REPUBLICAN PARTY'S LEADER

Still Receiving Delegations From Many Sections.

PARADING IN A RAIN STORM!

Drenching Showers Have no Terrors for the Republicans Who Visit Canton to Pay Their Tributes of Respect to Their Standard Bearer.

CANTON, O., Oct. 7.—Rain and sleet did not keep the big delegations from Canton yesterday. No more enthusiastic callers have been here than those from Tonawanda, Buffalo and Syracuse, N. Y., and Lenoxville, Michigan. Through the drenching showers the callers marched to the McKinley home, making the city resound with their enthusiasm, while mounted troops and large bands of music and finely drilled companies, uniformed in mackintoshes, evoked cheers from the thousands who stood sheltered in the doorways and under awnings.

The formal receptions of the visiting delegations did not end the demonstrations. Soon as the city was shrouded in darkness the clubs were again on the streets, Michigan and New York and Ohio uniting to form the spectacle. When the parade was well organized it marched and countermarched past the McKinley home, and was received from the little stand on the front lawn by Major and Mrs. McKinley and others.

The first delegation to arrive came in at 12:00, when the regular west bound train brought two extra coaches filled with shouting McKinley men from East Brady, Clarion county, Pa. They were headed by a band, and the banner carried announced the party as "The Plintocrats of Clarion County, Pa." The delegation was introduced by L. E. Graham.

A special train of five coaches arrived about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, bringing the lumber dealers of Buffalo and Tonawanda. This was a distinguished appearing and thoroughly enthusiastic delegation. It was composed of business men connected with the lumber trade, and, according to the statement of the spokesman, included many former Democrats. The reception was held in the Tabernacle, rain preventing a demonstration on the lawn. Millard F. Burns made the introductory address.

Shortly after 5 o'clock a special train of five coaches arrived bearing the Republican clubs of Syracuse, N. Y. Most prominent in this was a handsomely uniformed and well drilled Syracuse escort, an organization effected in 1874. There were also representatives of thirteen other clubs, including a detachment of wheelmen. The delegation was introduced by Daniel Crichton, a business man.

A few minutes after the Syracuse party arrived a special train of ten coaches roached Canton, bringing a delegation named in honor of Lenoxville, Mich. The party was made up of about 50 per cent farmers. The delegation, in a pouring rain, marched to the McKinley home to view the lawn. They then returned to the Tabernacle, where Henry C. Smith made the introductory address.

In his speech to the lumbermen Major McKinley said:

"No one can know better than the men engaged in your occupation the value of stable money and of general prosperity. No one can know better than you the effect upon your business of the waves of depression and those of prosperity, and I receive the assurances so feelingly given me by your spokesman with a grateful heart, and return to you all my sincere thanks. This is a year when party discipline sets loose upon the people of the country.

"We are honored here today in having with us these enterprising business men, who represent the great lumber interests of Buffalo and Tonawanda. In 1890 the lake trade in lumber at Buffalo was over 282,000,000 feet, and at Tonawanda over 717,000,000 feet, though under the lumber provisions of the present tariff law the trade of Buffalo has since decreased until in 1895 it was 51,000,000 feet less than in 1890, while that of Tonawanda had shrunk in the same period more than 296,000,000 feet. Canadian free lumber has been encouraged at the expense of the lumber interests of the great state of New York and all the other states of the American Union. I may be pardoned, gentlemen, if I say in this presence that I believe in the policy that gives preference to Buffalo and Tonawanda rather than to Montreal and Toronto. Like all the other features of free trade it has helped to make us poorer for the advantage of other people living within another jurisdiction, and who owe no allegiance to our flag."

To the delegation from East Brady, Pa., Mr. McKinley said: "We are too apt to forget what is behind us, and too apt to be heedless of our own experience. We can hardly realize that from 1873 to 1893 we reduced the public debt from $2,333,331.308 to $259,000,000. We paid off during those twenty years $1,074,331.308 of the public debt. And we were under a protective and sound money system when we were making the large payments. Two-thirds of that great debt has disappeared, and while we were paying it off we were building in this country the most splendid industrial enterprises, giving steady employment to American labor at fair wages and giving to the farmers of the country a just reward for their toil and labor.

"During that period, for the greater part of the time, we were selling more gold abroad than we were buying abroad. And the balance of trade was therefore in our favor, and the balance of trade, settled as it was in gold, gave us the good yellow money from the other side of the ocean. Four years ago the people of this country determined to change that policy and they did change it. What has been the result? We have since that time created a national debt, principal and interest, of about three hundred millions. We have had for the greater part of that time a deficiency in the treasury, the government not collecting sufficient revenues to meet its current expenses.

"Your spokesman tells us that in your own county thirty-one blast furnaces have been stopped. What does that mean? It means that wages have been stopped. It means that the labor has been unemployed. It means that comforts have been taken away from hundreds of American homes which they had previously enjoyed. It means that which is true of your county has been true—possibly not to such a large degree—through the entire country. Now, what we want to do is to get back to a policy that will give us a chance to increase our manufacturing, improve our home market, extend our foreign market and give employment every day in the year to every working-man who wants work."

Today's Election in Georgia. AUGUSTA, Oct. 7.—The election for state and county officers is proceeding in Georgia today. There are two full tickets in the field, the Democratic being led by W. Y. Atkinson, the present governor, while Seaborn White heads the ticket put out by the fusion of the Prohibitionists and Populists. The Populists do not regard White as the Simon pure article. The Prohibitionists are much enthused, as this is the only time they have ever been given prominence. Democratic leaders are confident that they will get 50,000 majority. A. E. Buck, the Republican leader, has issued a manifesto advising Republicans to vote for White.

To Drown Out a Mine Fire. WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 7.—The squeeze in the Huberman at Pittston turns out to have been a more serious affair than at first reported. The squeeze was followed Monday night by an explosion of gas, and yesterday another explosion occurred. An exploring party, consisting of Fire Boss Fred Davis, Tracklayer Adam Smith and Foreman John Brady, had a narrow escape with their lives. Preparations are being made to flood the mine, which is now on fire. Three hundred men are thrown out of employment.

Electors Withdraw by Request. HARRISBURG, Oct. 7.—Jason J. Brooks of Sewickley and William Stahler of Norristown have withdrawn as electors on the state Democratic ticket, at the request of State Chairman Garman, to make room for the surplus electors chosen at the recalled state convention held in Harrisburg. A meeting of the executive committee will be held at the state headquarters in this city tomorrow to amend the certificates of the nominees of the state ticket.

Convicted of Furnishing False News. NORRISTOWN, Pa., Oct. 7.—Dr. John S. Schwaider, of Arzola, was yesterday convicted in the criminal court of furnishing a false statement to the Norristown Fireco. This is the first case in this county tried under the law of 1893 making it a misdemeanor to furnish false statements to a newspaper. A writ for arrest of judgment was granted on the ground of the unconstitutionality of the act.

The Baltimorees Off for Cleveland. BALTIMORE, Oct. 7.—The champions and the Cleveland team left last night for Cleveland, where they will play as many of the remaining games as may be necessary to settle the contest for the Temple cup, unless a seventh should be required, in which event Pittsburg will get it. It is announced that the total receipts for the three games played in Baltimore amounted to but $4,500.

KLINE TO BE BROUGHT HERE

He Has Been a Fugitive For Over Three Years.

WANTED FOR BRENNAN ROBBERY

In That Case the Thieves Secured Eighteen Hundred Dollars—Kline Has Just Been Acquitted After Trial at Sunbury on Another Charge.

Justice J. J. Cardin this afternoon received from the warden of the county jail at Sunbury, Northumberland county, a telegram notifying him that one Michael Kline was at his disposal, providing the man would be released. The justice at once sent a telegraphic answer requesting that Kline be detained until to-morrow, by which time either Detective Amour, or Constable Bolin, will reach the jail to claim the prisoner.

The telegram repeats many interesting chapters of Shenandoah history in which a court comedy figures. Michael Kline is a Shenandoah man and has enjoyed the distinction of being one of its most dangerous criminals for years. He was the junior partner in the notorious Flynn-Kline gang of burglars who defied the police authorities for several years. Flynn was eventually captured and convicted, but subsequently escaped from the Pottsville jail, figuring in the famous "skylight" flight.

Kline remained in town until June, 1893, since that time he has been a fugitive from this county and although traced to several parts of this state and New Jersey he has always eluded arrest on that charge. On the afternoon of June 3rd, 1893, Kline, William Zollner and Edward Loutcher, the last named two also young men of bad reputation residing in town, were seen loitering at the corner of Strawberry alley and Chestnut street and about 100 feet from the saloon and residence of Daniel E. Brennan, which were then located at the corner of Coal and Chestnut streets. Subsequent developments showed that Kline and his companions waited until Mrs. Brennan went to a neighbor's house and Mr. Brennan stepped out on Coal street to talk to a policeman who happened to pass. The loitering trio then entered the Brennan house from the Chestnut street entrance, went up to the second story, forced open a bureau drawer and escaped with $1,800 in cash. The robbery was well planned and swiftly executed. Nobody saw the thieves enter or leave the house. The best evidence at hand was that of one man who noticed the man loitering at Strawberry alley immediately after the robbery, however, Kline disappeared and was never after seen in this town. Zollner and Loutcher remained here and four days after the robbery was arrested by Chief of Police O'Hara in information furnished by Loutcher's father, who became suspicious upon noticing his son's frequent visits to the cellar of his house. Zollner was also arrested and a search of the cellar revealed $500 of the stolen money buried in a corner. The two thieves were confined in the Pottsville jail for some time and to a detective who was locked in a cell with him Zollner made admissions that resulted in a conviction. Zollner was sentenced to imprisonment for 2½ years, but upon attempting to break jail got six months more. Loutcher also got a sentence of 2½ years and six months more for perjury, or to be more explicit, for fooling the Sheriff.

While on trial Loutcher swore that the greater part of the money had been buried in a dirt bank at the Robinson colliery. The court adjourned and Loutcher was taken to the colliery to show the place of burial. Several hours were spent in digging into the dirt bank when Justice Cardin exclaimed, "You've got a hole big enough to bury Loutcher, throw him into it, he's only lying." Loutcher admitted that he was hoaxing the Sheriff and was taken back to court. He and Zollner have almost completed their terms.

Meanwhile Kline was enjoying his liberty, but a few weeks ago he got in with some tramps at Mt. Carmel and was arrested, with them for shooting and dangerously injuring a watchman. Kline was passing under an assumed name but Jonathan Rogers, Sr., a former resident of this place and since deceased, revealed the man's real identity and Detective Amour at once lodged a detainer against Kline, at the Sunbury jail, so that if the shooting charge should fall the man could be brought here on the Brennan charge. Last week Kline was tried at the Sunbury court with the tramps for shooting the watchman, but the jury failed to convict him, and now he is awaiting the pleasure of authorities here.

Kline has always been favored by Dame Fortune and, although there exists no doubt that he was the ringleader in the Brennan robbery, he may yet squeeze through a trial without a conviction. The only real evidence against him is that of the one man who saw him loitering near Brennan's house and the fact that he disappeared after the robbery. Zollner and Loutcher, being felons, will be poor witnesses for the Commonwealth.

Mandolins—big stock just received at Brennan's.

Another Pool Match. Frank Brecker and L. K. Culbertson have been matched to play a game of pool, 100 points, for $50 a side at Anthony Schmicker's restaurant, on South Main street, to-morrow (Thursday) night. The match is to be played strictly upon the merits of the men and the man making the first 150 points will be the winner.

Worthy of His Hire.

A civil suit in which there were many amusing features was tried before Justice Cardin this morning. The plaintiff was a young man of the First ward named Thomas Brennan, and the defendant Carley Egan, of the same part of the town. Brennan sued to recover $1.50 for the hire of his horse and 50 cents for repairs to harness. Egan said he was willing to pay, but Brennan would not give him time and since the latter had sued Egan determined to fight the case to the bitter end. M. S. Burke, Esq., was present to represent him. Egan said that the horse was loaned to him and it refused to pull a load of about 500 pounds up a hill. He got a number of men to help him push the load and horse up one hill. He left Shenandoah early in the day and got back from Mahanoy City at night. On the way the horse kicked the harness to pieces. Brennan challenged Egan and his witness on the knowledge of horses and for a while the suit waxed as warm as if two thousand instead of two dollars were involved. The Justice gave judgment for the plaintiff, Mr. Egan declares he will carry the case to the county court.
