Sommidea of the effects of the linuxrec tion is Cuha is conveyed by the Custom House returns at Philadelphia. In 1894 over twenty million dollars worth of Cuban sugar came to that part; in 1805 this was reduced to ten millions; last year tin imports of sugar from Cubs were but slightly over two million dellars in value. Of course, the loss had to be supplied elsewhers. The total value of the angur imports last your was nearly seventees million dollars, over a million many than the previous year, but only one eight of this came from Cuba, whence we formerly got mearly all and only two years ago threefourths. Demand always sails forth a supply and commerce is now so well organized that a decline in production in one country soon stimulates increased production alsowhere. Thus the best farms of Central and Eastern Europe have taken the markets relinquished by the Cuban cane plantations, and it will not be a simple matter to regain them at once, even with tranquility restored.

As it costs aching to try the experiment it would seem that any man, suffering with the nervous troubles that usually attack men, who sever stopped to realize what might be the final result, angle to be deeply interested in a remedy which will restore them to health, strength and vigor, without which they continue to live an existence of untold misery. As the remedy in question was the result of many years research as to what combination would be peculiarly effective in restoring to men the strength they need, it would seem that all men suffering with any form of nervous weakness ought to write for such a remedy at once.
