THE CHICAGO NOMINATIONS.

Arthur Sewall, a Leading Shipbuilder of Maine,

NOMINATED ON THE FIFTH BALLOT.

The Nominee to be Formally Notified in New York—Senator James Elected to Succeed Hattie as Chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

CHICAGO, July 13.—As in the contest for the presidential nomination, it took five ballots to nominate a Democratic candidate for the vice presidency at the last session of the national convention, Arthur Sewall, of Maine, the head of the great shipbuilding firm, secured the nomination.

There was a marked falling off in the attendance at Saturday's session, owing to the fact that many of the delegates had business engagements that compelled a return to their homes, the convention having been prolonged longer than expected. The sections assigned to delegates showed rows upon rows of empty chairs, but all the old resplendent signal poles of the states (with the names painted white on the blue blades) were in their proper positions, including the "badger" of Wisconsin, which General Briggs had complained of as having been stolen during the great racket of the Bryan nomination, and as having been "trailed in the cortège of the victor."

The chairman of the Pennsylvania delegation, Mr. Hattie, was present, but most of his co-delegates had left the city. Some of the New York delegates were in the hall, but it was agreed they were to take no part in the voting for vice president. The New Jersey delegates were absent in a body. General Briggs and most of the delegates from Wisconsin were on the floor, but only the five Wisconsin silver men were there to cast their individual votes for the vice presidential candidate.

At 11 a. m. the chairman, Senator White, of California, called the convention to order and (prayer having been dispensed with) Mr. Hattie, of Pennsylvania, announced that the present national committee would meet at the Palmer House at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The nomination of candidates for vice president was at once proceeded with, Mr. Richardson of Iowa, being in the chair. Senator White's voice having failed him, George Fred Williams, of Massachusetts, was placed in nomination by Mr. O'Sullivan, a delegate from that state. Then Mr. Marsden, of Louisiana, named John R. McLean, of Ohio, Mr. Moloney, of Washington state, named James Hamilton Lewis of that state, and J. H. Currie, of North Carolina, presented Walter Clark, judge of South Carolina's supreme court. Tom Johnson, of Ohio, presented the name of George W. Fithian, of Illinois. M. M. Miller, of Oregon, presented Oregon's governor, Sylvester Penneyer. William R. Burke, of Los Angeles, Cal., presented the name of Arthur Sewall, of Maine, as "a man who strove for liberty when God himself was dumb." Joseph E. Sibley, of Minnesota, was named by Mr. Showalter, of Missouri. After the usual seconding speeches the balloting was proceeded with, with the following results:

- First Ballot—Sibley, 163; McLean, 111; Sewall, 100; Williams of Massachusetts, 76; Bland, 62; Clark, 50; Williams of Illinois, 32; Blackburn, 20; Boies, 20; Hattie, 19; Lewis, 11; Daniel, 11; Pattison, 2; White, 1; Teller, 1; Fithian, 1; not voting, 369. Second Ballot—Bland, 288; McLean, 164; Sibley, 148; Sewall, 137; Clark, 25; Hattie, 21; Williams of Massachusetts, 15; Williams of Illinois, 13; Pattison, 1; not voting, 253. Third Ballot—Bland, 255; McLean, 219; Sewall, 97; Sibley, 59; Clark, 22; Hattie, 19; Williams of Massachusetts, 15; Daniel, 6; Pattison, 1; not voting, 255. Fourth Ballot—McLean, 538; Sewall, 291; Daniel, 54; Clark, 40; Hattie, 11; Williams of Massachusetts, 9; Pattison, 1; absent or not voting, 290. Fifth Ballot—Sewall, 514; McLean, 78; scattering, 108; not voting, 235.

The balloting proceeded without interest until New York was reached when the announcement, "New York declines to vote," was received with hisses. New Jersey was silent. Pennsylvania announced that it voted 7 for Sibley, 2 for Pattison and 35 absent or not voting. Georgia started a boom for Bland.

At the end of the second ballot ex-Congressman Cummings of New York, read a telegram from Joseph C. Sibley announcing that he was not a candidate. When the third ballot was over Governor Stone, of Missouri, read a telegram from Richard Parks Bland saying that it would be unwise and impolitic to nominate both candidates from the west side of the Missouri river. Bland's name was formally withdrawn, and the fourth ballot was proceeded with. When this was concluded the name of McLean was withdrawn in response to a telegram from that gentleman, and a motion to make the nomination unanimous was put and carried before the tellers had an opportunity to count the fifth ballot.

After the nomination of vice president the convention adjourned sine die, the delegates quickly retiring from the convention hall to the music of "America" by the band. Senator Jones, of Arkansas, has been elected chairman of the national Democratic committee, and Hugo Wallace, of Washington, the son-in-law of Chief Justice Fuller, temporary chairman. The committee will likely have headquarters in Chicago. Presidential Candidate Bryan turned his back yesterday afternoon on statesmen, politicians and eager curiosity seekers, and went out to quiet Oakwood cemetery and grove of Lyman Trumbull, the man who had been his teacher and friend. When Mr. Bryan turned away his eyes were brimming with tears. "Any distinction which I may have gained I owe in great part to the man who is buried there," he said, as he returned to the building.

Outing at Battling Run. A large outing composed largely of business men left town yesterday morning for Battling Run, in the Catawissa valley, where they enjoyed an old-time Coney island clam bake. The party consisted of 45 people. In the afternoon a base ball game was played but as no official scorers were in attendance, we are at a loss to state the score. Many of the teams were caught in the rain storm on the top of the mountain, which administered a thorough drenching to many of the occupants. The last teams reached town about 8 o'clock.

At Breen's Rialto Cafe. Grand Army bean soup with served as free lunch to-morrow morning. Plenty for everybody. Meals served at all hours.

Joseph Udeli, a saloonkeeper at Lost Creek No. 2, has also disappeared and, as he and Mrs. Wolantins were seen together last night, it is presumed they have eloped.

The Troubles of Piano Firms With an Agent.

THE GEYSER-LIKE CAREER OF GISE

He Disposed of Pianos as a Fakir Gets Rid of Collar Buttons. But Failed to Make Returns and the Manufacturers Objected—Arrests Made.

Detective Richard Amour arrived in town yesterday night, having in custody one D. W. Gise, who is charged with embezzlement. Amour was brought here from Wilkes-Barre by Detective Amour on a similar charge made by another New York piano company. The specific charge in this case was that Gise had appropriated $500 to his own use, but the company claimed the real amount was almost $4,000. Gise was a prisoner at the Ferguson House over night and the next day went with the agent prosecuting him to Wilkes-Barre where, it is said, he succeeded in effecting a settlement on giving securities.

Mr. Hall, the prosecuting agent in the present case, says that Gise made returns to the Peace Piano Company stating that certain pianos were out on trial and others would be paid for in a few weeks. In two instances he sent in notes on short time which Gise represented had been given in payment. Mr. Hall found that every one of the pianos had been paid for and that the two notes were fictitious. In fact no sales were made at the places where the notes were dated.

When Gise arrived here Saturday evening he was taken to the office of M. M. Burke, Esq., who is counsel for the Peace Company, and some time was spent in consultation with the lawyer, Mr. Hall and the detective. Gise admitted everything and stated that the notes were resorted to help cover his tracks. All parties finally went to the office of Justice Lawlor, where Gise entered $1,500 bail for a hearing on Thursday morning. To-day Gise and Hall went to Wilkes-Barre, the former expressing confidence that he would be able to make a settlement before the time fixed for the hearing.

Gise lives at Wilkes-Barre and has a wife and two children. He is an excellent pianist and well educated, his accomplishments making him especially adapted for the line of business he has been engaged in. He made a success of it and his friends cannot account for his crooked work, except on the score of highest living.
