EVENING HERALD

FRIDAY, JUNE 10, 1896.

A Business Education.

Shenandoah, Pa., May 29, 1896.
DEAR FRIEND: Business offers excellent opportunities to bright young people who understand book-keeping, stenography and typewriting. It pays better than teaching, and there are twenty openings in business to one in teaching.

It will take you from two to four years to prepare to teach and but one year to complete book-keeping, shorthand and prepare for business.

Hon. O. F. Williams, of Scranton, is pleased to quote in all of his literature that 234 students and graduates were located in good paying positions last year. This credit is due me, as I was the Principal. What I did for Scranton, I can and will do for Shenandoah. My success in placing students in positions is due to my acquaintance with business men, formed while engaged as auditor and expert accountant, and in my knowing, by actual experience, just what a book-keeper and stenographer must have to succeed.

I have made large plans to place students in good positions and shall do my best to aid every competent graduate of the College. Graduates from the High and Grammar schools are well prepared to take the College course.

The College is second to none in the state. During June, July and August, I shall have special classes in Penmanship, Book-keeping and Shorthand. You may take one or all of the studies, and give the work as much attention as you wish.

You can learn to write and keep a set of books in three months. The faculty is the best in the land. My students are preferred by business men as Book-keepers, Stenographers, and Penmen. For information call at the College or address the President.

Sincerely yours,
S. I. WOOD.

The Fourth at Columbia Park.

The Columbia Hose and Steam Fire Engine Company No. 1 are actively engaged in making preparations for their annual picnic on July 4th at Columbia Park. The people of Shenandoah will be furnished with sufficient amusement at home without going to other towns on that day. The Columbia will offer many attractions, among them a bicycle race and a rock drilling contest. Prizes will be offered to the winners. Assist the fire laddies on this occasion, as they are deserving of it.

Fayne's Girardville Nursery.

We still have on hand a lot of fine geraniums, fuchsias, verbenas, and other garden plants. It is not too late to plant. Prices on these plants were never lower. 6-10-1f

Broke His Wagon.

P. J. Stanton, the fish dealer, yesterday had the occasion of applying to several of his neighbors for damages, caused by two boys named Sheeler and Purcell, who threw big stones upon his new top wagon, breaking the stays and tearing the cover. Mr. Stanton was in consultation with the parents of the children for recovery of damages, which they refuse to comply with. He has sufficient evidence to convict the boys and some law suits may yet arise. The boys are said to be a very mischievous lot and should be disciplined.

PRISONER TELLS HIS STORY

close to the spinal column, the wound being inward and to the left of the column and the course inward and to the right, and you would find the pulse normal, the respiration normal, the heart in good condition, the patient conscious and part of the body, from the waist down, paralyzed—under those conditions, doctor, what is the proper thing for an experienced medical man to do first?" This question had its effect upon the spectators and they leaned forward anxiously to catch the answer the witness should give, but they were disappointed, as Mr. Whalen objected and the court sustained him.

Mr. Brumm: Under the statement made, doctor, would it be necessary at once to probe for that ball?
Mr. Whalen's objection to this question was overruled and the doctor answered that it was not necessary, but the physician could do so, exercising great care.

Mr. Brumm: If, upon an attempt to probe, you were to discover that you could not probe, would it be proper, under the condition of the patient as stated, to take with any operation until nature had taken its course sufficiently to develop a change or other facts?

To this the Commonwealth also objected, but was overruled and the witness answered, "If the patient was in that condition and they were not able to follow with the probe, the proper thing to do would be to wait until further developments." One or two questions followed and it became evident from the answers made by Dr. Halberstadt that he should be better enlightened as to the actual condition of the patient and other circumstances and the court stenographer was requested to read over the testimony given by Dr. Biddle.

This constituted some time and the Commonwealth was then inclined to have Dr. Church's evidence read, but the idea was abandoned when Judge Savidge said with some impatience that if that was to be insisted upon he would adjourn court and have the stenographer read the testimony to the witness privately, as he would not sit on the bench and listen to the long recital, nor compel the jury to do so.

After Dr. Biddle's testimony was read Dr. Halberstadt answered, "I should have waited further developments—worse symptoms."

Mr. Brumm: An incision having been made large enough to get to the bone and finding, after you got there, that the bullet had passed through the canal of the vertebra, and got beyond that and was imbedded in the vertebra, under the condition that patient was in as described, was it proper to proceed further at that time?

Dr. Halberstadt: I should not, as the bullet then could not do any more harm.

Q. Is there anyway of steadying a trephining machine on the spinal column, without a center point, without hard pressure?
A. Not but what you can exercise with your hands.

Q. Won't the trephining instrument wobble?
A. It depends on who is holding it. It takes considerable strength to steady it.

After being handled a string of vertebra that rattled as they were passed over and answering a question or two concerning the probable result of certain wounds to a vertebra Dr. Halberstadt replied that an operation performed as described under the circumstances would have tended to increase inflammation.

Q. After an operation of that kind being performed, would you be willing to say what the immediate cause of death was?
A. In the efforts to relieve this paralysis the operation was done, but, as the result shows, it was unfortunate.

Q. Do you maintain that under the conditions as read to you that no one could tell what was the immediate cause of death, or whether it was entirely due to one, or another cause?
A. I don't know how it was done, or what the symptoms were that followed.

Q. In case the doctor had caught hold of the bullet to pull it out and the instrument had slipped and he had to catch it the second time to pull it out, would that increase the inflammation?
A. I think it would.

On cross-examination by Mr. Whalen the witness stated that he knew of Dr. Biddle as a man of high standing in his profession and having seen the patient, having a knowledge of his condition, to know as a professional man what was best to be done under the circumstances than one who was not there, but it was unusual to go into that man's vertebra at that time.

Q. You are not able to say it aggravated his case any?
A. Unfortunately I know the result.

When the jury entered the box this morning Judge Savidge became apprehensive of the condition of Juror Levi Kissinger, of Schuylkill Haven. He asked the juror several questions as to his condition and finally concluded to send for a physician and a constable and was sent for Dr. Brand, who made an examination in the court's private chamber and pronounced the juror able to proceed in the case.

The first witness put on the stand this morning was Richard Warren, of Shenandoah, who testified that the reputation of the prisoner for peace and good order was good. Upon cross-examination Warren admitted that he spent three years in the Potomac jail.

Q. What were you in jail for?
A. For nothing.

The witness subsequently admitted that he served the time for attempted rape on a child.

EISENHOWER ON THE STAND.
Theodore Eisenhower, the prisoner, was called in his own behalf at 9:30 o'clock and testified: "I live in Shenandoah and have lived there about 13 years. I am a laborer. I drove teams for Charley Titman and the Reading Company. I was teamster at the Turkey Run colliery at the time I had the trouble with William Schwindt.
Q. Do you remember the night of the 17th of August of last year?
A. It was the night of the last pay day of August, as far as I can remember, on the 20th or 21st of August. It was on Saturday night. I took the paymasters from the colliery to the depot at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. I then went home, put my team up and had my supper. I then told my wife and daughter to get ready to go up town and would buy each a dress. We went up town and they went into a dry goods store. I gave the woman all the money except a dollar and they bought clothes. I went up to John Wagner's and about 10:30 or 11 o'clock that night I got home and found the door locked. I rapped on it, but got no answer. I then started up town, but changed my mind and went to the boiler house of the colliery and there met William Schwindt. I told him I couldn't get in the house. He said he would go home with me, but I said I would stop over night. Schwindt said I would spend my clothes by laying down in the boiler house. He asked me three or four times to go home with him. When we got to the door he rapped and the woman opened the door. We went into the sitting room and sat down. My two boys and daughter and the lady were there beside Schwindt, my wife and myself. Schwindt wanted me to lay down. I sat there about five minutes and then I laid down. The woman told the two boys to go up stairs. Shortly after the daughter took the baby upstairs. My wife and Schwindt were in the room with me. They were standing at the table in the center of the room with their heads close together. Schwindt told the woman to turn down the lamp light and they talked more. The rest I couldn't understand. The woman turned down the light and called the lady over to the cupboard. I continued to lay on the floor about two minutes and then Schwindt sat on a chair and the woman sat on his lap. I got up and got the woman by the clothes. Schwindt got behind me and gave me a kick in the ribs and called for one of my ribs was broke. I laid there I don't know how long and when I got up there was no one but me in the house. We had eight children at that time, but one has since died.

Eisenhower then detailed the search for her went to her father's to return to the house until the next day. While he was up town he swore out a warrant for William Schwindt's arrest for assault and battery and was himself arrested on complaint of his wife. He caused his wife's arrest and both of them went to the jail. Schwindt had each suit settled without going to court. But Eisenhower and his wife separated.

Eisenhower continued: Shortly before the shooting my wife told me I was not a good man as Schwindt and Schwindt told me one Sunday that he had been intimate with Mrs. Eisenhower.

DAY OF SHOOTING.

I met my son Ike on one of the streets of Shenandoah and took him into Keithan's and bought him candy. I asked him if he would go and live with me. He said his mother told him that if he met me on the street and talked to me she would whip him. I left the child near Coal street and when I left him we both cried. [The prisoner wept and could not answer Mr. Brumm for several seconds.] I believe I then went to Grader's as soon as he had a drink of whiskey. I don't know how long I stayed there. Then I got on a street car. I wanted to go to Mahanoy City. I don't remember where I got off. I did not know where to go. I had my mind made up to go to Ashland, and this was my first thought. I started to go to Turkey Run to see my brother there and get the address of my brother in Ashland. When I went down near Turkey Run colliery I couldn't see my brother, or his team around. I started back and went to the water tank near the Pennsylvania depot. I walked up the railroad a ways and just as I came to the crossing I thought to myself, "Where will I go now?" From that time on I don't know what I saw, and this perhaps was the last thing Schwindt, I pity her, by God! [Here the prisoner broke down and wept for several seconds.]

Mr. Brumm: "Do you remember having done anything to Schwindt?"
A. I don't know. My mind was overthrown. The next thing I knew they had me in the lockup. That is all I remember. I don't remember having shot Schwindt. They told me I had shot him.

Court adjourned at noon while Eisenhower, the prisoner, was being cross-examined by Mr. Whalen. The prosecuting attorney had the witness in hand for one hour and it was a rigid examination. Eisenhower, however, did not vary from the story he told in direct examination. He admitted that on the night of the trouble in his house he had drunk some beer, but denied that he was drunk. He also denied the statements of his daughter and Schwindt that he asked them to take his clothes off. While he was laying on the floor he occasionally opened his eyes and in that manner knew what was going on. When he jumped up he didn't catch hold of Schwindt nor tried to reach him. He said he did not recollect having a chair in his hand; wouldn't swear he did and wouldn't swear he didn't.

Eisenhower told his story in a straightforward and deliberate manner. He was perfectly cool while upon the stand, and thinks well before answering the questions asked by the attorneys. So far the impression was a quiet one. He was not afraid of the prosecuting attorney without uttering a word, and when the prisoner's attention is again called to the question he would wanderingly ask, "Well, what is it?"

The prisoner certainly presents the appearance of one whose mind has been affected, and caused Mr. Whalen to ask him if he had spoken to anybody during the noon recess; if they had asked him how to act and answer questions. Eisenhower said he had spoken to no one, only to the court attendant, and that was the only person he had spoken to. At 4:15 it looks as if the trial will end with an evening session. It is expected the summing up by the counsel on both sides will begin late this afternoon.
