BRUMM MAKES AN ABLE PLEA

A Verdict in the First Degree Now Considered Not Likely.

EISENHOWER'S ELOQUENT COUNSEL

Makes the Effort of His Life Before the Jury in Behalf of His Client and is Followed by Mr. Whalen For the Commonwealth.

SPECIAL TO EVENING HERALD.

POTTSVILLE, June 24.—Congressman C. N. Brumm spent five hours and ten minutes in addressing the jury in behalf of Theodore Eisenhower yesterday and even then gave no intimation as to when he expected to conclude. When Judge Savidge adjourned court at 5:30 last evening he said with some display of weariness, "We will adjourn until 9 o'clock to-morrow morning, when counsel will resume his argument." Although the court, as well as the jury and spectators, had become tired by the long siege, they displayed an interest during the discourse that was at least complimentary to the Congressman, and his colleagues at the bar say he is making one of the greatest fights of his life in behalf of the prisoner. He is making an acquittal his key note and not an item is left untouched to sound it with all the earnestness and effect that human voice and gesture can put into it. Few outside of the people connected with or interested in the prosecution now think that a verdict of murder in the first degree will be rendered. The five hours Mr. Brumm consumed yesterday was devoted entirely to attacking the Commonwealth's case and picking over, piece by piece, the evidence adduced from its witnesses. In many instances he succeeded in pointing out discrepancies upon which he laid great stress before the jury. One of the most important of these was a discrepancy in the evidence of Sabina Eisenhower, the prisoner's daughter. This was one of the most important and effective witnesses for the Commonwealth. If Mr. Brumm's points have been effectively impressed upon the minds of the jury and Mr. Whalen does not eradicate it in his closing address the verdict may come much nearer an acquittal than most people expect, as it bears directly upon what both sides agree was the root of the whole trouble. The point made was this: That in one part of her testimony the daughter testifies that she left her father, mother and William Schwindt in the middle room downstairs with the intention of taking the baby upstairs, but when she reached the top of the stairs she heard a disturbance which caused her to descend and when she did so she found the room vacated by all except her father, who stood in the doorway with a chair raised above his head. In another part of the case the daughter testified that when she heard the disturbance she hurried to get the children out of one of the rear windows upstairs. This variance, Mr. Brumm claims, substantiates the claim of the defense that Eisenhower, his wife and Schwindt were alone in the room at least one hour; that Eisenhower did fall asleep, but wakened suddenly and found Mrs. Eisenhower and Schwindt in a compromising situation and that precipitated the disturbance. Mr. Brumm also makes the following deductions to show how long Schwindt and Mrs. Eisenhower were together before the disturbance: Schwindt went home with Eisenhower at midnight and swears it was between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning when he met Mrs. Eisenhower and her children on the railroad track and advised them to go under the shed, as it had started to rain. Sabina Eisenhower and the man Gray, who was at the boiler house, swore it started to rain at 4 o'clock, and Sabina swore that the family left the house half an hour before Schwindt met them on the railroad. "What did these people do from midnight until half past three in the morning," asked Mr. Brumm. "Schwindt says he only remained in the house ten or fifteen minutes before the disturbance started. Sabina swears that the house was vacated immediately after the disturbance, and yet swears the house was only vacated half an hour before the meeting on the railroad." The truth is, Mr. Brumm claimed, that the children slept upstairs until nearly four o'clock, when Eisenhower awoke and made the discovery that led to the disturbance. In opening his address to the jury Mr. Brumm said: "While you have exhibited patience under trying circumstances, with a sick brother with you, I want first to extend my sympathy and only ask you to bear with us a little longer, and believe that in what we are doing we are at least conscientious and are in error, it is an error of the head, and not of the heart. Murder is a terrible crime, and terribly should a man answer who commits it. I shall not apologize, nor attempt to explain, or extenuate in the slightest degree, anything that is done in this case. No man can look upon it with greater horror than I look upon the dastardly crime of murder. No man can have greater sympathy for the victim that is called to meet his God before his time. No man's heart will bleed more than mine when I consider the widow and the orphans that are left as the result of that crime. I believe I am as sympathetic as most men and I can appreciate and can realize as a father and a husband the horrible effects and misery that surround the home that has lost father and husband, and with a due sense of that responsibility and feeling I come to this jury and ask, not that they shall throw away their humanity, but only ask that they brace up as well as they can—brace up against the power and influence that may be brought to bear upon your minds and hearts by the presence of that poor widow and these poor children. God bless them! God help them! I want to say, gentlemen of the jury, that the Commonwealth should ask only justice, and justice only according to law; and, in asking that justice, they have no right to demand a victim. That in asking that justice they cannot get it by that old Mosaic doctrine of an eye for an eye, or a tooth for a tooth, a life for a life, or blood for blood, but only through the law of the land. The law can only punish a citizen because it is deemed necessary for society; and, just so far as that necessity exists, so far can we justify the punishment. No matter what

A GHASTLY DISCOVERY.

Several Parts of a Dead Body Found on the "Dump" This Morning.

Much excitement was occasioned throughout the town this morning when it became known that parts of a dead body were found on the dump at the end of West Lloyd street this morning.

Mrs. Waters, who resides near that locality, had occasion to dump some rubbish this morning, and in doing so discovered the bones of a foot, and she immediately notified High Constable McKeon. That official then made a more thorough investigation of the "dump" and found a black dress, the bones of two right feet, one left hand, thigh bone, breast plate, and several other smaller bones, and a piece of paper, the writing on which is not intelligible. Some of the bones are covered with black flesh, and the finger and toe nails are very long.

Supervisor McKeon notified Coroner Manley of the discovery and he removed the bones to his premises to await further developments, and in the meantime a surgeon will give his opinion to the Coroner. Several unknown parties are said to have dumped ashes in the locality where the bones were found, and one of them left a barrel behind, which is being used as a clue by the officials.

Many theories are advanced, some being of the opinion that some medical student caused them to be placed on the "dump," having no further use for them, while others say they may have been unearthed while excavations are being made for building purposes. Nevertheless, the discovery has occasioned much talk, and will probably continue so until a more definite clue has been reached.

Joe was a driver at the above colliery, and was passing one of his mules, which suddenly kicked him in the stomach. He was removed to his home in an ambulance, where Drs. Straub and Hamilton were summoned. His abdomen started to swell terribly and this morning about six o'clock he called for water, which was given to him. After partaking of same, he returned to his bed and five minutes afterward he was dead.

GOV. ALTGELD'S POPULARITY

Shown in an Enthusiastic Manner by Illinois Democrats.

RENOMINATED BY ACCLAMATION!

Despite Repeated Declinations, the State Convention Insists on Placing Him at the Head of the Party Ticket on a Strong Free Silver Platform.

PROHA, Ill., June 24.—For Governor, P. Altgeld of Chicago; lieutenant governor, Monroe C. Crawford of Union county; secretary of state, Finnis E. Downing of Cass county; auditor, W. F. Beck of Richland county; treasurer, Edward C. Pace of Coles county; attorney general, George A. Trude of Chicago; University trustees, Julia Holmes Smith, R. B. Morgan and M. W. Graham; delegates-at-large, John P. Altgeld, S. P. McConnell, W. H. Hinrichsen and George W. Fithian; national committeeman, Thomas Gahan, of Chicago.

John P. Altgeld is the nominee of the Democratic party for governor of Illinois. He was unanimously placed at the head of the ticket yesterday afternoon. He had no opponent, and a few moments before the honor was thrust upon him he declared that he did not want it. He said so at the conclusion of one of the most impressive speeches ever made before a Democratic convention. He said that he was physically unable to lead the fight, and his financial affairs were in bad shape and needed his attention. No sooner had he mentioned his desire to retire from public life than there came an impassioned shout of disapproval, not only from the delegates, but from the thousands of people who were crowded in the hall.

Judge W. H. Prentiss, of Chicago, placed Governor Altgeld in nomination for governor. He referred to the admirable administration of Illinois during the last four years, and compared Governor Altgeld to Thomas Jefferson. At the mention of the governor's name the audience cheered enthusiastically. In conclusion he said that Governor Altgeld must be the Democratic candidate. With him the party would sweep the state next fall. Without him defeat was almost certain.

As he ended, and said he placed in nomination John P. Altgeld, the delegates and every one else in the hall arose and for five minutes there was an uproar. There was a motion that Altgeld be nominated by a rising vote, and every delegate arose. The audience went wild with delight when the enthusiastic uproar subsided and the chairman declared the governor to be the nominee. It was a strange convention, and will not soon be forgotten. It was in session only a little over five hours. Nearly all the candidates were nominated by acclamation. There was no strife. There were no incoherent speeches save those directed against the enemy.

The convention, as had been predicted, came out strongly for free silver, and so instructed its delegates-at-large to the national convention. The platform was almost diametrically opposite in all its parts to that of the Republican party, and the two delegates voted unanimously for its adoption.

Ohio's Gold Democrats Overwhelmed.

COLUMBUS, O., June 24.—The preliminary meetings last night showed that the silver men have almost 600 of the 675 delegates in the convention that meets here today. At the district meetings the silver men carried seventeen of the congressional districts and the gold men four. The committee on resolutions and other committees, including the state central committee, stand 17 to 4. The Ohio delegation to Chicago, when the delegates are all chosen, will probably stand 18 to 8 for free silver, although the silver men claim 40 to 6. The silver men intend today to instruct the Ohio delegation for free coinage and to vote as a unit, so that the four gold districts, which include the cities of Dayton, Hamilton, Toledo and Cleveland, will be shut out. While the instructions for free silver will be ironclad, there will be no instructions for president.

No Electors for New York Yet.

SARATOGA, June 24.—The Democratic state convention will declare that the present gold standard in this country should be preserved until such time as there can be obtained an international agreement for bimetalism. At the same time the leaders of the party will postpone the selection of presidential electors until the fall convention of the party. The two factions are significant, and taken in conjunction seem to point that the party leaders, while protesting that the gold standard should be maintained, are fearful that the national convention will not heed their cry and that their electors, if elected now, might be put in a false position. The delegates-at-large to be selected, Roswell P. Flower, David B. Hill, Edward Murphy and Frederick B. Coubert, are to be given a gold standard plank to stand on at Chicago.

Georgia's Silver Democrats Control.

MACON, June 24.—The advance guard of the delegates to the state Democratic convention, which meets here tomorrow, are arriving on every train. While it is a foregone conclusion that the silver men have everything, they want the attendance of the convention to be very large. The financial plank of the platform will be unqualifiedly for silver. Hon. Steve Clay, chairman of the state executive committee, will be the permanent chairman of the convention, and there is some inclination on the part of the silver people to give the temporary chairmanship to a sound money man.
