SCHOOL BOARD MEETING.

The Board of Treasurer-elect Dangler Presented and Approved.

A special meeting of the School Board was held last evening for the transaction of general business. The members present were: President Price, Sullivan, Hanna, O'Brien, Baugh, Church, Edwards, Trezise, Morgan, Higgins, Devitt, Lee and James.

A representative of the Puck Heating and Ventilating Company was present and stated that the heating apparatus for the new school building was on the ground, and that the company was therefore entitled to its first payment.

The Secretary read a communication from State Superintendent Schaeffer, in which he stated that his time would be occupied by the examinations at the different Normal schools all of the present month, and along with other engagements he would not be able to reach the case of Prof. Bogart, against whom charges have been preferred, before the middle of July. The Superintendent also stated that he had two other similar cases on hand, and that he would keep the Board informed of the case as it progressed.

The High school committee reported that everything was ready for the commencement exercises on the 17th and 18th insts.

The Daughters of Liberty were granted permission to raise a flag over the Union street school building on July 4th.

Mr. Lee called the attention of the Board to the leaky condition of the roofs of the school buildings, and suggested that they receive a coat of paint. The matter was referred to the building committee with power to act.

The finance committee was instructed to renew any notes that were due, after which the Board adjourned.

How He Did It.

How did Strouse, the leading Jeweler of Shenandoah, succeed in getting the contracts to furnish the Shenandoah, Girardville and Mt. Carmel High schools with commencement rings? That is an easy question to answer. Simply by offering the best goods, the latest novelties, at prices that most jewelers outside the large cities ask for inferior articles. Strouse, the Jeweler, not only adopts this plan to win purchasers of rings, but extends it to sales of watches, chains, lockets, gold and silverware of all kinds for all purposes, and never makes a sale on exaggerated representations. During his several years experience in Shenandoah "Strouse, the Jeweler," has become the keynote for all seeking the best jewelry line at prices that are low in comparison with those charged by other places. Never fail, when in search of jewelry, or gold or silverware, to see the stock of Strouse, the Jeweler, North Main street.

EISENHOWER MURDER TRIAL

lower's) wife when he arrived home. Eisenhower agreed to this, but upon arriving home commenced to fight with his wife. Schwandt interfered and in the struggle that followed Eisenhower sustained a fractured rib. The District Attorney then touched upon suits before Justice against Eisenhower on complaint of the wife for assault and battery and gradually brought up a review of the circumstances of the shooting. At this point Mrs. John Schwandt, the widow of the murdered man, her two little girls and Mrs. William Schwandt became so much affected that they wept audibly and they were induced to leave the court room temporarily, under escort of ex-Chief Burgess James Smith, who is looking after details of the trial in connection with the District Attorney's office. Mr. Bechtel, in outlining the law, told the jury that if in his intent to shoot William Schwandt Eisenhower killed John Schwandt he was just as guilty of murder in the first degree as if he intended to poison William Schwandt and gave the poison to John. Mr. Bechtel also stated that the Commonwealth proposed insisting upon a verdict of murder in the first degree, upon the grounds of intent and malice and leave the decision to the jury upon the evidence. Mr. Bechtel spoke fifteen minutes.

The first witness called for the prosecution was Mrs. Rachel Schwandt, widow of the murdered man. John F. Whalen, Esq., conducted the direct examination, which opened with interrogatories concerning the name, etc., of herself and the deceased and the circumstances under which he was brought home on that fatal day. Mrs. Schwandt said she had two daughters present in court. The witness wept while on the stand, but succeeded in sufficiently controlling her emotions to answer the questions with distinctness. Mrs. Schwandt said she had been married ten years. William and John Schwandt were twin brothers, there was a close resemblance to each other and both worked at the Turkey Run colliery. Her husband lived from the 17th to the 20th of February. He was unconscious from Wednesday morning, 22nd, until he died.

Congressman Brumm conducted the cross-examination of the witness, but made it very brief and only put three questions as to the condition of her husband when he reached home.

Dr. J. G. Church was the second witness. He said he was a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, resided at Shenandoah, and practiced as a physician almost continually during the past nine years. He was called in to attend the victim after the shooting. He described the condition of the victim and the nature of the wound. Schwandt did not suffer particularly from loss of blood. The bullet entered the back and almost entirely severed the spinal cord, causing paralysis of the lower limbs. The cause of death was due to the severing of the spinal cord. Dr. J. C. Biddle extracted the bullet on February 18th. Dr. J. S. Callen was present. The witness produced bullet. Schwandt was conscious when Dr. Church was first called and remained so almost up to latter part of the last day. He had inflammation of the brain and that caused him to be delirious on the last day. The severing of the spinal cord by the bullet was the cause of the inflammation. The bullet wound was necessarily fatal.

Cross-examined by Mr. Brumm, Dr. Church told how he found John Schwandt and proceeded to make an examination of the wound, the time involved and who were present, among them being Drs. J. Pierce Roberts, J. S. Callen and D. W. Straub. All failed to successfully probe for the bullet and Dr. Church concluded to send for Dr. Biddle and an operation was performed the next morning. Mr. Brumm put Dr. Church through a rigid examination as to the treatment he gave the patient pending the operation, the steps attending the operation. The doctor was taken close to the jury box and, prompted by Mr. Brumm, described with pencil and paper the location of the wound and the incisions that were made for the operation. So much time was spent by Mr. Brumm in this line of examination many formed the opinion that the defense may assert that the bullet wound was not necessarily fatal. The patient had not recovered from the operation two hours after the operation. Dr. Church testified, but his condition was good. His pulse was as normal as could be expected and his breathing as natural as it could be under the influence of drugs. His heart was acting nicely and not as if under the influence of drugs. The patient's condition was also very favorable in the evening at 6 o'clock, but he was still under the effects of the opiates. The doctor succeeded in getting him awake for a few minutes to ask him how he felt. Dr. Church was closely examined as to all his visits to the patient and the treatment.

Mr. Brumm: "If the wound was necessarily fatal, why all this operation and treatment?"

Dr. Church: "To do all we could for him. To allay suffering. The effect of the injury was known, but not the extent."

Dr. Church said that in his professional opinion there was no risk in pushing the operation to extract the bullet after the operation had gone so far as to disclose that spinal cord had been affected, neither was there any good to be obtained. Dr. Church was cross-examined for about one hour and twenty-five minutes, and left the stand at 11:30.

Dr. J. Pierce Roberts, of Shenandoah, was called but only occupied the stand about five minutes. No cross examination.

Dr. J. C. Biddle, of the Miners' hospital at Fountain Springs, was called and subjected to an examination for about 25 minutes. The doctor described an examination of the wound and an operation performed upon Schwandt after the shooting. He said the only chance the patient had was to remove the pressure on the spinal cord. The operation was performed by making an incision in the back. He found the bullet imbedded about 10 inches in the vertebra, and severed the spinal cord about half. Aside from the wound the deceased was a healthy and strong man. Inflammation of the spinal cord caused by the bullet was the cause of death. The injury meant perpetual paralysis, whether the bullet was removed or not. The spinal cord can be repaired, the spinal column may be repaired, but never the cord.

The Commonwealth introduced two photographs of the locality where the shooting occurred. They were admitted without objection.

Eimer F. Bechtel, of Pottsville, mining engineer for the Girard Estate, identified maps of the locality of the shooting. The morning session then closed.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon session was opened at 2:30 o'clock, when Surveyor Bechtel was called to the stand again and described maps he had made.

Harry W. Smith, of Shenandoah, son of ex-Chief Burgess James Smith, was the next witness. He told the same story as that which he testified to at the hearing before Justice T. T. Williams. Smith is a painter by trade and was lettering a window at the Charmey saloon, at the lower end of Main street. He saw two miners coming up the railroad through the cut. When they were a short distance from the boardwalk crossing the track Eisenhower walked out and shot John Schwandt in the back. The witness and George Boyer chased the prisoner over the rocks and finally captured him at the lower end of Main street. On the way to Justice Williams' office Eisenhower said he had shot William Schwandt. In the Justice office the prisoner said William Schwandt had broken up his home and he had shot him.

Smith was still on the stand at 3:30 and had not yet been cross-examined.

Killed the Hog.

A ferocious bull dog is kept in the slaughter house of Henry Hoehler, near the Cambridge colliery. Yesterday afternoon the dog broke loose, and made an attack upon two hogs that were enjoying themselves in the creek near by. The hogs belonged to a resident of Turkey Run, and one of them was a fine porker weighing 250 pounds. The dog attacked the hog in the water, and after a severe clubbing by several men, and the water in the dam at the Cambridge colliery had been turned on, the dog finally released his hold only to attack the other hog. He was finally knocked insensible and returned to the slaughter house. One of the hogs has since died, and it is probable the other will not succeed the attack.

Easily Satisfied.

The HERALD yesterday gave an account of Charles Benedict, a Polish resident of the first ward, losing $400 in cash and subsequently finding $150 in a mattress which he had previously, but unsuccessfully searched. Joe Baronski was arrested on suspicion of having knowledge as to the whereabouts of the balance and Justice Lawlor held him under $500 bail for further hearing. Last night Benedict appeared before the Justice and stated that another search had revealed $150 more in the overcoat pocket of another man in the boarding house and he was satisfied that Baronski was innocent. Notwithstanding he was still short $40 Benedict refused to press the case against Baronski, or cause the arrest of the owner of the coat in which the second $150 had been found.

Knocked Off a Train.

Last evening a Pole jumped on an east-bound Lehigh Valley coal train near the red bridge and refused to get off when told to do so. A brakeman and the Pole exchanged some hot words, after which the speed checker shot out his right and the Pole went headlong off the train. The Pole's face was pretty badly bruised in the fall.

Full Details Gladly Given.

A Railroad Official's Experience.

MR. EDWARD EDMONDS, long connected with railroad construction in Nebraska, writes: "My heart troubled and pained me for 19 years. Shortness of breath was the constant and most common symptom. Intense, excruciating pain, generally followed any severe exertion. Faintness, hunger without any appetite; fluttering that made me clutch my breast, and palpitation that often suggested me as if I would fall, were frequent attacks. Again, everything would turn black if I arose from a stooping posture quickly. Sleepless nights with their prostrating unrest were numerous and I could get no rest day or night. I consulted leading physicians and tried advertised remedies. They gave me no relief. One of Dr. Miles' circulars described my case so exactly that I took Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and I am now a well man. I hope every one troubled with heart disease will try Dr. Miles' remedies. If they will write me personally, I will gladly give them full details of my experience." EDW. EDMONDS. P. O. Box 55, David City, Nebraska. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is sold on guarantee that first bottle benefits or money refunded.
