New Bunco Scheme.

Three young men of town are operating a bunco-scheme which is new here and are Frank Krievenus for throwing stones at his reaping quite a harvest. Last night they house. The cases will go to court. made at least twenty dollars by it. To-day complaint was made to the police authorities and if restitution is not made to the victims there will be arrests. The operation is as follows: One of the young men carries in his vest pocket a small piece of leather in which is rolled a silver half dime. A confederate slips the piece of leather from the pucket, presumably without the knowledge of No. 1. Confederate No. 2 unrolls the leader, removes the half dime, and places it in his own vest pocket. The leather is then again rolled up and replaced in the pocket from which it was taken. All this is done so that the bystanders may see it and enjoy the joke. No. 2 then asks No. 1 why he carries the piece of leather in his vest pecket. No. 1 dall struck out 8 and Shore 6 replies that he keeps a coin valuable as a keepsake resided in it. No. 2 declares there is await the climax. Nos, I and 2 engage in an 85 that the coin is in the leather. No. 2 re-plies that if be had the money be would bet, became he knows the coin is not there. At this point some by-stander who witnessed No. 2 remove the coin discovers what he believes is a sure thing and steps forward with five dollars, saying. "I'll take that bet." After the amoney is put up No. 1 pulls the strip of will be an important one. There are two leather from his pocket and squeezes a half murder cases to be disposed of during the of the strip.

Exciting Runaway.

An exciting runaway took place last even-ing on South Main street by a team owned by Joseph Yedusky. While the latter was delivering groceries in a house on West Pop-iar street the horse suddenly started on a terrific run down that thoroughfare, turning at the corner of Main street, where the body of the wagen was thrown on the sidewalk and the truck upset, breaking the bolt in the single-tree. This freed the horse who ran to the railroad crossing near the Peunsylvania deput where he was estight. The damage dotte was slight.
