FOUR HUNDRED LOST.

In the Wreck of the North German Lloyd Steamer Saller.

LONDON, Dec. 12.-It was the North German Lloyd steamer Salier that was wrecked on the night of Dec. 7, four miles north of Villagarcia, Spain, and two and a half miles from land. She must have broken up almost immediately, as parts of the steamer have already washed ashore. Some of the bodies of those on the ill fated steamer, including that of the captain, have also been washed ashore. The captain's watch had stopped at 5:36 o'clock, presumably Tuesday morning, Dec. 8. It is believed that over 400 persons perished. The Sailer was commanded by Captain Wempe, and was loaded with a general cargo.

The passengers of the Saller, it is con-jectured, must all, or nearly all, have been in their berths in the steerage at the time the steamer struck, and it is thought that the great majority of them were drowned before they could tumble out on deck, for no bodies with life preservers on have been found.

The Salier had a fearful passage from Bremen to Coruna. Two of her boats were swept overboard by the heavy seas which best over her, and she sustained other damages from the same cause. camer struck on a ledge of rocks off Cape Carrubedo, on her way from Coruna to Villagarcia, where she was to ship an-other lot of steerage passengers bound for Buenos Ayres.

was night time, and the Salier had to run far enough south to clear the rocks off Cape Corrabedo before starboarding her helm and heading southwest, gradually pointing up westward and then in a northwesterly direction in order to head into the bay leading up to Villagarcia. But Captain Wempe seems to have been thrown out of his reckoning by the fog and rain and to have headed to port too soon, with the result that he falled to clear the rocks below Cape Corrubedo and went down with his ship and all hands.

Another theory of the cause of the disas ter is that the Saller's steering goar was carried away while she was heading driven upon the reef.

The Salier was an old vessel, which the North German Lloyd company had agreed to sell to an Italian firm trading between Italy and American ports, but owing to some slight disagreement as to the terms the deal was not completed, and the steamer was sent on another voyage. She was considered to be in every way sea-worthy and the only reason the North German Lioyd company had for selling the Salier was that there were more modern boats of the same line in readiness to take her place

WAR CLAIMS IN THE HOUSE.

Congressman Dalzell Postpones the Claims a Confederate General's Widow.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Yesterday was private bill day in the house, and seven war claims, carrying an aggregate of $18,-407, were favorably acted upon by the committee of the whole. Only two were passed by the house, however. They were to pay Peter Cook, of Arkansas, $004 for stores and supplies used by the federal troops, and to pay Augustus P. Burditt $5,130 for the use of the steamer Mattle during the war. Mr. Dalzell, of Pennsyl-vania, made an attack on the bill for the relief of Mrs. Flora A. Darling appro-priating $5,683 for her arrest, imprison-ment and confiscation of property in New Orleans in 1804. The fact was developed that she was the wife of a Confederate general. Then a point of no querum was made on his motion to lay the bill on the table, and it and three others went over until next Friday.

At the night session of the house thirty-three pension bills were favorably acted upon.
