PROPERTY AND INDUSTRY.

Property is the fruit of labor. Property is desirable, is a positive good in the world. That some should be rich shows that others may become rich, and hence is encouragement to industry and enterprise. Let no man who is homeless pull down the house of another, but let him work diligently and build one for himself, thus, by example, assuring that his own shall be safe from violence when it is built.—ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

The demand for the HERALD for the past week has been such that our carriers could not supply it.

CHARLES E. TITMAN has his own peculiar notions as to the field appearance of the average reporter.

The Republicans will open the campaign in Shenandoah on Saturday evening, when Hon. Charles N. Brown will address a public meeting in Robbins' opera house upon the issue of the campaign. He will be greeted by a large crowd.

It is adding insult to injury to express sorrow for Supt. Bogart, after having been the means of continuing the bitter warfare by daily editorial comment of an anarchistic nature. The minority members of the School Board can truthfully exclaim, "Deliver us from our friends," especially those of the newspaper profession.

These are glorious nights for sleeping and the mornings refreshing and delightful. Those of our residents who rise early and indulge in a brisk constitutional walk find their reward, while those who give "sleep to their eyes and slumber to their eyelids" until long after the sun has risen miss the healthful influence.

The news of the death of Rev. William M. Swindells, editor of the Philadelphia Methodist, will be received with much regret by his many friends here in Shenandoah. Rev. Swindells was prominent in the councils of the Methodist church, was a man of great force of character and a preacher of the old-time pattern and of marked ability. In accordance with his wishes, his remains will be interred at Potomac, where, during his pastorate, the present edifice of the First Methodist congregation was built.

WATSON SHEPHERD, the Democratic candidate for Congress in this district, is in attendance at the Harrisburg convention to-day as a delegate. He was also a delegate to the Allentown convention of four months ago, and was then an enthusiastic and aggressive gold standard champion, but for the sake of office he has repudiated his own views and now pretends to favor the Bryan platform. The voters have very little faith in a man who has no more regard for principle and individual views than what Mr. Shepherd has shown to have.

VERMONT'S verdict settles the question of the East. There is no reason to believe that the silver sentiment is stronger in any other eastern state. The Bryan orations and demonstrations signify nothing but great stupidity to us and bear the representative of a revolutionary political movement. When it comes to the solemn act of voting and making the actual policies of the nation, sobriety and conservatism irresistibly plead for the preservation of national honor and safety. In the West and South the phenomenal result in Vermont cannot fail to exert a strong and deep influence. Social money men everywhere will be encouraged and stimulated, while the silverites will lose hope and confidence and assurance. To-day every silverite in the country is "blue" and crestfallen, and he has reason to be. A big majority in Vermont indicates national victory. So says history.

We are in receipt of a number of communications from reputable citizens of the borough containing in strong language the treatment received by Supt. Bogart at the hands of the officers of the law. We are unable to give all of them space, but one of them will appear to-morrow, which is written by one who was opposed to a change in the Superintendency but whose condemnation of the persecution resorted to knows no bounds. Some of the communications bear no signatures, and in accordance with the rule of all newspaper offices they will not be noticed. The name of the author must invariably accompany the article to secure publication. The editor of the HERALD is not responsible for what its correspondents say, and hence it is necessary that the name of the author be known. The HERALD has been highly complimented upon the stand taken in condemning the brutal conduct of the officers, even by many of those who favored the retention of Mr. Whitaker. The endorsement of our course is not alone confined to the citizens of Shenandoah, but congratulatory letters from prominent residents of different parts of the county are at hand. In further endorsement of our position, was the large outpouring of people at the depot last evening to greet the Superintendent, notwithstanding the information that he would not be here until to-day, thus publicly expressing their condemnation of the despicable treatment to which he was subjected. The course of the HERALD during the controversy has been consistent and in line with the duties of a public journal, and whenever the rights of a private citizen, or the public at large, are abridged in any manner we have always expressed our opinion and will continue to do so in the future.

THE FEELING AT KNOXVILLE.

From Pittsburg Gazette, Sept. 8, 1906. J. C. Yates, who brought the charges against Prof. Bogart before the School Board of Knoxville, was seen at Martin's factory last evening, where he is a watchman, and dratted (he had made a criminal charge against the professor he had nothing to do with his arrest. I have not looked into the matter, but Knox tells me that Mr. Yates, and I was not aware that he was arrested. Some time ago a detective from Shenandoah visited me at the instance of the minority members of the school board, and asked me about the trouble. I explained my side of the case, and I suppose he took that report back. At least the minority, I understand, were determined to get rid of him, and I suppose adopted that way of doing it. I don't believe in persecuting a man, and I believe in his making a living. I was satisfied when he left Knoxville. The charges I made I am prepared to substantiate, however. When Prof. Bogart left this city he went to Shenandoah and applied for a position there. A majority of the board were for him, but two or three had a grievance and wanted a fellow townsmen elected to the position. They, of course, in a proper manner, found out the charges made against the professor at Knoxville and used this as an argument against his election, and for the election of the Shenandoah applicant. The majority thought Prof. Bogart the better man, and as his past character, save the one charge at Knoxville, was stainless, elected him as principal of the Shenandoah schools at a good salary. He is finely fitted for the place, but the minority, who were bent on determining to punish the matter up. They hired a man to look the matter up. He visited Pittsburg and took a report of his character, which had not been previously known in Pittsburg.

Mr. Lawlor Explains.

In Tuesday evening's edition of your paper in an article on the arrest of Mr. Bogart you state that the charge against him was "assault with intent to rape." Will you kindly do me the simple justice to state that this is not true. The charge upon which Mr. Bogart was arrested, as set out in the warrant, was "Rape," an offense which is not billable by a Justice of the Peace. I told your reporter, Mr. Watkins, this on Monday morning and if he doubted my word he could have certified to the officers who saw it. There was no dispute about the nature of the charge while Mr. Bogart was in my office, nor did anyone there say that I had any right to admit him to bail.

M. J. LAWLOR.

[In Justice to Squire Lawlor we give space to his communication freely, not desiring to place him or any one else in a false light before the public. There was certainly a misunderstanding between him and our Mr. Watkins, the latter understanding the Squire to say it was "attempted rape." This may be accounted for by the excitement occasioned at the time of the arrest. An effort was made on our part to obtain a personal inspection of the warrant, but was refused by Mr. Toole. We cheerfully give space to Squire Lawlor's communication, not wishing to take an undue advantage of any one connected with the affair. —E.]

Which Do You Prefer.

In a large majority of cases of diphtheria—whether among children or grown people—death is sure to follow. Absolutely stating the facts as they are, there is no reason under the sun for a single individual to die from diphtheria, croup, quinsy, or any known throat affection. Thompson's Diphtheria Cure has never failed to cure every case where the directions for use were strictly carried out. Now do you prefer to die or have your friends die when 50 cents expended in time will save life? This is the exact fact in the case. Sold at Kirlin's drug store at fifty cents a bottle.

DEATH OF EX-SENATOR PAYNE.

The Millionaire Who Represented Ohio for One Term. CLEVELAND, Sept. 10.—Hon. Henry B. Payne, ex-United States senator, died here yesterday at his home, No. 555 Euclid avenue. His death was directly due to a stroke of paralysis, with which he was attacked last Saturday morning. Hon. Henry B. Payne was father-in-law of William C. Whitney, secretary of the navy, and was born in Madison county, N. Y., Nov. 30, 1810. Mr. Payne was graduated at Hamilton college in 1832; then read for the bar in Canaan, N. Y., and in 1834 moved to Cleveland, O., where he practiced law for the ensuing twelve years. In 1848 he was a presidential elector, and in 1849 was elected United States senator, serving until 1850. He was nominated for United States senator in 1851, but was defeated. In 1856 he was one of the staunchest supporters of Stephen A. Douglas, and a year later was defeated for governor of Ohio. Mr. Payne retired from his profession and became largely interested in manufactures, railroads and various other enterprises, and amassed a large fortune. In 1884 he was elected to the United States senate, succeeding George H. Pendleton, and served one term. Pennsylvania Democratic Convention. Marion Crawford has written a new story specially for The Century. It is called "A Rose of Yesterday," and will begin in the November number and run for six months. The story opens in Lucerne, and while it is entirely separate in interest, some of the personages that appear in it will be familiar to readers of "Don Orsino." It is wholly romantic in character.

Going to the window he called for help, and an officer arrived to find him bounding over the woman, holding her in his arms. The wounded man and woman were taken to the Cooper hospital, where the woman's injuries were found to be fatal. An officer was stationed to watch him. WEST INDIA HURRICANE. Sweep the New England Coast, Doing Great Damage. SEASHORE COTTAGES ENDANGERED.

A Remarkably High Tide, Aided by the Strong Wind, Drives the Sea High Upon the Beach—Many Cottagers Abandon Their Summer Homes. BOSTON, Sept. 10.—The first West India hurricane of the season arrived off this city yesterday after a long but eventful journey from the tropics. The storm center is somewhere southeast of Nantucket, but an energetic and distant breeze that a heavy northeast gale is sweeping the entire New England coast from Eastport to Block Island, while the surf, aided by one of the highest tides of the year, is threatening destruction to hundreds of seashore cottages and other property along the water front.

The storm increased in energy as it came up the coast and made itself felt here at an early hour yesterday morning, when the wind began piping up from the eastward. By 10 o'clock the wind had attained the velocity of a gale, and the authorities at Washington ordered up the hurricane signal all along the coast. Rain began falling at noon, and has continued with but little intermission since. Reports from along the shore show that the storm is a severe one.

The great height of the tide warned many of the cottagers along shore, and many abandoned their summer homes. The wind in many instances drives the sea high up on the beach, wrecking houses. The tide at Nantucket at midnight was one of the highest seen for years, and many of the booths and both houses have been washed away. The harbor is well filled with storm bound vessels.

A dispatch from Newport, R. I., states that the Helen F. Whitten, of Gloucester, one of the finest vessels of the fishing fleet, was blown on the rocks. The crew of eighteen men was taken off with a breeches buoy, while the schooner pounded her bottom out and will undoubtedly prove a total loss.

The wind along the Rhode Island coast is blowing a gale and the sea is tremendous. A fishing schooner went ashore off Point Judith and was wrecked in the breakers, the crew of nine men being rescued by a passing steamer.

The steamer Nantasket, on her way from Boston to Nantasket, was blown ashore on the flats at World's End, Wed. river. It is thought she can be floated without damage.

Fishing schooner Harry L. Helden, of Gloucester, went ashore on the rocks off Cape Pogue. There is little hope of saving her.

Not miraculously, but scientifically, by first removing the germs of disease, and then supplying healthy nerve food, increasing the appetite, helping digestion and strengthening the entire system. Desperate cases require prolonged treatment as shown by that of Mrs. M. B. Reed, of Delta, Iowa, who writes: "As the result of a lightning stroke, the physicians said I had a light stroke of paralysis, my limbs would all draw up. I would have throbbings in my chest that seemed unendurable. For three months I could not sleep and for three weeks did not close my eyes. I prayed for sleep, and dead or insane, I took Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerveine and the second night slept two hours and from that time on my health improved; slowly at first, but steadily and surely. I took in all 40 bottles, and I cannot express how grateful I am, for I am now perfectly well, and have taken no medicine for over four months."
