TWO DIPLOMATIC SNARLS

Our Government's Quarrels With France and Germany.

VIGOROUS ATTITUDES SUSTAINED.

In the Cattle Controversy With France and the Arrest of Mr. Stern in Germany Both Fremiers Gresham and Olney Acted Promptly and Boldly.

WASHINGTON, May 6 .- Nowhere in the whole of the correspondence which the United States had during the last year with the countries of Europe, which cor-respondence is just now becoming public property through advance sheets of the United States red book, is there exhibited a more vigorous insistence upon the rights of Americans than in the course of the negotiations with France respecting the exclusion by the government of that country of American cattle. The president him-self-diotated a small but most important portion of the correspondence in its earlier stages, and the concluding chapters, contributed by Secretary Olney, sweep away like cobwebs the specious explanations put forward to justify the exclusion, and make it plain that retaliation may be expected if the unjust restrictions are not abated or justified

As far back as March of last year, just after the fact that the exclusion order had after the fact that the exclusion order had been issued was made known to the state department through Mr. Vignaud, our charge at Paris, Secretary Gresham cabled that officer that he had failed to state the reasons for its issue; that the secretary of agriculture had asserted our cattle were entirely free from disease, and that "in view of these statements the president di-rects that you inform the French govern-ment that the United States regard this prohibition as a needless and unfriendly interference with an important branch of legitimate trade, and that you remonstrate against its enforcement."

The charge was apparently dismayed at the strength of the message, and sought to delay its delivery until an opportunity could be had to consider the propriety of modifying it, on account of other factors entering into the negotiations, but another cable message from Secretary Gresham three days later left him no recourse, and when he did submit it, even the French minister of foreign affairs, who happened to be then as now in office, admitted "that the protest was a little flery."

Finally Secretary Olney summed up the position of his government in a letter dated Oct. 12 last, winding up by an in-timation that if the French government persisted in regarding it as necessary for the protection of their cattle to exclude the herds from the United States the same process of reasoning would make it equally essential to protection on cattle of the United States that French cattle, especially the Norman breed, which is now attracting so much attention here, should be excluded from the United States.

From the correspondence, which closes presentations that the new French ministry would be more favorable to the United States.

The change of ministry in France brought about a more favorable disposition on the part of the French government, and the prohibition was in a fair

ALFRED | A SHOE TALE I have and the promoted was in a fair way to be removed when the printed correspondence closed on Nov. 14, 1895.

Some very highly spirited correspondence passed last summer between Secretary Olivey and the German ambassador at Washington, Baron Thielman, grow-ing out of the harsh treatment accorded to a New York business man, Louis Stern, by the Bavarian authorities, and while the case was not of itself great importance it seemed for a time to put a strain be-tween relations all around.

As was shown at the time, Mr. Stern, then at Kissengen, resented what he re-garded as insolence exhibited by a petty official of the Kissengen baths, and was arrested therefor, sentenced to two weeks, imprisonment and fined 600 marks, case terminated by the forfeiture of exsive ball of 80,000 marks exacted of Mr. Stern by the Bavarian government and the refusal of the former to return to Germany and serve sentence.

From the beginning the state department exerted itself with great vigor, first to insure justice for Mr. Stern, and after the passage of sentence to secure elemency for him. In the course of the latter at-tempt Secretary Olney addressed a note to Baron Thielman, the German ambassador here, in which he said that to him the pro-ceedings against Stern seemed to have been gratuitous and undeservedly onerous from the beginning, from the imposition of the excessive ball to the final sentence, which added to a fine the hamiliation of a personal imprisonment. From the latter Stern should be relieved, and in no possible view of his case was any such chastise-ment justified. Secretary Olney reminded the ambassador that enstrangements of great nations had in the past grown up from equally small beginnings.

Probably no one was more surprised than Secretary Olney at the reception accorded his note, which was shown by the follow-ing note from the ambassador:

"In reply to the views contained in your note I hasten to say that I reject as entirely unjustified your excellency's criti-tism of the sentence against Stern deliv-ered by the court at Kissingen. So far as the United States government desires to approach the government of his majesty, the German emperor, in this matter, touching one of its citizens, it must be left to it to make such approach through the United States ambassador at Berlin."

But the sceretary's answer was to the officials who anticipate much good returns. point, for taking up the note in detail he disposed of the first point by maintaining that all effort by the country of a sufferer for his relief is both legitimate and obligatory. The position that a judicial sentence rendered in one country "however absurd and iniquitous, may not, with a view to the necessary relief from 1t, be criticized and characterized as it deserves by the government of the country whose support or cruzen is affected, cannot be reasonably assumed by any civilized state."

sonal feature with a brief note from the German ambassador formally stating that the imperial government receives con plaints and suggestions from friendly gov ernments only when they are presented by the diplomatic representatives of such gov-ernments accredited to it. It does this as a matter of principle, and in accordance with a practice which generally provalls.
