RETURN OF SUPT. BOGART

Arrived in Town From Philadelphia
This Morning.

CORDIAL GREETINGS FROM CITIZENS

He is as Confident and Unassuming as Ever and Says the Trial Cannot be Brought on Too Soon to Suit
Him—The Date Not Fixed.

Superintendent Bogart arrived in town this morning on the 11:05 Pennsylvania Railroad train from Pottsville. He was met at the lower station by a number of citizens, who gave him cordial greetings and prevailed upon him to remain on the train until it reached the upper station. There a still larger delegation of citizens welcomed him and there was a scramble to grasp his hands and shake them cordially. Superintendent Bogart simply said, "This is indeed encouraging. I do not know the names of all of you, but I thank you." He then proceeded to his home on South White street followed by the receiving citizens. A delegation of about ten entered the residence and the rest respectfully withdrew. The meeting between Mr. and Mrs. Bogart was touching. Up to this time the former had not displayed the slightest emotion, but the meeting was too much for him. He seated himself on a couch in the parlor and in a trembling voice said, "Up to this moment I have been full of fight." The tears welled into his eyes and with a sudden rush choked down his cheeks, but he quickly checked them and said with a smiling glance to his wife, who sat near him in a rocker fighting her emotions like a soldier, "Well, we will soon have this affair settled now." Superintendent Bogart then fully recovered himself and the conversation assumed a cheerful character. He stated that he left Pottsville at seven o'clock last night and went through to Philadelphia on a sleeper. He left the latter city at 5:37 this morning. He confirmed Mr. Price's statement of the trick to try and get the ball forfeited and that it was the attempted trick that caused him to delay his return. He was glad, however, that he escaped the demonstration of last night, as he preferred returning to his family with as little display as possible, in fact he notified Mr. Price that he wished no public reception.

Superintendent Bogart does not entertain the slightest fear as to the outcome of the suit. "The time has come now," said he, "and the trial cannot be pressed too soon to suit me. I wanted the trial fixed for next week, but my lawyers wanted more time to get ready. I am hoping that it can be called up for trial the week after next. I ask a fair field and no favors. With that I will have no fears of developments from any source. I have employed two of the best criminal lawyers in Pottsville and they have arranged matters so that I shall not be disturbed again until the time for the trial arrives, and of that I will receive due notice."

Had a visit from the most distinguished individual of the country been expected a greater crowd of citizens than that which turned out last night to welcome Prof. C. D. Bogart, the Superintendent of the local public schools, upon his expected return from Pottsville could not have assembled, and this in spite of the fact that telegraphic and telephone messages had been sent to the town that the Superintendent would not arrive. The people were so eager to give him a greeting that they refused to believe the reports. They suspected that efforts were being made to throw them off the track so that the Superintendent might avoid a demonstration in reaching his home. They were determined that he should be given a rousing greeting. The gathering at the Lehigh Valley depot at 8:45, when the train upon which the Superintendent was expected to return arrived, was so great that Coal and Iron Policemen Bebes and Kreizer and Policemen Lee and Goodman had their hands full in trying to keep the tracks clear. The crowd extended from the depot up Centre street west of White street. As the train arrived the crowd cheered lustily, but it was doomed to disappointment, as the Superintendent was not on the train. Mr. J. J. Price, the President of the School Board, who accompanied Superintendent Bogart to Pottsville, arrived home, however. He was accompanied by Justice T. F. Williams, who met Mr. Price at Sunbury. When it became known that Superintendent Bogart had not arrived the great crowd dispersed, but many followed Messrs. Price and Williams to the latter's office. To escape the crowd the gentlemen made an exit at the rear of the office and went to assure Mrs. Bogart that her husband was well and in the hands of good friends. The reason why Superintendent Bogart did not return is given in Mr. Price's statement to a HERALD reporter.

Mr. Price spoke cheerfully of the events of the trip and on closing his statement to the reporter said without hesitancy that he had not the slightest doubt that the case against Superintendent Bogart will end in the latter's complete vindication.

The party left here on the 11:05 train Monday morning, last, and upon arrival at Sunbury were met at the depot by Sol. Boyer, Esq., a prominent attorney of that place. Up to this time it had been Detective Toole's intention to travel to Pottsville via Lewistown Junction. The lawyer introduced himself to the party and Detective Toole allowed him to read the warrant in the case. Mr. Boyer told Toole that he had no right to execute the warrant and the two exchanged words about knowing their business, the lawyer stating that unfortunately Judge Savidge was at Pottsville and but for that the detective would not travel further with such a warrant. "You have no right to take that man," said the lawyer. The train via Lewistown Junction would not be due for two hours and Toole had signified a willingness to go to lunch, but as the lawyer disappeared, promising to return in a few minutes, and as the denial of his authority was still ringing in his ears, he became frightened. A train bound for Lock Haven arrived. Toole nervously inquired the destination of the train. His nervousness made him forget dinner and in response to Mr. Price's suggestion to go to a hotel to get the meal Toole answered "No, we'll take this train. We can go by way of Tyrone" and he forced Superintendent Bogart to the train. "Very well," said Mr. Price, "I'll go with you," and just as the train was pulling out from the station the party boarded it. They reached Williamsport at 3 p. m. and Lock Haven at 4. Detective Toole pretended to be very solicitous to Superintendent Bogart's welfare upon arrival at Pottsville and asked if telegraphic arrangements had been made for bail. He was told that they had. He then said he would telegraph ahead to have Magistrate McMaster on hand to receive the bail, but after he wrote the telegram he took great pains to see that Superintendent Bogart, nor Mr. Price, saw the contents. The party arrived at Pottsville at 11:30 Monday night and were met at the depot by Messrs. Hunter and Marshall, two eminent lawyers of that city. Toole told the lawyers it was his intention to turn Superintendent Bogart over to Magistrate McMaster and intimated that if the Alderman's office was not open he would go from word to word until he could find a committing Magistrate. The lawyers told Toole something about the police regulations of Pottsville and informed him that at that hour the jail and station houses were closed against the admission of prisoners, unless arrested for such crime as murder, etc. Toole finally became convinced that he couldn't secure the satisfaction of getting Superintendent Bogart in jail until the next morning and quarters were secured at a hotel. The Superintendent and Mr. Price occupied adjoining rooms. Toole had a room on the same floor. "Me Too" Smith was also a guest of the hotel, but it is not said where he slept. At 9:30 the next morning Superintendent Bogart and Mr. Price presented themselves at the office of Alderman McMaster. Unfortunately Attorney Hunter was obliged to go to Erie that morning and Attorney Marshall had a case in court that was on trial and Superintendent Bogart was practically without counsel. Messrs. Holt and Baylack, two prominent residents of Knoxville, appeared to qualify as bondsmen. Alderman McMaster said he could do nothing but turn Superintendent Bogart over to the court to have bail fixed. In the meantime Mr. Price went, upon Superintendent Bogart's suggestion, for Mr. Hamilton, Superintendent of Public Schools of Allegheny county, and they were approaching the Alderman's office when they met Toole on the way to the jail with Superintendent Bogart. Protests were made, but Toole said he was powerless and had to do his duty. The jail was reached and for two hours Superintendent Bogart received in the corridor a number of Pottsville friends who called to see him. His stay was made as pleasant as the circumstances would permit and at the end of the two hours, when Attorney Marshall closed his case on trial, bail was qualified in the sum of $2,000. Superintendent Bogart and Mr. Price partook of a good dinner at a hotel and then went to Knoxville.

Before they left Toole told them that he had to leave Pottsville right away, as he had to be in Philadelphia some time Tuesday morning and in Pottsville yesterday. He asked Superintendent Bogart and Mr. Price when they intended to return to Shenandoah and they replied as soon as possible. It will be seen that Toole's statement was made to mislead and his inquiry was a part of it for the culmination of another dirty trick. Toole did not leave Pottsville on Wednesday. He and "Me Too" Smith were seen by Superintendent Bogart and Mr. Price strolling the streets of Pottsville between 11 and 12 o'clock Tuesday night. They evidently thought that the Superintendent and Mr. Price would return immediately to Shenandoah. In the meantime it was their intention to have the case called up and have the ball forfeited, so as to give Toole a chance to repeat the outrage of last Monday and thus heap more humiliation upon their victim. But in this they slipped up. Superintendent Bogart was notified by Lawyer Marshall on Tuesday that the case had been pushed before the Grand Jury immediately after bail had been fixed and that a true bill had been found. It was then decided that the return to Shenandoah would not be made until Superintendent Bogart would not be in danger of more indignities. Yesterday morning Mr. Price started for home. Superintendent Bogart decided to remain in Pottsville until his lawyers can prepare the necessary papers for an application for a postponement of the trial until such time as they can secure and consult with witnesses and make other arrangements for the proper defence of their client. This will effectually sprag any more snap games on the part of the opposition.

Mr. Price says that Superintendent Bogart was most cordially received in Knoxville and such places in Pottsville where he had acquaintances. Business men in Knoxville walked out from their stores to shake his hand and express their sympathy, but in no instance were the tokens of respect more pronounced than when the school children met him. They greeted him most cordially and many of the children clung to him so that it was with difficulty that he could get them to go on their way. Mr. Price says that Superintendent Bogart's lawyers treat the case as a trial one and give every assurance of complete vindication and the sentiment of Knoxville is of the same character. The people of Knoxville say that "Me Too" Smith is the instigator of the case. The only witness who appeared before the Grand Jury was the girl Clara Vates. The testimony given before Grand Jurors is seldom made public, so the HERALD has not been able to ascertain what the girl swore to, but the fact that she was the sole witness lends additional interest to the case, as the affidavits presented to the School Board of this town when the charge was investigated showed that she had told five different and distinct stories of the affair.

LAMONT IS FOR PALMER!

The War Secretary Announces His Presidential Preference.

MAY VOICE CLEVELAND'S VIEWS.

The Secretary's Declaration Hailed With Satisfaction at the Republican Headquarters—Senator Carter Thinks It Will Have Great Effect on Voters.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Secretary of War Lamont yesterday sent the following telegram to W. D. Bynum, chairman of the executive committee of the local Democrats, in response to an invitation to be present at the notification of Palmer and Buckner at Louisville Sept. 12:

"I regret that I am unable to accept the invitation of your committee to be present at the notification to Senator John M. Palmer and Governor Simon B. Buckner of their nomination by the National Democratic party for president and vice president of the United States.

"The outcome of the Indianapolis convention in candidates and platform is inspiring to every Democrat who refuses to abandon the principles established by the fathers and steadfastly maintained with pride and honor, and who declines to adopt the new and strange creed proclaimed in a moment of delirium at Chicago and promptly recognized and patrolled as its own by the Populist party at St. Louis. I prefer to keep the old faith and remain a Democrat, and shall accordingly cast my vote for Palmer and Buckner."

Secretary Lamont's telegram excited considerable comment in political circles when it became known. It was the first declaration of the secretary concerning his attitude in the present campaign, and was thought here to foreshadow the position which the president will probably take in regard to the Indianapolis nominations. The attitude of Secretaries Morton, Francis and Herbert toward the Chicago ticket are already known, and Secretary Carlisle has expressed his favorable opinion of the Indianapolis nominations.

Secretary Lamont's declaration was hailed with satisfaction at the Republican headquarters. At Democratic congressional committee headquarters, the officials declared that the position taken by Mr. Lamont had already been discounted. Senator Faulkner, the chairman of the committee, was asked his opinion of the telegram, but he declined to be interviewed on the subject.

Secretary Lamont declined to make any further statement concerning the reasons for his action, merely saying that the telegram to Mr. Bynum "covered the case."

Senator Carter, of Montana, who has recently declared himself in favor of McKinley, was of the opinion that Mr. Lamont's letter would have a very pronounced effect. "The secretary," he said, "is a very strong man, esteemed by the people of this country. He is regarded as a safe and level headed man, who has acquitted himself with credit in the discharge of his public duties."

Colonel John R. Fellows, of New York, who was an active participant in the Indianapolis convention, and who is in the city on his way west, said: "The secretary's position is no surprise to me, as I never had any doubt of his attitude. I am glad of it. The telegram will have its effect. A man occupying Secretary Lamont's position cannot fail to have a large influence among Democrats. Such men as he do not separate from what is recognized as regular in form and method, unless there is some vital principle at stake or unless the party they belong to has been very notably betrayed."

The Silverites in Control.
TRENTON, Sept. 10.—The Democratic state convention met here yesterday and nominated the following presidential electors without opposition: Electors-at-large, Johnston Corbush of Warren county and Thomas Budd of Burlington; district electors, David M. Chambers, Camden; Isaac W. Carmichael, Ocean; James J. Meehan, Somerset; W. C. Barriek, Hunterdon; Carlston M. Huey, Passaic; Jeremiah O'Rourke, Essex; James F. Minturn, Hudson; Edwin A. Raynor, Essex. The silver men were in absolute control of the convention, and a noticeable feature was the absence of the old leaders.

Bardsley's Pardon Still Unsigned.
HARRISBURG, Sept. 10.—The following pardons were issued yesterday by order of the board of pardons: Robert Bently of Allegheny county, sentenced to the Western penitentiary for seven years for aggravated assault and battery; Genario Falcone of Northampton county, sentenced to the Northampton county prison for six years for assault with intent to kill; Stephen Logozza of Jefferson county, for murder in the second degree. Bardsley's pardon, as well as others, still lie on his desk unsigned, and meanwhile the governor has gone to Erie.

Li as an Election Prophet.
WISNIEG, Mar., Sept. 10.—Li Hung Chang, honored Whangpoo with a flying visit yesterday. He remained here about an hour and then went to Hanff, where he will stop over for a short while, proceeding thence to Vancouver. While he was interviewing a St. Paul Press reporter Li Hung Chang said: "You are an American eh? What are you, a Republican or a Democrat?" "A Democrat," answered the reporter. "Oh! that's too bad," said the viceroy, with a smile. "The Democrats are going out of power. McKinley will be the next president."

Killed and Thrown into a Reservoir.
SHAMOKIN, Pa., Sept. 10.—The body of Thomas Dulch, who mysteriously disappeared from his home in Stuartville one week ago, was found in Righter's reservoir near this place, yesterday. A jury found that he had been murdered before having been thrown into the water. Dulch left his wife three weeks ago owing to domestic troubles. It is expected arrests will soon be made.

Grant Band Festival.
The Grant Band will hold a festival and concert on the 24th inst., in Robbins' opera house. The band's picnic on Labor Day was prevented on account of the weather, and was postponed until Monday evening last. While it was a success in every other respect, financially it was a failure. The band lost fifty dollars, and the festival and concert will be held to reimburse the treasury, which at present is empty. The people should respond nobly in assisting the great musical organization in the future of the state by attending the festival or purchasing a ticket, and we have no doubt but that they will.
