STRIKERS ATTACK POLICE.
A Lively Fight in Which the Rioters Are Severely Punished.

CLEVELAND, July 1.—For nearly a month the strike at the works of the Brown Hauling and Conveying company has continued with frequent though individual attacks by strikers upon workmen who had taken their place. At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon 170 employees of the Brown company were marched from the works under the escort of eighty policemen to the car tracks on St. Clair street. A crowd of 2,000 men, women and boys gathered and began shouting and hissing. Two motor cars came along and were signalled to stop, but the strikers yelled "Go ahead, don't stop," and the motor men increased their speed and whizzed by. The police then marched the men in their charge a block further away to a corner and halted for another car, the roaring crowd following. Some one in the crowd threw a big stone, which struck Patrolman Kettel and cut his head open. Deputy Chief of Police McMahon then gave a prearranged signal, and the crowd was given a terrible lesson. Forty policemen swung out into line and the other forty closed in around the men they were protecting. The first forty, under command of Captain English and Lieutenant Dunn, charged the crowd with riot clubs, and they hit to break heads. Two roads up the street sent the crowd in that direction flying and left a dozen men lying on the pavement with bleeding heads. Then the police charged twice in the opposite direction, and then down a side street, using their clubs viciously. They scattered the crowd effectually, and arrested four of the ringleaders, after splitting the scalp of one of them. In the meantime the police guarding the workmen stopped a car almost by force and sent their charges away. No one was dangerously hurt by the clubbing, so far as can be ascertained, but there are scores of broken heads. Further serious trouble is feared.

JAY GOULD'S ALLEGED "WIDOW"

Taking Evidence in the Case of Sarah Ann Angell.
TRENTON, N. J., July 1.—Commissioners John E. Kelly and M. Smith, of the supreme court of New York, heard the testimony of the Rev. Nathan Leighton and his daughter here yesterday in the Sarah Ann Angell case, in which she sues for her dower right in the Gould millions. The plaintiff claims that Rev. Leighton was the minister who performed the marriage ceremony which made her and Jay Gould man and wife, when Jay Gould was a young struggling surveyor. Mr. Leighton is now 80 years of age and his daughter is in feeble health and blind. This is the cause of the commission coming here to hear the case. The utmost precaution was taken to keep the proceedings quiet. It is known, however, that Rev. Leighton made an affidavit before a local justice in which he testified to the performing of the ceremony, in which the groom is named as Jason Gould. He also gave a description of the parties.

"My mother, my wife and myself use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy whenever troubled with a cough or cold. It is the medicine of our home. I do not know how we could do without it. We feel that it is an indispensable article. The people in this vicinity too are beginning to learn of the merits of this excellent medicine. I never lose an opportunity to testify to its value for it has saved many a doctor's bill in my family. W. S. Musser, proprietor of the Musser House, Williams, Pa." This remedy is famous for its cures of bad colds. Try it and you too will recommend it to your friends. For sale by Gendler Bros., Druggists.

THE MEE MYSTERY.

Puzzling to the Philadelphia Police—Fool Play Indicated.
PHILADELPHIA, July 1.—The mystery surrounding the strange death of Henry Mee, of Mahanay City, remains unsolved, and though three detectives have been at work on the case from late Monday night, the police are as much in the dark as to how Mee received the injuries which caused his death as when the case was first reported.

Some information has been given upon his habits, and his body has been identified by Miss Nellie Gorman, 1917 Parrish street, who formerly lived in Mahanay City, and who had arranged to meet Mee on Saturday night, but beyond these points there is nothing to show where he spent the time between Saturday night at 11 o'clock and Sunday morning at the same hour.

It was first thought by the hotel people and by some of the police that Mee had fallen upon the street, or had been thrown from a trolley car, but these theories have been almost entirely exploded by a thorough investigation, and murder is now considered reasonable. Indeed, all the peculiar circumstances in the case, the police think, bear out the supposition that Mee was assaulted for some reason not known, and after having his skull fractured wandered back to his room at the hotel and lingered until he died at the Hahnemann hospital.

A heavy rain fell early Sunday morning, and the police argue, had Mee been wandering about the streets so drunk that he would be apt to fall he would have certainly been very damp when he arrived at the hotel. This was not the case, however, and the fact that his clothing was dry leads them to believe that Mee was in a house when he was assaulted.

The detectives found the telegrams which passed between Mee and Miss Nellie Gorman, of Parrish street, and these were explained by the young lady to the satisfaction of the officers. When seen yesterday Miss Gorman said: "I came from Mahanay City formerly and while there knew Mr. Mee. He knew that I came to the city to work, and after his arrival here on Saturday afternoon he sent me a telegram, requesting me to call at the hotel that evening. I went there about 9 o'clock, having previously replied to his messages; but when I inquired at the office I was told that Mr. Mee was not there. I waited in the parlor until half-past 9 and then went home without having seen him. I did not know of his death until I saw it in the papers this morning."

Miss Gorman said that she was not intimately acquainted with Mee, but that she knew him slightly while in Mahanay City. According to her statement, Mee is an Englishman, and has no relatives in this country. He would work very hard for several weeks and then when he had some money collected start off on a drunken spree, which would last for several days.

A brewer who was registered at the Bingham yesterday, and who was acquainted with Mee, went to the Hahnemann hospital with Miss Gorman yesterday morning, and identified the body. He told the officers that last week, while in Tamaqua, he met Mee, who said that he had just completed a job and received $350 for it. He further said that he intended coming to Philadelphia for the purpose of enjoying himself. On Saturday he received a message from Mee asking him to meet the accountant at 9:30 a. m., but when he went to keep it Mee had not yet arrived in the city.

The German Catholic Societies.

Christ Schmidt, of town, has returned from Wilkesbarre, where he attended a meeting of the executive committee of the German Catholic societies of Pennsylvania. The sessions were principally devoted to the consideration of a report that has been going the rounds of the state that German Catholics are opposed to compulsory education and that a petition was being prepared by them, praying the next legislature to repeal the compulsory education law. The members of the executive committee of the societies have in emphatic manner denied such reports and wished the impression to get abroad that German Catholics are in favor of compulsory education. They say that German Catholics make it a condition that their children be educated in early youth, and that they must go to a public or parochial school from at least 6 to 13 years of age. The Germans were the pioneers of compulsory education and have always been in favor of it.

Yesterday Adam Mort and John W. Reese, two employes of the Almshouse at Schuylkill Haven, went to St. Clair and took charge of the remains of the man that were found on the Pennsylvania railroad near St. Clair station early yesterday morning. The victim was evidently a Hungarian. Ten cents and a brass check inscribed "D. & S. Co. No. 27," such as is used to identify men at some colleges, was found on the remains, but nothing else, other than the clothing, to lead to identity. The remains were clad in four undershirts, a blue shirt, two vests, two pairs of trousers, two pairs of drawers, a coat and a black derby hat. The clothing was good. The remains have been interred in the cemetery at the almshouse and the officials of the institution will make efforts to locate relatives or friends of the victim.
