THE THIRD DAY OF THE TRIAL.

The Prosecution Calls Many Witnesses in the Eisenhower Case.

THE 'HERALD'S' DETAILED REPORT

William Schwindt, Brother of the Murdered
Man, Was Called to the Stand This Morning, to Testify—The Case
Causing Much Interest.

Special to EVENING HERALD.

PORTSVILLE, June 17.—The trial of Theodore Eisenhower for the murder of John Schwindt attracts large audiences before Judge Savidge and the faces of many of the spectators assume an expression of horror as some of the witnesses describe the cold-blooded manner in which Eisenhower stole upon and shot his victim. Despite the harrowing recitals of some witnesses Mrs. Schwindt, the widow of the victim, retains her seat at the rear of the prosecuting counsel, but in full view of the prisoner. Mrs. Schwindt and Eisenhower sit directly opposite each other, the tables of the lawyers being between them. Eisenhower's expression of countenance remains stolid at all times. There is a natural scowl upon his face. He was seen to smile when he first entered the court on Monday, but since that time his face has denoted nothing but cold indifference. At no time has he betrayed any nervousness, not even when some witnesses have given evidence that seems to seal his fate. Mrs. Schwindt's appearance is in great contrast with the prisoner's. When not nervously fingering her handkerchief as her hands rest nervously in her lap, she weeps violently, but silently. At times her sobs convulse her whole frame. She weeps most of the time while in court and it is feared that she may break down before the trial ends. Mrs. William Schwindt is also frequently affected, and the mother of the victim occasionally gives way to her emotions.

The closing hours of yesterday's session was taken up by witnesses who saw or were near to the scene of the murder. They told their stories substantially as they were given at the coroner's inquest and in such a manner as to leave no doubt that Eisenhower shot John Schwindt. Mr. Brumm, Eisenhower's senior counsel, listens to these recitals with apparently as much indifference as his client, and spends very little time in cross-examining the witnesses who make them.

John A. Lewis, carpenter, of Shenandoah, told of the shooting as he saw it and made a reputation as being the most dramatic witness that has appeared thus far in the case. He took the revolver Eisenhower used and initiated the manner in which the prisoner approached the victim with much earnestness. Mr. Lewis had testified that after the shooting Eisenhower turned about and looked him square in the eyes. Mr. Lewis said he could have counted about 150 while Eisenhower stared at him. Upon request of Mr. Whalen Mr. Lewis stared at the lawyer as he says Eisenhower stared at him. Time passes slowly under such circumstances and when Mr. Lewis retired to his seat Mr. Whalen asked, "Is that the length of time Eisenhower looked at you?" Mr. Lewis responded, "Yes, a little longer than that." To the surprise of almost everybody in the court room Judge Savidge, who had held his watch, exclaimed, "30 seconds!" Upon this Mr. Lewis rejoined, "O, no, no; he stared one, or two minutes, at least." Mr. Whalen remarked that there was a vast difference between moments and minutes and Mr. Brumm nodded approvingly. It will be remembered that in the close of the Briggs trial Mr. Brumm brought the difference between inches and feet into play with great advantage in favor of the accused.

Mr. Lewis said that when Eisenhower shot Schwindt his action was perfectly cool and deliberate.

George L. Boyer, painter, told how he and Harry Smith chased and caught Eisenhower after the shooting. Eisenhower offered no resistance. When in the looking Boyer told Eisenhower that he had shot the wrong man and the prisoner replied, "Well, if I did, I am very sorry." In Justice Williams' office Eisenhower said Bill Schwindt had parted him and his wife.

Patrick Mohagan called. J. was coming home from work with John Schwindt when he was shot by Eisenhower. We walked together up the slope of Turkey Run colliery and to the place of the shooting. We were walking side by side, Schwindt being to my right. I didn't hear any noise behind me until the shot was fired. It was a cold day and we had our caps pulled down over our ears. When the shot went off Schwindt grabbed me by the coat and said "In shot." I stopped and he sank down. He called for the people to take him home. I looked for assistance. I didn't know Eisenhower or see him before the shooting, but immediately after I saw him. He stood there for about three seconds and then ran. I did not follow, because I had all I could do to get Schwindt off the track before a train would come. We took Schwindt into a saloon and took him home about five minutes later. After he was shot Schwindt said, "Eisenhower shot me; he took me for the wrong man."

On cross-examination Mr. Brumm simply asked Dougherty how long he had resided in Shenandoah and if he knew where John or William Schwindt lived at the time of the shooting. Dougherty replied that he did not.

John Fallon was called. He said he worked with Dougherty at Turkey Run colliery and walked home behind Dougherty and Schwindt. The shooting was over when he reached the scene. He asked Schwindt if he could walk and the victim replied in the negative, adding that he was dead from the hips down. Fallon assisted in getting the man home. Schwindt, he said, was a strong and able man. He and William Schwindt very much resembled each other.

Mr. Brumm dismissed Fallon with a very short cross-examination in line with the questions addressed to Dougherty on cross-examination.

Edward McAtee, watchman at the Main street crossing of the Lehigh Valley railroad. He saw Schwindt fall and a man run away. He helped to get Schwindt away from the

MCKINLEY AND MORTON.

They Will be Nominated on a Gold Standard Platform.

St. Louis, June 17, 1:55 p. m.—The Republican National Convention assembled here at 10 o'clock this morning, but it was some time after that when the delegates were all seated.

The committee on permanent organization submitted the name of Senator J. M. Thurston, of Nebraska, for permanent chairman, with the list of other permanent officers. They were endorsed by the unanimous vote of the convention.

Chairman Thurston called for the report of the committee on resolutions. Senator Lodge stated that the committee was unable to report until the afternoon session.

General Grosvenor, of Ohio, sent to the chairman a letter from Mr. Fort stating that the committee on credentials would be unable to report at this session. Buschell then moved, at 1:55 p. m., that the convention adjourn until 2:00 o'clock, which was adopted and the convention adjourned.

The Morton Vice-Presidential boom has grown to great proportions, despite the opposition of Warner Miller and other anti-Platt men from New York. Senator Quay and the Pennsylvania delegation, with the exception of Martin and Magee and their followers, are working for Morton for Vice President. Foraker, of Ohio, has agreed to nominate Governor Morton for Vice President after the settlement of the Presidential nomination. This means Morton's nomination with little opposition.

Mr. O'Hara's Benediction.

O'Hara, of town, and Miss Eliza Morris, one of Ashland's leading society belles. Mr. M. J. O'Hara and Miss Ella Egan, of town, supported the bridal couple. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. William McMurtrie, where cordial greetings were bestowed. The presents were numerous and costly. Mr. O'Hara is a commercial traveler and is very popular. He and his fair bride will reside in a handsome home on South White street. Misses Sallie and Mary Delaney were in attendance. The HERALD joins their many friends in extending their congratulations.

Hon. D. D. Phillips' Illness.

Hon. D. D. Phillips, of Gordon, on Monday went to Philadelphia to enter the German hospital, where he may undergo an operation to relieve him of a tumorous affection of the stomach. A letter received from Mr. Phillips this morning brings the cheering news that his physician, as the result of another examination yesterday, does not think his condition quite as serious as appeared to be the case at the first examination and entertains strong hopes that the operation necessary will be attended with less danger than was apprehended, and thinks his chances for recovery much better. Mr. Phillips will spend Sunday in Atlantic City returning to the city Monday for consultation between Drs. Deaver and DeCosta.

ON A GOLD STANDARD PLATFORM.

The Credentials Committee Refuses to Recognize the Addicks Delegation from Delaware, and Higgins Will Represent the State in the Convention—Ex-Senator Miller and Other Anti-Platt Leaders in New York Working to Prevent Governor Morton's Nomination for Vice President.

St. Louis, June 17.—Precisely at 12:30 o'clock yesterday Thomas H. Carter, chairman of the Republican national committee, stepped to the front of the platform in the auditorium hall and, with a rap of the historic gavel made for the occasion, called to order the eleventh national convention of the Republican party. It took but a moment to bring the great assemblage to quietness, and when Rabbi Samuel Saxe came forward to offer the prayer for divine guidance every one in the hall arose and remained standing during the invocation.

The secretary, Joseph H. Manley, of the national committee, read the call for the convention, after which Chairman Carter said:

"Gentlemen of the convention: By direction of the committee I present, subject to your approval for your temporary chairman, Hon. Charles W. Fairbanks, of Indiana."

The motion as put by Chairman Carter, was carried by a unanimous vote, and the

CARTER CALLS THE CONVENTION TO ORDER. convention received the result with cheers. Chairman Carter: "I now have the distinguished honor to present to you, as your temporary presiding officer, the Hon. Charles W. Fairbanks, of Indiana."

As Mr. Fairbanks came forward the convention heartily applauded him. Mr. Fairbanks' address was liberally applauded throughout. Certain parts of it were specially cheered, not only by the convention, but by the immense audience in the galleries. Among the points which elicited special commendation were the following:

"The government cannot transmute silver into gold, nor can it by unlimited fiat make fifty cents worth one hundred cents. It requires as much labor to earn a poor dollar as it requires to earn a good one."

"We protest against the policy of favoring our commercial honor. We protest against the Democratic attempt to lower the standard of our currency to the low level of Mexico, China and Japan."

"The present standard of our currency, our honor, will be safely respected and preserved by the Republican party."

All resolutions were ordered referred to the various committees, and at 1:35 p. m., on motion of General Grosvenor, of Ohio, the convention adjourned until 10 o'clock to-day.

The committee on resolutions met at the Lindell hotel at 2:30 p. m. Over half an hour was spent in a general conference and in unloading the resolutions that had been referred to different members. Some of the members had their pockets full of papers. Even the silver men are divided on the phraseology of their plank, and each silver member of the committee had his own version.

Senator Lodge called the committee to order and presented the name of Senator Foraker, of Ohio, for chairman. The silver men presented the name of Senator Dubois, of Idaho. Then Charles E. Pror, Foraker's law partner, who was with him, was made teller and temporary secretary. The roll was called, showing thirty-nine present and twelve absent, and an official list of the membership was made up before the states were called on the vote for chairman.

This roll call resulted: Foraker, 35; Dubois, 4. The former was declared by Senator Lodge the chairman, when the committee began an informal session in outlining its work.

The four votes cast for Dubois were those of Messrs. Teller of Colorado, Hartman of Montana, Mott of North Carolina and Cannon of Utah.

When Mr. Foraker's election was announced he took the chair, acknowledging the compliment with only a few words. "I sincerely thank you for the honor you have conferred upon me," he said, "but I think that I can best show my appreciation of the compliment by immediately proceeding with the business which we have been selected to perform." With this he called for suggestions, and the business of the meeting began.

When Governor Foraker announced the endorsement of the resolutions commit-
