THE FIRST CAMPAIGN GUN.

Congressman Brumm Talks on the Financial Question.

HIS ADDRESS CLEAR AND CONCISE

The Congressman Declares He is in Favor of Free Coinage, But Only on Condition That the Government Retain the Seigniorage.

The first gun of the Republican campaign was fired in town Saturday night with excellent results. Although there was no parade, brass band display, or other device to attract a crowd Robb's open house was crowded by people anxious to hear Congressman Charles N. Brumm speak on the issues of the day and especially give his views on the much-mooted financial question.

Congressman Brumm was escorted to the place of meeting by Hon. Elias Davis, of Watleville, the Republican candidate for County Treasurer; Frank C. Reese, candidate for the same ticket for Register of Wills, and Hon. Joseph Wyatt, Republican candidate for reelection to the Assembly, besides a number of the leading Republicans of the town. The Congressman was cordially received and before taking the platform received personal assurances of earnest support from many of the people who assembled in the hall.

The meeting was opened by Monroe H. Kehler, Esq., when Horace E. Dengler was nominated as permanent chairman, and the following vice presidents and secretaries, who were unanimously elected:

Secretaries—William J. Watkins, William Reeves and William J. Morgan.

Vice Presidents—Hon. M. P. Fowler, Hon. John W. Morgan, Thomas Baird, H. J. Yost, R. A. Davenport, J. J. Price, Wm. J. Bronghall, E. H. Hunter, T. J. James, Daniel Ogden, John Watson, David Morgan, W. H. Lewis, Charles E. Smith, John T. Lee, George Nonnis, Alex. Morris, Benjamin F. Beshier, M. H. Kohler, John Roberts, Charles Radziewicz, Morgan Price, Albert Brown, Benjamin H. Severn, William Stein, John C. Boehm, A. D. Gable, D. H. Lashman, T. T. Williams, John McCallis, Benjamin Richards, William Krick, Moses Owens, T. R. Beddall, John Keiper, Joseph Kupchinski, Otto Carl, William Daddow, Frank Gobrick, John D. Haasler, R. W. Stout, F. E. Magargle, Fred Carl, William Chudilicki, Benjamin Church, Jacob S. Williams, William G. Gregory, Morgan S. Davis, Marshal Bangh, William T. Trezise, George F. Leitzel, James Heaton, Marshal Hughes, James S. Williams, T. R. Edwards, T. J. Davis, Jacob Bamberger, Thomas Bellis, Joseph Rudnicki, David Allen, David Brown, Evan J. Davies.

Chairman Dengler made an address of some length in which he expressed the hope that every citizen would perform his duty in the current campaign and in doing so act with intelligence.

Congressman Brumm was heartily applauded when introduced. He spoke for about two hours and in that time gave a most interesting and instructive address on the financial question. His arguments were clear and logical and the applause that followed the conclusion showed that they had been appreciated.

The speaker prefaced his address with a statement bearing upon the meeting in Minersville on Saturday night and denied the reports that Senator Tillman scored a victory over him in the joint debate. He added that he would let the citizens of Minersville, irrespective of party, decide whether he did not wipe up the floor with Tillman. This remark brought forth great applause and loud cries of "Good boy, Charlie." The Congressman followed this up with a sweeping challenge. He said he had made repeated endeavors to induce Watson F. Shepherd, the Democratic candidate for Congress, to meet him on the platform and his last challenge is that he will meet Mr. Shepherd, or any person he may name as his representative, providing Mr. Shepherd will agree to hold himself personally responsible for anything the representative may say, and in that challenge Senator Tillman is included.

At about this time a man who was standing in the rear part of the assemblage shouted, "We will try to send a man to Congress who will do what you never done, and no man before you."

Mr. Brumm promptly retorted, "Keep on trying, but you are not going to win."
This occasioned another outburst of applause and more cries of "Good boy, Charlie."
During his address Mr. Brumm concisely and clearly defined his position on the silver question as opposed to the platform of the silver party. He explained it by saying that free and unlimited coinage of silver, as advocated by the Bryan party, means that any bullionist can take his silver to the mint, though it is only worth 51 cents, and he can there demand a dollar for it, which is worth one hundred cents, and the bullionist gets the benefit of the 49 cents excess in value after the bullion has been coined. Mr. Brumm believes in free coinage, but only upon the condition that the government retain the seigniorage or, in other words, the difference between the actual value of the bullion and the value which is given it by coinage. He cannot understand why the bullionist should be given this seigniorage.

Mr. Brumm then showed why the seigniorage plan was the best, and first showed that even the free silver people have admitted that their plan is attended by chances of failure. Mr. Brumm made this point: If the bullion is coined as proposed by the free silver people and if, after several million dollars are turned out of the mints, the plan proves a failure, who is the loser? The taxpayer is, of course; because the bullionist has received 100 cents for his 51 cents worth of silver, and even if the plan should fail the bullionist can't lose, because he can compel the government to redeem the coin issued at 100 cents and the taxpayer will be compelled to make up the deficit created by the insane scheme of giving the bullionist 49 cents on each 51 cents worth of silver coined, and for no reason whatever.

Under the seigniorage plan, Mr. Brumm argued, such a calamity can be avoided, for the reason that the government will buy the silver from the bullionist at 51, or whatever the market value may be at the time. In this way the government, and not the bullionist, will get the advantage of the seigniorage. Should the plan fail the government can redeem the issue without leaving the bullionist 49 cents ahead on each dollar's worth. In addition to this Mr. Brumm said that free coinage of silver would throw open the mints to silver bullion from all parts of the world. Foreigners would certainly bring all the bullion they could scrape together, knowing that the United States government was giving 100 cents for each 51 cents worth of bullion, and this country would be giving the foreign countries 49 cents on the dollar for nothing. But under the seigniorage system there would be no inducement for such an influx, as the government would only buy the bullion at its actual value, and this the foreigners can get in their own mints, so it would mean a loss to them to bring their bullion here. Bimetallism should be the cry of the people, and bimetallism by international agreement. It is not necessary for us to have England, or Germany, in such an agreement. They are the two great creditor nations, but they can be discarded. It can be accomplished by a compact with Russia, with Austria-Hungary and other countries. Russia was friendly to the United States during the civil war and in the election of the Republican ticket bimetallism can be brought about.

THE MAINE ELECTION.

Possibility of a Republican Majority of Over 30,000.

Augusta, Sept. 14.—With fair weather today Hon. Llewellyn Powers, Republican, will be elected governor of Maine by over 30,000 majority, with a strong possibility that the figures will be nearer 40,000. At least that is what the prophets of both parties who have been figuring the vote for the last three weeks declare. Chairman Manley, of the Republican state committee, believes that the figures will be the largest ever given in a presidential year, and his Democratic opponents practically agree with him.

The Democratic managers declare that the doctrine of free silver was practically unknown in Maine two months ago, and they argue that the Democratic vote which will be cast today means that the policy has made great gains in the last few weeks. They declare that if the Republican majority falls below 29,000 it will be a Democratic victory.

The governor is the only state officer elected by the people in Maine, all others being chosen by the legislature. The candidates on the official ballot today are Hon. Llewellyn Powers of Houlton, Republican; Hon. Melvin P. Frank of Portland, Democrat; Ammi S. Ladd of Calais, Prohibition, and Luther C. Bateman of Auburn, Populist. The name of William Henry Clifford, of Portland, the nominee of the gold Democrats, is not on the ticket, and those who wish to vote for him must write his name on the ballot. In all of the congressional districts increased Republican majorities are looked for. Speaker Thomas H. Root, in the First district, will probably be honored with the largest majority he has ever received.

Killed by a Fall of Clay.

HAILETTON, Pa., Sept. 14.—There was great excitement in Honey Brook, a suburb of this city, occasioned by the report that seventeen men were killed outright and thirty more entombed at No. 10 strip-pings, which is worked by the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal company. A repetition of the Pittston horror was feared, and authentic information finally received showed that but one man was killed and five seriously injured by a fall of clay.

Disastrous Freight Wreck.

READING, Pa., Sept. 14.—A disastrous freight wreck occurred Saturday night on the East Penn branch of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad. Seventeen cars were broken into kindling wood and the debris was burned. A number of tramps who were stealing rides on the train had narrow escapes. The cause of the wreck was a broken bumper.

CLEVELAND FOR PALMER!

The President Telegraphs the Notification Meeting.

CARLISLE ALSO FOR THE TICKET

The Candidates of the National Democratic Party Formally Notified of Their Nomination—Telegrams of the President and Secretary Received.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 14.—The blue and gray, the symbols of the cross separated but now united country, were blended in the stage decorations of the Auditorium Saturday evening, when Palmer and Buckner received their formal notification of the action of the Indianapolis convention. A great feature of the gathering was the reading of telegrams from President Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle, heartily indorsing the third ticket.

The portraits of the nominees were hung over the center of the rostrum, each decked in its appropriate color, but with a sort of blue lining protectively over the sober gray of the Confederate. To the right and left hung immense national flags. The theater proper was resplendent with blue and bunting. The columns were decorated and the balcony was draped with equal effect. The attendance was unparalleled in the history of the Auditorium. The house has a seating capacity of 4,000 in front and 500 on the stage and in the boxes. There are fourteen of these boxes, all occupied by ladies.

The appearance of the candidates caused great cheering. General Buckner was on the arm of General Palmer as they moved across the stage. Everybody rose to their feet, handkerchiefs and hats were waved, and at times a resounding stamp shook the building. Another scene ensued when the band came in playing "Dixie." This familiar old tune brought out the fatuous red yells, which did not hush until the nominees took their seats. Mr. Phelps was graciously received when he called the meeting to order. The singing of "America" was enthusiastically done, and accorded well with the patriotic feeling of the assembly.

The meeting was presided over by Hon. W. D. Bynum, of Indiana, chairman of the National Democratic executive committee. United States Senator Demolson Caffery, of Louisiana, notified Senator Palmer, and Colonel John R. Fellows, of New York, informed General Buckner of the honor conferred upon him. The two standard bearers replied in turn.

Mr. Bynum was brief in his remarks, and at once proceeded to read the letters of Secretary Lamont and Secretary Francis, which have been published, describing the work of the Indianapolis convention. When he took up a third and read the words "Bar Harbor," there were yells of delight. "That's Carlisle, that's Carlisle," was the cry, and when Mr. Bynum finished reading three cheers were given for Carlisle half a dozen times. Then came the outburst of the evening: "Buzard's Day," read Mr. Bynum. That was all the audience wanted to hear. Men jumped up on the chairs and in the aisles, screaming like mad for Grover Cleveland. It was two minutes before Mr. Bynum could proceed, and he was continually interrupted with cheers for Grover Cleveland.

The telegram from President Cleveland follows:

"Hon. W. D. Bynum, Indianapolis: I regret that I cannot accept your invitation to attend the notification meeting on Saturday evening. As a Democrat devoted to the principles and integrity of my party, I should be delighted to be present on an occasion so significant, and to mingle with those who are determined that the voice of true democracy shall not be smothered, and who insist that its glorious standard shall be borne aloft, as of old, in faithful hands."

Secretary Carlisle's indorsement was as follows:

"Hon. W. D. Bynum, Louisville: Your telegram inviting me to attend the meeting in Louisville today has been forwarded to me at this place, and I greatly regret my inability to accept. The conservative and patriotic declaration of the Indianapolis convention on the public question involved in the pending contest and the high character of its nominees cannot fail to arouse the real Democratic sentiment of the country and command the hearty support of all who sincerely believe in the preservation of the public honor, the public peace and the stability and value of the currency used by our people. I am proud to take my stand with the old-fashioned Democrats who have refused to abandon their honest convictions in order to form unnatural alliances with political and social organizations whose purposes are dangerous to the country and wholly inconsistent with the fundamental principles of our party, and I pledge to you and your associates such support and assistance as I can properly give during the campaign."

Fitzsimmons and Corbett Again Matched.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Robert Fitzsimmons and James J. Corbett are again matched to box for the heavyweight championship of the world. The agreement was reached in a room on the fifth floor of the Bartholdi hotel, and at the conclusion of the discussion the two boxers drank wine and shook hands. The meeting was a friendly one in the extreme, and, although a very small table separated the pugilists, no blows were struck and nothing more than an occasional hard look was passed.
