CARLISLE GIVES HIS VIEWS

On the Maintenance of the Parity Between Gold and Silver.

IN ANSWER TO MANY INQUIRIES

The Secretary Writes on the Subject-"The Government Will Do Whatever Its Moral Obligations and Express Declarations Require It to Do.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Sept. 16.—Secretary Carlisle has written the following letter on the subject of the maintenance of the parity between gold and silver:

Mr. James P. Helm, Louisville, Ky,—My
Dear Sir: Your letter asking how the silver dollars, which contain a quantity of bullion commercially worth only about fifty-three cents each, are maintained at a parity with gold, notwithstanding the fact that the government does not directly redeem them, or the certificates issued upon them, in gold, is received, and as a great many inquiries upon the same sub-jecture addressed to me daily from dif-ferent parts of the country which it is impracticable to answer in detail, I will answer them all at once.

All the standard sliver dollars issued from the mints since the passage of the act of 1978, now amounting to more than $433,-000,000, have been coined on public ac-count from bullion purchased by the gov-ornment and are legal tender in payment of all debts, public and private, without regard to the amount, except when otherwise expressly stipulated in the contract between the parties. They belong to the government when coined, and they are government when coined, and they are paid out by the government at a parity with gold for property and services of all kinds, and received from the people at a parity with gold in the payment of all public dues and demands. The govern-ment has made no discrimination what-ever between the coins of the two metals, gold having been paid on its coin obliga-tions when gold was demanded and allow tions when gold was demanded and silver having been paid when silver was de-

Under this policy the coinage has been so limited by law and the policy of the treasury department that the amount coined has not become so great as to drive the more valuable coin, gold, out of use, and thus destroy the basis of our mone-tary system; and so long as the two metals are of unequal commercial value, at the ratio established by law, this limitation upon the coinage is, in my opinion, absolutely essential to the maintenance of their parity in effecting exchanges. If the limitation were removed confidence in the ability of the government to preserve equality in the exchangeable value of the coins would be destroyed, and the parity would be lost long before the amount of silver coinage had become roally excessive. With free and unlimited coinage of silver on account of private individuals and corporations the govern-ment would be under no moral obligation to maintain the parity, and, moreover, it would be unable to do so, because the volume of overvalued aliver forced into circulation by a legal tender provision would soon expel gold from the country or put such a premium upon it that it would be impossible to procure and hold in the treasury a sufficient amount to provide for the redemption of silver on

In order to maintain the parity under such conditions the government ent would be led from ing to exchang gold for silver dollars and their paper rep-resentatives whenever demanded, just as it now exchanges gold for its own notes when demanded; and as the coinage of silver dollars would be unlimited and therefore, constantly increasing, a point would soon be reached where it would be impossible to continue the process of redemption.

The implied obligation of the government to preserve the value of the money which it coins from its own bullion and for its own use, and which it forces its citizens to receive in exchange for their property and services, has been supple-mented by two statutory declarations which substantially pledge the public faith to the maintenance of that policy. The act of July 14, 1850, after providing that the secretary of the treasury should under such regulations as he might prescribe redoem the treasury notes issued in the pur-chase of silver bullion, in gold or silver coin at his discretion, declares that it is "the established policy of the United States to maintain the two metals on a parity with each other upon the present legal ratio, or such ratio as may be pro-vided by law," and the act of Nov. 1, 1898, again declares it to be "the policy of the United States to continue the use of both gold and silver as standard money and to coin both gold and silver into money of equal intrinsic and exchangeable value, such equality to be secured through in-ternational agreement or by such safe-quards of legislation as will insure the maintenance of the parity of value of the coins of the two metals and the equal power of every dollar at all times in the markets and in the payment of debts."

With knowledge of these assurances, the people have received these coins and have relied confidently upon the good faith of their government, and the confidence thus inspired has been a most potent factor in the maintenance of the parity. The public has been satisfied that, so long as our present monetary system is preserved. the government will do whatever its moral obligations and express declarations require it to do, and very largely as a con-sequence of this confidence in the good faith of the executive authorities the silver coins have not depreciated in value. It is not doubted that whatever can be lawfully done to maintain equality in the ex-changeable value of the two metals will be done whenever it becomes necessary, and although silver dollars and silver certifi-cates have not, up to the present time, been received in exchange for gold, yet if the time shall ever come when the parity can-not be otherwise maintained such ex-to execute in good faith the poncy de-clared by congress, and whenever he shall be satisfied that the silver dollar cannot be satisfied that the silver dollar cannot be kept equal in purchasing power with the gold dollar, except by receiving it in exchange for the gold dollar, when such exchange is demanded, it will be his duty to adopt that course. But if our present policy is adhered to, and the colnage is kept within reasonable limits, the means heretofore employed for the maintenance of the parity will doubtless be found sufficient in the future, and our silver dollars and silver certificates will continue to circulate at par with gold, thus enab-ling the people to use both metals instead of one only, as would be the case if the parity were destroyed by free coinage.

Yarowski was taken to the Pottsville jail
Monday night. Immediately after his departure his friends set up a cry that an innocent man had been arrested and that the real culprit was Harry's brother, Charles out none could say where he was.

The United States authorities are evidently as well, if not better posted in the case than the friends of the accessed. They not only hold Harry Yarowski in custody, but ar-rested Charles at Des Moines, Iowa, late Monday night. News to this effect was re-ceived in town. The latter arrest was made by detectives under direction of the United States postal authorities, who had Charle under surveillance for over two months, but did not wish to take him in custody until one of the brothers in this county could be track last Sunday.
