THE CUBAN REBELLION.

Fifty Thousand Men Now in the Insurgent Army.

THREE-FOURTHS OF THEM ARMED.

Nineteen Filibustering Expeditions from This Country Have Been Successfully Landed—Statement of a Gentleman Who for Forty-five Years Resided on the Island.

NEW YORK, May 25.—A gentleman for forty-five years a resident of Cuba, in an interview with a representative of the Associated Press, gave the following timely resume of the past and present of the Cuban rebellion of today, or that initiated Feb. 24, 1895. Owing to his interests in Cuba and his strong sympathy for the Cubans he refused to allow his name to be used.

"The present rebellion," he said, "was devised and planned by Cubans in New York, and had many active agents among the best classes in central and eastern Cuba. Early in 1895 many of the colored or working classes were idle. Then on the 24th of February, 1895, a number raised the flag of rebellion and demanded a Cuba libre, or free Cuba. The standard of revolt was set up in a number of places in eastern Cuba, a rich province in which the blacks greatly outnumbered the whites. The blacks joined the petty leaders.

"Simultaneously, in central Cuba, small parties formed. At that time the movement was not deemed a really serious one. However, the small parties maintained their independence and grew in number and strength. Then they had few or no arms, but all had the death dealing machetes.

"The Spanish officials, not believing that the movement was serious, so informed the government, and made little of the whole uprising. Later Spain became much alarmed and sent out General Martnez Campos, who, instead of bringing the long promised reforms, brought soldiers, whereas if he had come alone, duly authorized to adjust all the differences, the extension of the rebellion would have been prevented and a settlement reached.

"While the insular events were multiplying Generalisimo Gomez and Antonio Maceo landed with a considerable force. After a long and dangerous march they joined a small party of rebels under General Jose Maceo, a brother of Antonio. They were joined later by the late Jose Marti, who had been the life and chief organizer of the Cuban junta in New York. Then General Cronier and his party landed. They were ambushed by the Spaniards, and Cronier was killed and the survivors made prisoners, and today are in the Moro Castle at Havana.

Gomez is a native of Santo Domingo, W. I.; the Maceos are blacks. When it became known that Gomez, Marti and Maceo had landed hundreds of Cubans abandoned their homes and joined them. The recruits were blacks and whites. The rebels made many prisoners, and thus secured arms. In the early days of the rebellion arms and supplies were sent to the rebels by their friends and sympathizers, and smuggled into the country. Then, as now, they had more men than could be armed.

"The people in central and eastern Cuba who are not openly on the side of the rebels sympathize with them and keep them fully advised of every movement of the royal troops.

In reply to a question regarding the rebel strength, the gentleman said that fully 50,000 men are in the various rebel commands, of whom about three-fourths have arms. They are about half whites and half negroes. The latter make the best soldiers. They sleep in the open and can march a whole day without food.

"Quite recently," said he, "when General Calixto Garcia landed, hundreds of whites and blacks instantly joined his standard, many of them in excellent social position. They abandoned all to fight for a 'free Cuba.' Garcia, like Gomez and others, made fine records in the earlier rebellion.

"The policy of the Spanish troops is one of mako-shifts rather than of search and battling with the Cubans. The climate now is a constant vapor bath, the new troops are not accustomed to it, and their constant marching and drinking impure water endangers their lives. In 1895 over 20,000 of them fell victims to tropical diseases, and this year the death rate will be appalling.

"It has been claimed by the Spaniards that Maceo's men cannot cross the new trocha. Despite all statements to the contrary the rebels cross the trocha whenever they please by attracting the attention of the troops at one place while at another point others dash across and are out of sight ere the small detachments can overcome their surprise. This Maceo has done repeatedly.

"The Cubans have orders to release all prisoners captured after securing their arms and supplies. On the other hand, however, Spanish commanders are responsible for the shooting of hundreds of defenseless persons and reporting the affair as a victory.

"The Cubans do not now hold any town, village or port, but when advised of expeditions the rebels concentrate near the coast and cover the landing of men and arms, having reduced this to a science. The steamers lay to night, outside of the marine league. The boats, painted a light drab, are swung over the side, when they are laden with men and arms. If a man of war appears she sees the steamer, while the boats, without lights, make for the shore. All the expeditions dispatched to Cuba have landed except that of the Comodoro. Nineteen expeditions have made successful trips."

ESCAPE OF THE BERMUDA.

NEW YORK, May 25.—News reached this city yesterday from Puerto Cortes, Honduras, that the steamship Bermuda, with a large party of filibusters and a cargo of ammunition and provisions, had a narrow escape from being captured by two Spanish warships on her last cruise to Cuba. This was the Bermuda's second successful trip. She crossed the St. Johns river bar on April 27. Lieutenant Colonel Leida Vidal was in charge of the expedition and the steamer was in command of Captain E. G. Kelly. The Bermuda here to a place on the northern coast of Cuba, some ten miles east of Cardenas, and at once began to lower her boats.

It was said by one in authority that the first boat capsized, being overloaded, and that five men were drowned, among them N. De Cardenas, a brother of Colonel Nicholas De Cardenas, one of the insurgent leaders. The cargo was all landed, when one of the boats got adrift. Some of the party began shouting. Suddenly the flash of an electric light was seen directly over the ship's masthead. The shouts of the men on the boat had been heard by a Spanish warship, which was patrolling the coast. The boat had just left the ship's side and was being pulled toward the shore when the search light shot across the Bermuda's bow. The Spanish captain had discovered the filibuster. There was a flash and a roar and a solid shot passed about three hundred feet astern of the steamship.

Captain Kelly headed his ship eastward and was soon pulling away from the Spaniard. A few moments after a second shot was fired, and this went wide. Then it was discovered that two Spanish gunboats were in pursuit. The race between warships and the filibuster was an exciting one, but the Bermuda had no trouble in showing the Spaniards her heels. When day dawned nothing could be seen of the gunboats.

No Cuban Prisoners Released. TAMPA, Fla., May 25.—Passengers arriving here last night on the steamer Mascotte from Cuba, reported that General Weyler released all the Spanish prisoners on the island last week in honor of the birthday of the king of Spain. No Cuban prisoners were released, however.

THE DEADLY GASOLINE.

It Nearly Exterminates a Whole Family in Chicago.

FOUR DEAD AND ANOTHER DYING

The Mother Was Preparing the Morning Meal with a Gasoline Stove When the Reservoir Containing the Fluid Exploded with Terrible Results.

CHICAGO, May 25.—By the explosion of a gasoline stove on Townsend street yesterday a family of six persons was almost exterminated. Four are dead and a fifth is so badly burned that death is almost certain. The names of the dead are: Otto Malm, a carpenter, 22 years old; Sina Malm, aged 8 years; Hillya Malm, 6 years; Otto Malm, Jr., 3 years. The list of the injured are: Mrs. Ella Malm, 22 years old, burned about the hands, arms and face, will recover; Ellen Malm, 5 years, severely burned about the head and body, will probably die.

Mrs. Malm, the wife and mother, had arisen to prepare breakfast, and her husband and children were still asleep in bed. She lighted a gasoline stove, when the reservoir which holds the supply of oil exploded, throwing the burning fluid about the room. Before the sleeping members of the family could be taken out, or even warned, they were shut in by flames and burned almost to a crisp. When the explosion occurred Mrs. Malm rushed frantically from the dwelling and screamed for help. She then returned to the house, soon reappearing with her 3-year-old child in her arms. Pieces of burning clothing still adhered to the burned flesh of the babe, and it died shortly afterwards. The screams of the mother had by this time brought the neighbors to the scene. The fire department was summoned and the firemen rushed into the rooms and removed the inmates, while water was thrown upon the flames.

The mother's burns were attended to by the doctors, and it was found they were comparatively light. She was removed to the home of friends.

Two Murdered by a Policeman.

ATTLEBORO, Mass., May 25.—A Sunday outing at Robinson's farm, South Attleboro, was brought to a sudden termination yesterday by a tragedy in which two of the party were killed. Policeman John Norney is held on a charge of murder. Michael Conners, 49 years old, and Daniel Mountain, 36, were the victims of the shooting. The former was a laborer and the latter a liquor dealer. Norney and three officers went to the farm in citizen's clothes. They were asked to leave or pay a dollar each. Norney, who was spokesman, refused and drew a pistol. Conners moved to take it from him, and was shot, dying instantly. Mountain protested, and was also shot, dying beside Conners' body. Norney was then overpowered by the other policemen. He says he lost control of himself, and did not know what he was doing.

Are They Afraid of Vales?

LESTON, May 25.—The Field urges the exclusion of aliens from participation in the regatta at Henley, saying: "It is better to pass a veto immediately than to wait until after the regatta, when, if we were to lose a valuable challenge prize, the motive might be interpreted to be faint-heartedness under defeat. Nothing can be more one-sided for the British than that aliens should have the option of ignoring Henley when they are weak and competing when they are especially strong."

Swindled the Wholesale Merchants.

NEW YORK, May 25.—Henry Zelling, of 207 Lenox avenue, was arrested yesterday. With Franz Zedig and William Matzner, captured Saturday, he is charged with swindling wholesale merchants and jobbers. They are alleged to have operated under the name of B. Blank & Co., of No. 23 Murray street, this city. The police say that a large number of letters were seized, and that those show the men to have operated in a wide field. It is alleged that large quantities of goods were ordered in the name of B. Blank & Co., and mostly the orders were filled promptly, under the idea that the goods were for a Greenwich street firm by the same name. It is alleged that a large quantity of goods is stored here or awaits delivery to the men in freight houses.
