LI'S TRIBUTE TO GRANT.

Our Chinese Visitor at the Great General's Tomb.

FORMAL WELCOME TO AMERICA.

The Greeting of President Cleveland to the Nation's Guest at the New York Residence of Hon. William C. Whitney, Ex-Secretary of the Navy.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Li Hung Chang entertained and was entertained on Saturday at a rate which left the distinguished statesman in a state of almost breathless wonder. That, at least, was the judgment of those who saw him after the last of the functions, in all of which but one he was the chief figure. Early in the morning Secretary Olney sent in his card to the nation's guest at the Waldorf and was received by the Chinese premier, returning the call soon afterward.

Later the earl called upon the president of the United States, made and received an address, was called upon by Mayor Strong, and in the evening attended a dinner given in his honor by former United States ministers to China. In going about Li Hung Chang is escorted by four troops of United States cavalry.

The meeting between President Cleveland and the Chinese prince took place at the residence of ex-Secretary William C. Whitney, at Fifth avenue and Fifty-seventh street. The ambassador of China, with the title of Su-Y, was presented to the president of the United States by Secretary Olney, bowing low. Then one of his suite handed to Earl Li a tablet of yellow satin, on which were engrossed rows of Chinese characters, which his excellency read to the president. He read with great deliberation, placing a finger upon each character as he read it. At its conclusion his interpreter proceeded to read the address from an English translation, doing this with considerable oratorical effect.

The earl's address was in substance as follows:

"Your excellency, it affords me great pleasure to have the honor to be presented to your excellency. The reputation of your highly esteemed virtues is widely known throughout the world, and in you the citizens of the United States of America have invariably placed their confidence, consequently both the interior administration and the exterior relations of this great republic are in a state of prosperity.

"It will always be the desire of my august master, the emperor of China, to maintain the most cordial relations with America, whose friendly assistance rendered to the government of China after the China-Japanese war, and whose protection for the safety of the Chinese immigrants in America are always to be highly appreciated.

"I am now especially appointed by my august master, the emperor of China, to present to your excellency the assurances of his most friendly feelings toward the United States of America, in hope that your excellency will reciprocate his sentiments and co-operate with him to promote the friendly intercourse between our two countries for the cause of human kind."

In his reply the president said in part:

"Your excellency, it gives me great pleasure to receive from your hand the personal letter from your august sovereign and to greet you as his personal representative. Since our two countries became better acquainted many incidents have occurred calculated to increase our friendly relations, and not the least gratifying of these are the friendly expressions contained in the letter of your emperor and the visit to our country of his most distinguished subject.

"Notwithstanding the widely different characteristics of the two countries, the welcome which is tendered you by the government and citizens of the United States illustrates in the strongest possible manner the kindship of nations. We feel that in the arrangement of your tour you have not allotted to your sojourn among us sufficient time to gain an adequate observation of all we have accomplished as a nation. It will not, however, escape your notice that a rich and fertile domain has here been quickly created by those who were assured that they would reap where they had sown; that a strong and beneficent government has been here established by those who loved freedom, and that we have a generous and patriotic people, who love their government because it is theirs—contracted by them, administered for them, and protected and saved from harm by them."

These formal compliments having been passed, a secretary produced a roll of yellow paper, elaborately bessaled and berib-boned and inclosed in yellow silk, which he passed to Earl Li and Earl Li presented to the president. It was the credentials of the earl as an ambassador of China. Thus ended the formalities.

At the banquet in the evening, which was presided over by George F. Seward, ex-minister to China, Earl Li also read an address.

Li Hung Chang spent Sunday quietly at the Waldorf. In the morning he received his old friend, Colonel Forrester, and afterwards a delegation of Mott street merchants paid their respects to the viceroy. In the afternoon Colonel Fred D. Grant escorted Earl Li and his party to the tomb of General Grant. There were 4,000 or 5,000 people on hand to see the great Chinaman.

When the members of the party alighted from the carriages Li Hung Chang retained his seat until the big red plush chair was carried forward from one of the rear carriages. The walk from the drive to the tomb is only about fifty yards, but the august man does not walk when outside of doors in China, and it was deemed proper that he should be carried to the spot in his own chair. Four stalwart policemen were selected as the bearers.

When the viceroy was let down at the door of the tomb he got up from his seat, and preceded by Fred D. Grant, General Horace Porter and his interpreter entered the tomb. Li Hung Chang stood on the first step, just inside the gate. The florist's representative handed him a wreath, which he laid against the metal casket which contains Grant's remains.

Then followed a moment of profound silence. The viceroy bent his head, and seemed deeply impressed. He did not shed tears, as on the occasion when he visited the tomb of General Gordon. Turning to Colonel Grant he said: "I am profoundly touched by this visit to the grave of one of the greatest men I ever knew."

"Is this the usual way of burying persons in America?" he asked. Being told that such was not the case, he turned and looked on the splendid mausoleum that is nearing completion. "How much did it cost?" he asked.

General Porter told him that it was built by the subscriptions of 80,000 persons, who contributed all the way from one penny to $5,000. "The American people are grateful to your excellency," said General Porter, "for your generous subscription."

The viceroy bowed his head in acknowledgment of the compliment. He was among the original subscribers, and gave $200 for the tomb.

"When will it be finished?" he next asked.

General Porter told him that the dedication would take place on April 27 next, which was General Grant's birthday.

Li Hung Chang turned his face again to the tomb and remarked that one of the things for which he had come to America was to lay a wreath on the tomb of General Grant.

When the vicegeral party arrived at Claremount the people manifested their approbation by applauding him vigorously. It was the first time since he made his appearance in public in this country that he appeared to take an interest in the people surrounding him. He looked from right to left at the great crowds, but did not make any acknowledgment of the applause. The cheering was renewed as the policemen carried him on the chair from the driveway to the tomb, and there was more applause when he emerged from the tomb. As the officers carried him back to the carriage he surveyed the immense throng on the hill above him, and looked again towards the crowd along the Riverside drive on taking his seat in the carriage.

The return drive was through Central Park to Seventy-second street and down Fifth avenue to the house of Colonel Fred Grant, where he called on Mrs. U. S. Grant, the widow of the man whose memory he had just honored. He entered into a long talk with Mrs. Grant through the interpreter. He had met her in China when she was traveling with her husband, and he seemed to have a great many questions to ask. He presented Mrs. Grant with some valuable dress stuffs and two large boxes of tea. The party at Colonel Grant's house were served with refreshments and the viceroy consented to drink a cup of tea, with some bread. It was the first particle of food Li Hung Chang has partaken of since he came to this country, except that prepared by his own cooks.

Li Hung Chang arrived at the Waldorf again at 6:45. He retired at 9 o'clock as usual.

Li Hung Chang left this morning on the dispatch boat Dolphin for West Point. He is accompanied by the members of his retinue and officers of the United States government who are attending him during his stay in this country. Assistant Secretary McAdoo, of the navy, and M. W. Rockhill, first assistant secretary of state, also accompany the party. Earl Li will inspect the United States military academy at West Point and return to this city on the Dolphin.

Earl Li to Visit Washington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—At the Chinese legation today it was said that it had been determined that Li Hung Chang would visit this city next Thursday, arriving here at night. It is believed that no public official display will take place, but that Li Hung Chang will on Friday be quietly escorted to the Capitol and other public buildings.

RUSSIA'S PREMIER DEAD.

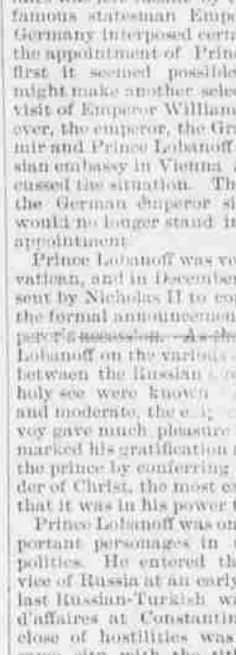
Prince Lobanoff Stricken While Journeying to Kieff.

SUCCEEDED THE LATE M. DE GIERS.

His Death at This Time Upsets All Possibilities of a Conference of Premiers and Compels the Czar to Change the Plans of His Proposed Tour.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—A dispatch to The Telegraph from Kieff says that Prince Lobanoff-Rostovsky, Russian minister of foreign affairs, died suddenly while traveling from Vienna to that place. Prince Lobanoff-Rostovsky was in the company of the czar at the time of his death, and his demise was wholly without warning.

The news of the death of Prince Lobanoff caused great excitement throughout Russia, where the personality of the minister of foreign affairs was considered to be second only to the czar himself. Prince Lobanoff pursued a strong foreign policy—a policy which was regarded in some quarters as threatening the peace of the world.



LOBANOFF-ROSTOVSKY.

Besides his political work Prince Lobanoff devoted his leisure hours to the study of and to the writing of works on Russian history. The tour which he had planned to take with the czar through the countries of western Europe was expected to be most far reaching in results, affecting the settlement of the eastern question. Francis Joseph paid Prince Lobanoff-Rostovsky the highest honors during the recent visit of the czar to Vienna, and his death at the present juncture is regarded as a most dramatic and important event, upsetting as it does all possibilities of conferences between the foreign ministers of the great powers and compelling the czar to change the plans concerning his tour through Germany, France and England.

Prince Lobanoff-Rostovsky was appointed Russian minister of foreign affairs Feb. 28, 1895, succeeding the late M. De Giers. For years Prince Lobanoff, as he is commonly known, was regarded as M. De Giers' most probable successor. When the post of minister of foreign affairs was left vacant by the death of that famous statesman Emperor William of Germany interposed certain objections to the appointment of Prince Lobanoff. At first it seemed possible that the czar might make another selection. During a visit of Emperor William to Vienna, however, the emperor, the Grand Duke Vladimir and Prince Lobanoff met at the Russian embassy in Vienna and frankly discussed the situation. The result was that the German emperor signified that he would no longer stand in the way of the appointment.

Prince Lobanoff was very friendly to the vatican, and in December of 1894 he was sent by Nicholas II to convey to Leo XIII the formal announcement of the new emperor's accession. As the views of Prince Lobanoff on the various questions at issue between the Russian government and the holy see were known to be conciliatory and moderate, the czar's choice of envoy gave much pleasure to the pope, who marked his gratification at the presence of the prince by conferring upon him the order of Christ, the most exalted decoration that it was in his power to bestow.

Prince Lobanoff was one of the most important personages in modern Russian politics. He entered the diplomatic service of Russia at an early age. Before the last Russian-Turkish war he was charge d'affaires at Constantinople and at the close of hostilities was sent back to the same city with the title of ambassador. Subsequently he was Russian ambassador to London, and for over ten years was Russia's representative at Vienna. As prime minister he distinguished himself by his masterly intervention in the China-Japan war.

Prince Lobanoff was 60 years of age, and had never married. He was a man of great wealth, and one of his recent eccentricities was the purchase of silver horseshoes for the horse he rode, a Tartar of the Ukraines. He had a splendid palace in the Caucus mountains, and his pages were the sons of great Tartar chieftains.

The people have long since learned that the most disagreeable medicines are not necessarily the best. In fact, as a rule, they are not. What is wanted is something mild and sure, such as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. That is really pleasant to take when reduced with water and sweetened. Then it is acknowledged everywhere to be the most successful remedy in the world for bowel complaints. Ask any number of druggists for the best remedy they have for diarrhoea and fully nine out of ten will recommend Chamberlain's. In speaking of this medicine, Mr. B. B. Buffum of Friendsville, Susquehanna Co., Pa., says: "We have used it in our family for pain in the stomach, colic and diarrhoea and found it to be a most effective remedy." Spanish Government Indorses Weyler.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—A dispatch from Madrid says that the Spanish government has approved of the conduct of Captain General Weyler and of his issuance of the orders prohibiting the people of Cuba and foreigners resident in Cuba from having any intercourse with the foreigners outside the island of Cuba, and also his much discussed decree prohibiting the gathering of the sugar and coffee crops.

Japan's Ministry Resigns.

YOKOHAMA, Aug. 31.—The entire Japanese ministry has resigned. Count Kuroda has been appointed acting-premier. The crisis arose on account of a difference of opinion regarding the vacant foreign portfolio.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gundermann, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist church at Rives Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at A. Wasley's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00.
