THE KICKING CONGRESSMAN

His Objections Not Sustained by the Other Candidates.

WANTS TO CONTROL THE 'MACHINE'

Our Pottsville Correspondent Furnishes
Some Inside History, and Shows Wherein
Mr. Brumm is Making a Mistake.
Party Success is Jeopardized.

Special HERALD Correspondence.

POTTSVILLE, Aug. 23.—The present week has been one of much interest in political circles, and especially so in our own household. The reason therefor can be stated in a few words, and is of interest to the Republic voters in so far as it affects the success of the county ticket in November. There are two factions in the party in this county, generally known as the Brumm-Coyle and the Loesch-Phillips factions, each striving to control the party organization. For the past year or two the Congressional-Senatorial combine have had things their own way and used the whip when necessary, but their defeat this year has caused them much unrest, hence the little "unpleasantness."

Pilgrimages have been made to state headquarters by the candidates and their friends, and State Chairman Elkin has been compelled to listen to their little tale of woe, and to pacify their wounded feelings as only the political diplomat can, and send them home laden with the belief that the future success of the Republican party lies in the palm of their hands. Each had a different story to tell, and one can easily imagine the opinion that the State Chairman has of the average Shenoykill county politician, and the manner in which they fulfill the Biblical injunction, "Brethren, dwell together in harmony."

Early in the week, and previous to the Philadelphia pilgrimage, Congressman Brumm issued a call to the candidates to meet here yesterday, and as a result all, with the exception of three, Messrs. Schrink, Bentz and Wynatt, responded. The latter was detained at home by illness in his family, while the other two were out of the county. The meeting was held behind closed doors in the parlors of the Merchants' Hotel, and I am informed it was an interesting session, so much so that one of two grew "eloquent." After deliberating for nearly two hours they adjourned, apparently with the understanding that nothing that transpired should be given out for publication, as the important reporters gleaned nothing. However, your correspondent acted the part of an eavesdropper and heard a conversation by two of those present that put an entirely different aspect upon the situation from that generally accepted by the public.

Mr. Brumm presented several grievances, and demanded Chairman Edwards' resignation, and a change of the entire personnel of the organization. He was sustained in this by but one other candidate, from north of the mountain. It is said the Congressman is reconciled to Charles Snyder, whose roll hair caused all the trouble at first. The candidates refused to accede to Mr. Brumm's proposition, taking the view that harmony is preferable to factional fights at this stage of the contest, and that their efforts should be exerted for the success of the entire ticket rather than inviting its defeat.

Now as to the executive committee, which Mr. Brumm objects to. To consider the selections wise ones, and the chairman has displayed the true qualities of a leader in selecting such men as his lieutenants. Instead of the committee having been dictated by the statesman from Shenoykill Haven, the facts tell a very different tale. William Neiswender was selected upon the recommendation of Candidates Brumm and Reese; Alexander May, is a county committeeman, and was selected for that reason; George R. Patterson was the choice of Brumm, while Dr. George H. Moore was recommended by Al Hines. In the Third to District, Elmer Bailey and Frank Kautner were the personal choice of Candidate Kersinger. Mr. Brumm recommended J. F. Farne and Jacob Lurwick, James Hughes was the personal selection of the county chairman, Candidate Jenkyn asked for the appointment of Thomas F. Herb, Dr. DeClert requested that he be placed on the committee, and John F. Finney was the choice of all the candidates.

Mr. Brumm recommends five of the committee, while four of his colleagues get one each, and the other nominees neither ask for nor get one committeeman. The Congressman, therefore, has little room to complain, and his assertion that the committee was set up against him is not borne out by the facts as given above. Your correspondent obtained this information from a reliable source, and it can be relied upon as an important factor, and this organization is an important factor, and this organization is an important factor, and this organization is an important factor.

The question naturally arises, what effect has this factional fight, and for what purpose was it inaugurated? The last question is more easily answered than the first. In dealing with the "fruits of victory" the county organization is an important factor, and this organization is an important factor, and this organization is an important factor.

As to the effect the factional fight will have on the result of the election is a question to be determined in November next. There are times when a political party needs a cleansing out—the application of disinfectants, to restore it to its normal condition. In such cases the party voters take a hand and call down these self-assumed leaders and bosses of both factions. The present difficulties call for such action. The party has selected its standard-bearers, not to quibble over the selection of a secretary or committeeman, but to attack the common enemy with all the energy and political sagacity at their command, and with a united front.

What care you or I who fills the minor positions, or even who is chosen chairman. What we want is Republican victory—every man upon the ticket elected. Sowing the seeds of discord and disorganizing the party, should stop, and at once. Mr. Edwards was elected chairman of the county convention by Mr. Brumm and his friends, the candidates subsequently selected him as county chairman, his secretary and clerks have been appointed and the executive committee named, all in accordance with the rules of the party, and the only thing to do now is to elect, the entire ticket, from Brumm down to Ahrensfield.

In conversation with Chairman Edwards, he informs your correspondent that his one desire is to treat every candidate with the same consideration, showing favors to none that will not be cheerfully granted to others. As county chairman he has no friends to award nor enemies to punish. He says the Republican party cannot afford to lose a Congressman from this district; the crisis is one in which there is more at stake than the individual, who represents a principle for which we are all contending. The chairman could truthfully have added that there are other candidates upon the ticket who are justly entitled to some consideration, and whose success is equally desired with that of the head of the ticket.

This warfare should cease, and at once. No man desires the election of Brumm more than your correspondent. I was one of his most ardent supporters for the nomination, and will work just as enthusiastically for his election, but I cannot sanction his unwise and unpolicy course in breeding dissension within the party organization. It is gratifying to know, however, that but one other candidate is in sympathy with the Congressman. Call off your dogs of war, Charlie, and turn them on the free silver advocates. RES.

Hunted Highland.
Detective Richard Anour last night returned to town from Phoenixville, Pa., with Andrew Highland, a former resident of this place, in custody. Highland is charged with being the cause of the troubles of Miss Ida Zerby, of West Lloyd street. The warrant was issued last October and since that time Detective Anour has unsuccessfully visited several places in this state and New Jersey to execute the writ. Highland is a plasterer by occupation. He is in the lockup pending negotiations for a settlement to-night.

Case Dismissed.
John K. Jones, of rags and bones fame, appeared before Justice Lawlor last night as complainant against a little girl 14 years old whom he charged with striking him in the back with a stone. The charge was denied and all the witnesses called in the case agreed that John K. was a nuisance to the community. The complainant said he had several witnesses, but he was afraid to call them because they were his enemies. The Justice dismissed the case.

"Lanigan" Disclaims Fraud.
Among the cases tried before Justice Lawlor last night was one in which Martin Shueber charged "Lanigan" Boyer with defrauding him out of a $17 board bill. E. D. Beddall, Esq., appeared for Boyer and disclaimed any fraud. It was claimed that the worst that could be made out of the case was ordinary debt. The Shueber house was opposite the scene of the big fire of June, 1895, and fearing the house might be destroyed Boyer carried out his trunk. He sought another boarding place and says he has since been unable to pay the claim. Bail was furnished for trial at court.

THE BRITISH SHELL ZANZIBAR

The Palace Bombarded and Now a
Mass of Ruins.

SULTAN FORCED TO TAKE FLIGHT

Said Khalid, With the Commander of His Forces, Seeks Refuge in the German
Consulate—Foreign Residents Seek Refuge on Warships.

ZANZIBAR, Aug. 23.—The palace of the sultan of Zanzibar was bombarded yesterday and is a mass of blazing ruins. The sultan, Said Khalid, and the commander of his forces, Said Saib, succeeded in escaping to the German consulate, where they have sought refuge and remain under the protection of the German flag.

Rear Admiral Henry Rawson, C. B., in command of the British Cape of Good Hope and west coast of Africa station, and the British consul general, A. H. Handberg, C. B., after holding a conference, communicated by cable to the government of Great Britain an outline of the situation of affairs, setting forth that said Khalid, who seized the palace and proclaimed himself sultan on the death apparently by poison of Sultan Hamud Bin Thwayin Bin Said, had been strongly reinforced and positively refused to surrender.

Said Khalid had with him at that time about 2,500 well armed and well disciplined men, including 800 Askaris, who have been trained under the British officers, and a number of field guns and other pieces of artillery which were trained on the British warships, consisting of the St. George, Philomel, Sparrow, and Thrush.

During the past night there were a number of disturbances among the natives in the outskirts of the town, but they were promptly suppressed by the 350 British marines and sailors who had been landed to protect property and guard the consulate of Great Britain. It is understood, however, that Said Khalid received further reinforcements from the slave dealers, who flocked to his support, as the formal hoisting of the British flag over Zanzibar would mean the liberation of about 250,000 slaves and a death blow to slavery in this part of east Africa.

The British subjects, numbering about 100 persons and a number of other foreigners embarked on board warships, the Italians going on board the Italian gunboat Volturno, and the Germans seeking safety at the German consulate. Shortly before 9 o'clock a naval officer was sent to the Palace square with a message for Said Khalid, asking him if he was prepared to surrender in accordance with the terms of the ultimatum and again notifying him that the palace in which he had barricaded himself would be shelled at 9 o'clock promptly if he failed to haul down his flag before that time. As before, Said Khalid replied that he would die sooner than surrender. His answer was conveyed to Admiral Rawson and the British consul general, and the crews of the ships, which had been prepared for action the day before, were sent to quarters.

At 9 o'clock the flagship signalled the Raceoon, Thrush and Sparrow to commence firing, and in a moment they sent a storm of shell and shot into the palace, tearing big gaps in it, scattering death and confusion among its defenders, while dismounting some of the guns ashore and putting to flight the gunners handling the pieces. The fire of the warships was admirably directed, and smoke was soon seen to be issuing from several parts of the palace.

The Raceoon, Thrush and Sparrow kept up the bombardment until 10.50, when the palace was crumbling in ruins. During the bombardment the sultan's armed steamer Glasgow opened fire on the British warships, but a few well-aimed shells from the heavy guns of the Raceoon and a shot or two from the four-inch guns of the Sparrow crashed through and through her, silenced her fire in short order and ultimately sank her at her moorings.

Admiral Rawson, in order to prevent the escape of Said Khalid and his followers to the mainland of Africa, where their presence would undoubtedly have caused trouble with the slave leaders and their adherents, sent detachments of marines, blue-jackets and local Zanzibaris to occupy all the roads and avenues of escape. Said Khalid took refuge in the German consulate.

The American trade with Zanzibar is considerable, amounting $1,000,000 annually. The United States buys from them ivory, hides, rubber, gums and cloves, and sells cotton and petroleum.

The intentions of England regarding Zanzibar have been looked upon with interest for a very long time. During the reign of the late sultan's uncle, Ali Ben Said, the English began the enforcement of a firm rule, which they called a protectorate. This consisted in making arrangements with the sultan by which he was to receive a monthly stipend for his personal expenses, and proper accounts of all revenues and expenditures in the various governmental departments were to be kept, all said departments being created and organized and placed under English officials.

The old palace of Haroon last night was nothing but a heap of smouldering ruins. Hamoud Bin Mohammed Bin Said, after having been proclaimed sultan, was escorted to his own house by Admiral Rawson, Premier Matthews, Mr. Basil Cave, the British consul, and a guard of marines sent detachments about the building. He is a cousin of the late sultan, is over 50 years old and a powerful Anglophile.

It will be a great surprise if the government of Great Britain does not take advantage of the opportunity to abolish Arab rule, suppress slavery and proclaim Zanzibar a British colony.
