stop to these bickerings. The only way to put an end to these criminalities and re-terminations lies in the party itself; Schuylkill county will never exert her full measure of influence in the councils of the state organization so long as the local factional fights continue.

The only way to put an end to these criminalities and re-terminations lies in the party itself; Schuylkill county will never exert her full measure of influence in the councils of the state organization so long as the local factional fights continue.

—What is true of the county leaders is but true, to a less extent, of Shenandoah Republicans. Under our form of government every American citizen has the right to aspire to public office. The ambition is a laudable one; and it is this general right that causes so many to thirst for political preferment. Shenandoah is the largest town in the county, and from a Republican standpoint has never had its quota of office holders. It is true the factional feeling is not as strong as in some other towns, but it exists all the same. There is an undercurrent that works detriment to the aspirations of a Shenandoah Republican for political preferment, and is the one cause that the town's full quota of plums are not forthcoming. Get together, gentlemen, and work in harmony.

The ante-convention canvass will be on in all its glory soon, and among the list of aspirants for county offices will be a number of Shenandoah Republicans, either of whom are worthy the honor they seek. Party fealty and capacity for the official position make them each strong candidates. But let their canvass be made in the proper spirit, with a fair field to all.

AFFAIRS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

A Large Force of Boers Near Mafeking with a Machine Gun.

LONDON, April 21.—The situation in South Africa continues to absorb a large share of public attention and apprehensions for the safety of Englishmen in Mafeking and particularly in Bulawayo are not yet abated. There is an appreciable sense of relief over the news that a supply train from Mafeking has got through to Bulawayo and that the reinforcements of imperial troops from Mafeking are being rapidly pushed forward for the relief of the place, which is to all intents and purposes beleaguered, being so closely invested by the natives that numerous skirmishes are occurring almost in the outskirts of the town.

The Times publishes a dispatch from Pretoria which says: "President Kruger's reply to Mr. Chamberlain is friendly and conciliatory, but it fails to advance the negotiation. It repeats that the president cannot ask the veldkorn to consent to his visit to England until a basis for the discussion is settled. No agreement has yet been arrived at, but hope is still entertained of a satisfactory settlement, says President Kruger. The Transvaal, he continues, cannot admit any right of a foreign power to interfere with its internal matters. It relies upon its independence in that respect provided by the London convention."

A dispatch from Mafeking to The Times says: "A large force of Boers, estimated at 1,500, is massed twenty-five miles from Mafeking (which is on the borders of the Transvaal) with a machine gun. Their purpose ostensibly is to prevent the spread of the rinderpest, but they are really there because another raid is feared, owing to the massing of British troops here for the relief of Bulawayo. Dr. Jameson's raid started into the Transvaal from Mafeking."

Two Reported Engagements.

LONDON, April 21.—A Pretoria dispatch to The Daily Telegraph says that a telegram received there from Bulawayo, April 20, says: "There was a sharp skirmish early this morning with the Matabeles on the Commonage. There were 150 friendly engaged and they killed six of the enemy. There was no loss on our side."

A later telegram received at Pretoria from Bulawayo says: "There was another sharp skirmish near the northeastern suburb of the town. The Afrikaander corps gallantly attacked a fort held by the rebels in an exceedingly strong position. There was a sharp hand-to-hand fight. The whites lost one killed."

No News of Nansen.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 20.—The police have a report from Ust Yansk, northern Siberia, that nothing is known there of Dr. Nansen. Ust Yansk is the point east of the Lena Delta from which was dated the first report by Kushnareff, contractor for Nansen, that the explorer had reached the pole and was returning. The report which the police have now received also says that the natives who stayed from May to November on the Lakhoff and Kotelnikoff islands, where Baron Toll's provision stores intended for Nansen's use are placed, saw no wreckage or sign of Nansen.

He says the money was used in speculation, and that he did not profit by it.

All three have confessed their guilt.

Massachusetts Democratic Convention.

BOSTON, April 21.—The Democratic state convention convened here this forenoon. Hon. John R. Thayer, of Worcester, was made permanent chairman. The withdrawal of ex-Governor William E. Russell as a candidate for delegate-at-large, has brought out several candidates, among whom are James Donovan, chairman of the Democratic city committee, John B. Moran, and John W. Coughlin, of Fall River. It is thought that the fight will narrow down to Donovan and Moran, and that Coughlin, who is a personal friend of Donovan, will be induced to withdraw. It seems to be the general impression now that the convention will endorse the presidential candidacy of ex-Governor William E. Russell.
