THE TRUE FRIEND OF LABOR

Hon. Elias Davis, Popular Candidate For County Treasurer.

A RECORD THAT IS UNIMPEACHABLE

As a Member of the State Legislature, Mr. Davis Proved Himself an Earnest Worker in the Cause of Humanity—Father of the Two-Week Pay Bill

The subject of this short and imperfect sketch, Hon. Elias Davis, of Broad Mountain, is well and favorably known to the voters of Shenandoah county, and it is hardly necessary to say that he is a candidate for County Treasurer, one of the most important offices at the court house. During the past fifteen or twenty years Mr. Davis has been almost continually in close touch with the voters of the county, although he has held but one public office, that of Representative from the Fourth Legislative district. During the time mentioned he has probably cultivated a more extensive acquaintance than any of the candidates now before the people of this county.

Mr. Davis is 41 years of age, having been born in Wadesville, this county, in November, 1855. Previous to his election as a member of the lower House at Harrisburg, in 1884, he worked in and around the mines, commencing as a slatepicker when he was but eight years old. Recognized as a leader among the workmen, Mr. Davis secured the Republican nomination for the Legislature and was elected for three consecutive terms. As a member of the Mines and Mining Committee he did effective work in the interest of those who toil beneath the ground, and his record as an ex-legislator will be a big factor in increasing the majority that will be recorded for him Tuesday next.

Having framed, introduced and secured the passage of the semi-monthly pay bill, Mr. Davis has a claim upon the voters of this county they cannot and will not forget. There is no law upon the statute books that brought greater prominence to its projector than that which Mr. Davis acquired as father of the bill above stated. It is acknowledged by workmen and business men, for both secure much benefit from its provisions, and to be one of the best laws enacted in the state. The miners of to-day can well remember that previous to the passage of this law that pay-day was irregular. Sometimes they were compelled to wait four weeks, again five weeks, and even six weeks intervened between pay-days. This operated greatly to the disadvantage of the wage worker, but the business man as well. Mr. Davis has changed all this, and to-day payments are regularly made every two weeks, and if there is the least spark of gratitude within the breast of the workmen and miners of the region they will cast their votes for Mr. Davis.

Mr. Davis introduced other legislation, and secured the passage in the House of a bill to tax owners of coal lands one cent per ton for all coal mined in order to provide a fund for wounded and maimed mine workers and for the widows and orphans in case of death by accident, but it was defeated in the Senate. While the merit and justice of the bill was generally recognized, even in the latter body, there developed an antagonism from certain sources that the bill was killed in the Senate committee. Had this measure, introduced and successfully passed in the House by Mr. Davis, become a law, there would be no necessity for raising funds by popular subscription for the relief of the families of the Twin Shaft victims, or any similar accident. There are many other features in the career of Mr. Davis as a legislator that commend him to the friendly consideration of the voters of the county, but if there were no others than those stated he should be entitled to the suffrage of every citizen, without regard to party affiliation.

Mr. Davis is also well equipped for the duties of the office to which he applies by long business training, thoroughness, thorough and efficient management to the county's leading financial office. His unquestioned integrity won for him an honest administration. Known from one end of the county to the other, his general characteristics will rally to his support not only the entire Republican vote but hundreds of Democrats as well.

As a party worker Mr. Davis has been untiring in every campaign since he was a voter, working for the party's interests far more diligently, perhaps, than he has ever done for his own. There have been few campaigns in which he has not appeared upon the platform in the interest of the entire ticket. Two years ago Mr. Davis was defeated for the nomination for Sheriff by less than two votes. Instead of sulking in his tent, as defeated candidates generally do, he accompanied his successful opponent, Mr. Scott, from one end of the county to the other in that gentleman's interest and materially assisted in his election. For this and other reasons Mr. Davis has the great advantage of a united party in his support. A man who has shown his worth as a public official, having the advantages of a long and successful business training, affable, courteous and obliging at all times and all places—the people have a candidate for County Treasurer in the person of Hon. Elias Davis for whom it is a duty and as well as a pleasure to vote. They will attest their appreciation of his efforts in their behalf by giving him the largest vote recorded for any candidate, on either ticket, on Tuesday next.

Vote for Elias Davis and an honest, business administration of the Treasurer's office.

MR. TYNAN IS HOME AGAIN

The Alleged "No. 1" Landed at New York City.
IS AN OPPONENT OF DYNAMITE.

At no Time Has He Favored the Methods of the Anarchists—He Tells of His Arrest and Says a Move Will Soon be Made For Ireland's Freedom.

New York, Oct. 27.—P. J. Tynan, the alleged "No. 1" of the Phoenix Park murderers, was a passenger on the North German Lloyd steamer Saale, which arrived last evening from Bremen. Mr. Tynan was seen at Quarantine. He said that he naturally hesitated to talk for publication, even in this country, as it was possible any reference by him might compromise others, and perhaps those who had been kind to him. He refused to discuss the purpose of his visit to Europe, but he emphatically stated that his mission was entirely successful. He ridiculed the reported cleverness of the Scotland Yard detectives, and said he had been under their noses a number of times without being suspected. He had also visited Gibraltar.

Mr. Tynan said it was owing to some carelessness while in a certain city that the detectives began to suspect him. He refused to say what city he referred to.

P. J. P. TYNAN.

His treatment in the French prison was exactly the same as that accorded other prisoners, but he had the privilege of sending to the sexton for his meals. The subject and all the attacks were very much interested in him and warmly espoused his cause.

Mr. Tynan traveled under his own name. He looks to be fully fifteen years younger than when he was last seen in this city. He had shaved off his beard and whiskers, which were so conspicuous in photographs taken when he was a member of the Middlesex volunteer regiment, and could have passed easily for an English cattle dealer. He was met at the pier by Mrs. Tynan, his six daughters and his two sons.

Tynan was extremely reticent, and told the newspapers who met him that statements made by him after his release from the prison in Boulogne had been distorted to such an extent as to be almost untrue in every respect.

To a representative of the Associated Press he said: "I cannot say anything with reference to my business in Europe. It was of a legitimate character, and I am glad to say that my mission was successful."

"I don't know why I was arrested. I presume the English government wanted to get me into its clutches by any means. I knew for some time before I was arrested that I was watched by British spies, but did not expect my arrest when my room was broken into. I was awakened by the landlord, who had two English detectives and a crowd of gentlemen with him, and one of the detectives, the moment I woke, held a revolver to my forehead. I simply got up, dressed myself and went to prison with my captors. I knew it was no use to say anything."

"The British government was determined to get me on British soil if it could do so, and my friends told me that every effort was made to induce the French government to hand me over to England's tender mercies. The French government refused to do so, and I am here again—a free man."

"What do you think would have happened to you if you had been extradited from France to England?" asked the reporter.

"What do you think?" Tynan retorted. "Why everybody knows I would have been either executed or imprisoned for life. The English government never hesitates to manufacture evidence when an Irishman's life is to be sacrificed. Why, one of the charges under which I was arrested was that I had been in contact with the Phoenix Park business, was disposed of thirteen years ago by the French government, but the English government tried to take this charge up again."

"Do you believe in the policy of dynamite?" Tynan was asked.

"A fellow passenger on the Saale, who sat beside me at dinner, the day after we left Cherbourg, said to me: 'Do you know who we have on board?' I said I didn't, and he replied, 'Why, Tynan, the famous dynamiter!'"

"I felt a little shocked, but told him I was Tynan. He didn't eat any more dinner, and looked sensible. The next day I met him and told him that the only dynamiter I had ever met was Zolinski, who was a most charming fellow, and who was the inventor of the dynamite gun which was so generally adopted and extolled by the war departments of all the European nations."

"I wish to say that I am a detester of anarchism, and cannot believe that the freedom of Ireland can be achieved by anarchistic methods. All the statements made as to my desire to have the czar of Russia blown up are villainous and infamous."

"The day for Ireland's attack on England will soon come, and our enemy will then learn what our methods are and feel their effects. As to all the 'stories' published about me, I can only say they are Scotland Yard 'fakes,' got up for the purpose of injuring me. I think their object has failed."

Thrown From a Wagon.
John Berg, the East Centre street grocer, confined to his bed by injuries sustained in being thrown from his wagon and run over at about five o'clock last evening. He is under the care of Dr. M. S. Kistler. Berg started from the Lehigh Valley freight depot with a load of about 1,500 pounds on his wagon. The seat was on top of a barrel of sugar. Berg tried to watch some boys who were engaged in playing football and as he did so the seat tipped and threw him to the ground and in front of the wheels. One of the wheels passed over his left leg, just above the knee, and inflicted a large gash, but caused no fracture. Berg was also bruised about the left side and chest by the fall. As the seat fell from the wagon the horse took fright and ran away, but they were caught after running as far as the electric light station.
