STILL ANOTHER CAVE-IN!

It Adds to the Horror of the Pittston Mine Fatality.

FIVE BRAVE VOLUNTEERS ESCAPE.

They Had Started on a Dangerous Mission in Response to Reports of Rapping From the Doomed Miners—Relief For the Destitute Families.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 1.—It is now stated that there are fifty-nine men, living dead, imprisoned in the depths of the doomed Twin mine. This is the official number, and there is no reason to think it incorrect. The company has completed a careful canvass of all the men who were at work on Saturday night, and the sum total of the men lost in the disaster, English speaking and foreigners, aggregates this figure. The relatives of five other Hungarians declare that these men, too, are among the victims, but this is disputed by the timekeeper, who says that the Hungarians drew their pay last week and went to Pittsburg to work in the soft coal mines. They simply deserted their families, but their women will not believe it.

At midnight the situation was more encouraging than it has been at any time since the cave-in. The rescuers had reached the edge of the fallen rock and had begun to load it in cars, which are hoisted to the head of the slope by a stationary engine. The point where the men are supposed to be is still 600 feet beyond. The gas is so bad as it has been, and there is no sign of the river water flowing into the mine. When the 11 o'clock shift came out of the mine last night some of the men reported having heard what they thought were rattling in that part of the mine where the victims are supposed to be imprisoned. This immediately revived the hope that the men might be alive, although the officials place little reliance on this story. Five brave fellows, headed by Daniel Lehr, volunteered to crawl over the wall and see what could be seen. They were told that they made the journey at their own risk, and replied that they were satisfied. They are Daniel Lehr, David Connell, James Mahon, James O'Brien and James Lynott, all single men.

Another extensive cave-in occurred in the workings of the Twin shaft shortly after midnight. The cave-in was in that portion of the mine where the victims are thought to be. It made a terrific report, and was heard all over the town. The fall must have been a very heavy one. It had the effect of driving the rescuers out of the slope for the timbers around them immediately began to sway and creak. A fall in the slope may occur at any moment. The news of the second cave-in has had a most discouraging effect on everybody, as it is considered, even by the families of the victims, that there is now no hope of their ever escaping alive. The five men who had volunteered to climb the walls were not caught in the last fall. They escaped safely to the head of the slope.

The bare hole which was started in the Clear Spring mine, which adjoins the Twin shaft, to pierce the pillar of 100 feet of solid coal between the workings of the two mines had not proved as successful as was hoped. When the drill was in about thirty-five feet it struck rock and had to be abandoned. At noon yesterday a new hole was started.

The mass meeting of citizens held in the Pittston Opera House last night for the purpose of taking steps to provide relief for the families of the victims was largely attended. Committees were appointed to solicit subscriptions and provide for the immediate relief of those in want.

Pennsylvania Will Not Bolt.

PITTSBURG, July 1.—National Chairman Harty, en route to Chicago for the Democratic convention, last night said the outlook for a gold standard plank is not as favorable as heretofore, and that the silver men would probably dominate the convention and put their man in nomination for president. He added that such a result would mean a hard fight in November. Whatever the outcome the Pennsylvania delegation will not bolt, but will abide by the decision of the convention. He would not say whether Robert E. Pattison's name would be placed before the convention as a candidate for the presidency, but said the ex-governor was certainly the unanimous choice of Pennsylvania.

Glass Factories Close Down.

PITTSBURG, July 1.—All the union green glass bottle factories and some departments of the union flint glass factories shut down last night for the annual sixty days' vacation. The suspension in the green glass branch is with the perfunctory consent of the manufacturers, but in the flint glass trade the manufacturers are as willing to stop as the workers. In southern New Jersey 8,000 glass workers are taking a two month's vacation.

"Penoyer for President."

PORTLAND, Ore., July 1.—"Penoyer for president" will be the slogan of the Oregon Democratic delegation to the Chicago convention. It cannot be established that Penoyer has expressed any desire to have it so, but there is little doubt that his name and fame will be exploited long and loudly among the delegates. The state Democracy is in favor of the free coinage of silver.

THE LYON-DUNN CONTEST.

An Army of Witnesses Before the Court This Afternoon.

POTTSVILLE, July 1.—The Lyon-Dunn contest was continued in court room No. 1 at 2 o'clock this afternoon. There were in attendance 99 witnesses from Honesyock, Kline township, subpoenaed for today's session and in the next two days there will be 200 witnesses subpoenaed from Cass Township.

Considerable time was taken up in argument and it was 2:45 before the first witness, Prothonotary Deegan, was sworn. He said, on examination by Mr. Breckons, that the returns from Kline township were not at present in their place in the vault of his office. He was present when the returns came in and opened the envelope in court when the votes were counted. He could not say who had taken the returns. He told Mr. Lyon to allow Mr. Berger to look over the papers on the night that has been termed "the midnight session." Prothonotary Deegan was still on the stand at 3 o'clock, being examined by Mr. Schalek.

OLD MINE WORKINGS TAPPED

Renewed Life Given to the Girard Mammoth Colliery.

GREAT BODY OF WATER RELEASED

As Soon as the Old Chambers Are Drained of the Storage an Immense Quantity of Excellent Coal Will be Free to be Mined.

A very important and dangerous piece of work has just been completed at the Girard Mammoth colliery, operated by the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company at Raven Run. It comprised the tapping of an enormous body of water which rested in an abandoned portion of the mine since the time several men were closed in there, about eleven years ago.

The operation took place in the fifth lift of the Buck Mountain vein and the total distance driven to make the tap was about 200 feet. The released part of the mine is on the south dip of the vein.

The officials were jubilant over the successful termination of the undertaking as when the water is fully drawn off an immense body of excellent coal that will give the colliery renewed life for several years will be ready for mining. Among the officials present when the tapping was made were District Superintendent Morrow T. Schreffler, District Superintendent John Carl, Inside Foreman Charles Harber and Resident Engineer Frank Weiser.

Extraordinary precautions were taken in presenting the work and the laws requiring that advance holes be kept constantly in play was rigidly adhered to. The work consumed about two months and there was no accident from beginning to end. Five men worked on a shift. For the first one hundred feet an opening 12 feet wide and 10 feet high was driven. For the next seventy-five feet the opening was 5 feet square, and the balance of the distance was drilled, the hole being about 2 1/2 inches in diameter.

The body of water released is estimated at several thousand gallons and as the drill hole is the only means of escape it is believed that several weeks will be consumed before the workings are drained. The water flows into the sump of the old slope that was reopened about a year ago with the work now in hand in view. The water is pumped to the surface by two new pumps stationed for the purpose. The pumps are units of the P. & R. improved pattern. The work required to release the body of water is among the most dangerous in mining operations. It was while pursuing the same kind of work that several men were drowned in the Lyle colliery about two years ago.

MANGLED ON A RAILROAD.

A Girardville Man Struck Near Mahanoy Plane This Morning.

Patrick McGuire, a resident of Girardville, was struck by a south-bound passenger train on the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, between Mahanoy Plane and Girardville, last night and horribly mangled, although not instantly killed. Both legs and one of the arms were cut off and the abdomen was so badly cut that the entrails protruded. The man was taken to his home and died there at 6:45 this morning. It is believed that the man was struck by the Buffalo express that passed south at about 2:29 a. m. He was not found until nearly 4 o'clock this morning and it is considered miraculous that he did not bleed to death.

McGuire was 31 years of age and a minor by occupation. He leaves a widow, but no children. His three children died within the past year from scarlet fever. He was a son of James McGuire, who was killed on the Schuylkill Traction railroad at Mahanoy Plane some time ago, and a brother of James McGuire, who was killed at the Bear Ridge colliery about a year ago.

Dread Poisoning Set In.

About a week ago William Klatt, of South Bowers street, was engaged in repairing a belt at the Ellingowan colliery when a fellow workman drove the punch into one of Klatt's fingers. He paid but little attention to the injury at the time and simply applied court plaster. A day or two ago he removed the plaster and the finger and hand commenced to swell rapidly. Dr. J. G. Church pronounced it a case of blood poisoning, presumably caused by some substance from the belt being forced into the finger by the punch. It is feared amputation will be necessary.
