THE amount of money expended by the state in aiding the different public charities reaches enormous proportions.

THE committee has visited the different hospitals, homes, etc., supported by the state, as well as those maintained by the different counties.

THE result of the investigations made by the committee so far certainly bear out this assertion. Of all the indigent and unfortunate beings cared for at the state's expense for present, over thirty per cent. are aliens.

MR. HANNA'S CORRESPONDENTS.

Republican Chairman Announces That He Is Not a Patronage Broker.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 14.—I have had a great deal of glory out of this campaign, and I am satisfied," said Hon. M. A. Hanna yesterday while he was busily engaged in going through an enormous accumulation of correspondence.

The remark was called forth by a letter which the national chairman found in his mail, and the writer, which, after enlarging Mr. Hanna as the only man for the secretaryship of the treasury, said:

"If you find the duties of the position too arduous, for you, call on me and I will come and help you."

"Here," continued Mr. Hanna, "is another man, whose request I can easily grant. He says, 'Don't appoint any person to this position until you see me.'"

"Nearly every letter I get nowadays is either a request for an appointment or a contribution of some sort. It's absurd, though, to make the former request of me, and I just told a man that I was no patronage broker."

Concerning the national Republican headquarters Mr. Hanna said: "The Chicago headquarters will be closed early next week, and Major Dick will come back here. The New York headquarters will probably be kept open until we decide about the permanent national headquarters."

"Where will they be located?" he was asked. "I am in favor of Washington myself. Everything will be centered there, but wherever they are you can depend upon it that active work will be kept up."

Bryan Gets One Kentucky Elector. FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 14.—Returns from all the 119 counties in the state have been received at the office of the secretary of state. On the national ticket they show a total vote of 445,000. McKinley's vote is 218,000; Bryan's, 217,700. McKinley's plurality is 267. Cash, the first elector on the ticket for McKinley and Hobart, has 218,700. Smith, the highest of Bryan and several electors, has 217,700. Smith defeats the lowest McKinley electors.

IRISH INFORMER TESTIFIES.

ing Lyman, Boland, Gallagher, Kearney and Tynan.

They afterwards, Jones added, formed a new camp, which was called "The Nally club," the membership of which included Mearns and Nolan, who had been connected with an explosion in Dublin.

Jones further stated that he was elected treasurer of "The Nally club," whose meetings, it appears, were of the most secret, the "disfranchisement" being barred after being read. After their initiation the members of this club were known by a number. Part of the subscriptions, the witness also testified, were contributed to a revolutionary fund, and calls were made for money to pay for celebrations of the death of the "Manchester martyrs" and to aid the convicted dynamite.

Answering further questions Jones said that while on his way to the Chicago convention of 1895 Kearney introduced the witness, Ivory, to the witness as a "brother."

Rosa, according to Jones, were present, and Tynan said that Ivory belonged to his "camp," and had been known to him in Dublin previous to 1892.

Jones' mention of the Chicago convention of 1895 refers to the "new movement convention," which was attended by a number of confidants of Lyman, who, during convention time, it was stated in court, held secret meetings with them.

Later, it seems, Jones joined a camp under the name of Thomas Marie Jones.

Continuing his account of the visit to Chicago, Jones said he arrived there on Sept. 23 of last year and was met at the railroad station by St. John Gaffney. He stayed at McCoy's hotel, where the committee of the secret organization met.

Jones, Jones stated, attended the meeting at which the names were chosen to be submitted to the public convention as officers of the "new movement," the object being that an open movement might be controlled, as it is, according to Jones, by a secret organization.

In another portion of his testimony Jones said that he saw Ivory two or three weeks before the latter left America in Cody's saloon, in New York, which, he further stated, is largely frequented by members of the organization.

Jones then produced a document purporting to give the constitution of the society up to 1895, and also typewritten copies of the constitution and ritual of the Clan-na-Gael.

Jones further said that any one convicted of a dynamite outrage was described in the proceedings of the organization as a "soldier of Ireland."

The witness afterwards produced a mass of documents giving "camp" instructions, passwords, signs, etc., and a copy of the report of the secret convention at Chicago, in 1895, in which an item of expenditures was $4,500 for "merchandise," which Jones explained meant dynamite.

The cross-examination of Jones did not shake his evidence, but counsel for Ivory submitted that it was not a case to go to trial.

The magistrate, however, emphatically declared there were "ample grounds" to send the case to trial, and Ivory was formally committed.

THE INFORMER JONES. Secretary O'Laughlin Says He Is Delivering "Gold Bricks" to the English.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The news of the production of an informer in the Ivory case in London created quite a sensation, and was productive of considerable comment in Irish circles in this city. Diligent inquiries among prominent Irish nationalists by a reporter of the Associated Press failed to establish the identity of more than one man named Jones who ever had any connection with Irish matters in this city. This man's name is Thomas M. Jones, who was a member of the Shamrock club and also one of the secretaries of the Amnesty association. He was also a member of the Alliance and the Nally clubs. The last heard of him in this city was about ten weeks ago, when he left here telling his acquaintances that he was going to the north of Ireland to secure some property which had been left to him through the death of a relative.

C. O'Connell, secretary of the Irish National alliance, said that he knew Jones as a member of Irish societies. He continued:

"Whether Jones is a friend of Tynan or Kearney I do not know, but I am satisfied that if he knows anything of a so-called dynamite plot the whole thing must have originated in his own brain. To my mind it is very evident that he is delivering 'gold bricks' to the Scotland Yard people in return for a fat remuneration. This trumped up evidence is only another part of the old worn out scheme of Scotland Yard when its sleuths want to secure the conviction of any Irishman who may be unfortunate enough to fall into their hands."

Mr. St. John Gaffney, whose name was mentioned by Jones in his evidence, called at the office of the Associated Press last night, and was very indignant at the mention of his name by the informant. Mr. Gaffney said: "I went to Chicago in company with Mr. Boland, and I met Jones at the depot. I was not aware of it, as there were more than a thousand persons there at the time. I never met Jones in my life. I knew the late John P. Boland referred to by Jones in his testimony. Mr. Boland was an art critic of recognized ability. I was his assistant. This man Jones probably saw me with Boland, and I cannot understand his mentioning my name except for the purpose of annoying my family in Ireland. As is well known in this city and at the other side, I am a believer in the policy of Parnell, but am not a member of any secret organization."

"Excuse me," observed the man in spectacles, "but I am a surgeon, and that is not where the liver is." "Never you mind where his liver is," retorted the other. "If it is in his big toe or his left ear DeWitt's Little Early Bitters would reach it and shake it for him. So that you can bet your gill-gumps." C. H. Hagenbuch.
