HOW TO FEED BABY.

Prevalent Cholera Infantum Distresses Mothers.

Sickness Due More to Faulty Feeding Than to Heat.

May be Prevented by Putting Child on a Diet of Lactated Food.

"On the 21st of October, 1894," writes Mrs. Thomas J. Jones of Whitehall, N. Y. "I was blessed with triplets. I was unable to nurse them, so had to use artificial foods. I first tried cow's milk, and after that three brands of baby foods, but my babies did not seem to do well on them. A neighbor who had used lactated food advised me to give it a trial. I did so.

"I could see a change in my babies at once. They rested better at night. Before I used your lactated food, I did not know what a night's sleep was since the babies were born, but after using it two days, I was able to do all my work without any help or trouble.

"In six months, they gained seven, eight, and eight and a half pounds. I could not recommend your lactated food too highly, and hope that other mothers will be helped as I have been with your lactated food, which I know they will, if they use the food."

Mothers are often brought to the verge of despair during hot weather because baby refuses to take food or throws it up. One of the marked superiorities of lactated food over other infant foods is repeatedly spoken of in letters of mothers from all over the country: Lactated food is taken eagerly, more often greedily, by babies who are deprived of their mother's milk, and in hosts of instances it is evidently preferred by them to breast milk when the latter has become thin and poor either from long nursing or hot weather.

Cholera infantum, that is now raging, is best prevented by lactated food. This dread disease is due more to faulty feeding than to heat.

Lactated food is used in all the large homes for children throughout the United States, and in families that possess every means for securing the best for their children; and yet it is easily within the reach of the most modest household in the land.

It Was Almost Deserted. The little mining village of New Boston which had become almost deserted is again being populated. Two months ago there were 30 vacant houses in the place, but within the past three weeks 29 families have taken up their residence there, with the prospects of the other 8 being occupied in a short time. The report that the Buck Mountain colliery is to resume on full time, at which place most of the inhabitants work, will no doubt cause the other houses to be occupied. The majority of the population here consists of people from Stockton and Hazelton.

Snakes in His Boots. When John Durack, of Mt. Carmel, put on his boots preparatory to going to work, he felt some crawling creature inside one of them. Quickly pulling off the boot and turning it upside down two green garter snakes dropped out. They were at once killed. Several members of the family had been out huckleberrying yesterday and it is supposed the snakes crept into a lunch basket and were brought home in that way.

ONE OF THE BRIGHT TRIPLETS.

The Coal Trade. Seward's Coal Trade Journal, speaking of the Anthracite coal trade, says: The market at the Fairbank is dull, and no one expects any stir in the trade until at least another six weeks shall have passed away; the dealers seem to have all the hard coal they can find room for. The soft coal market remains quiet, with no particular change in the situation. The shutting down of so many of the large mills, in addition to previous curtailments in manufacturing industries, is going to have its effect on the soft coal trade. Thousands of tons less coal will be used than usual in consequence. Freight rates are unusually low, and those buyers who are hesitating had better make their purchases pretty soon, for coal will be no lower and freights certainly will be higher. The story from the Northwest is but a repetition of the past few weeks; the market is awaiting one on Anthracite and no one cares whether the supply is great or small, but holders are firm on the matter of price, so that they will reap the reward thereof hereafter, if there is any trade done this year.

Chased Them Out of Town. Burgess Stern, of Mahanoy City, has started a crusade against people begging on the streets whom he has learned are frauds. No less than ten were ordered by him to leave the town yesterday or they would be arrested. This is a good example for Chief Burgess Burns to follow.

Bore Hole Blocked. The bore hole at the Kaier brewery, Mahanoy City, will suspend operations for some time. One of the employes was mauling a plank over the bore hole when the handle of the hatchet broke and fell in the hole and descended to the bottom, coming in contact with the bit causing it to become fastened. The hole has reached the depth of nearly 2,000 feet, cutting in the red shell. Telegram has been sent to Bradford to send the tools necessary to bore around the bit to draw the hatchet out.

A Shepton Freak. In the town of Shepton there is a man 40 years of age who was never inside a church until a few days ago, and then his presence was purely accidental. He took hold of a plank which was to be used in making a scaffold in repairing the church, supposing it was to be placed upon the porch, but it was carried into the church. He says that he then got his first view of the interior of a church, although he has always enjoyed good health, is of average intelligence and has no particular aversion to religious matters.
