two on the other. The fifth passed close to Mrs. Bogart, and in doing so turned his head and spat violently into her face. Mrs. Rogart carried a satched in one hand and held her cloak closed with the other. Had her hands been free she would undoubtedly have slapped the lower in the face. She mo-mantarily stopped and glared at her insulter. One of the young men exclaimed in re-proachful tones, "Pete," what are you doing?" The loafer who had spat in the in-offensive woman's face raplied, "I ain't doing anything to her." Mrs. Bogart says she continued down the street. She was made exceedingly nervous by the incident and sought momentary rest at a store, after which a gentleman escorted her home. The five young men walked up Main atreet, and then turned and walked back to the post office building.

office building Mrs. Begart gives a description of her insulter, who is a stranger to her and known only by the name "Pete," which was addressed to the offender by his companions. The description is given as follows: Young man; dark hair; face broad at the eyes; broad and projecting jaws; short and thick set; wore a dark overcoat and dark Derby

A sad accident occurred at an early hour A sad accommon security at an early hour this morning, on the Lehigh Valley rellroad, near the red bridge, by which John Mc-Donald, of North Plum alley, most his death. McDonald was employed as watchman on the railroad. He had held the position for seven yours and was a sober, careful and dili-gent man, so that at first his friends refused o rallroad. The circumstances of the accident were that McDonald was walking eastward on the west-bound track of the railroad when he heard the approach of the east-bound miners train that leaves town at 5:40 a.m. for the run to Minhoney City and Delano. The train was in charge of Conductor Keeh and Engineer Schoup. McDonald stepped from the main track to the siding a little east of the red bridge, and which is used to run coal trains to the Kehley Run colliery, and continued walking eastward on the siding until he al-most reached the junction of both tracks. when the train struck him. It is believed dentity in the minds of some people.

Mrs. Bogart states that she was walking down Main street when she noticed five young men in front of her and walking in the opposite direction. When about in front of Burkhart's store Mrs. Bogart stepped aside to allow them to pass. Four did so, two passing on the inner side and the other two on the other. The fifth passed closes the main track and escaped mutilation. that he became momentarily absent minded

Benator Hawley, of Connecticut, Now Spaken of for the Succession to Secretary Lamont.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Speculation as to who would be the Ohio member in the caldnet of the president-elect has persistently hovered about the names of Sanator Sherman and Hon. Mark Hanna, the chairman of the national committee, the former being mentioned in connection with the state and treasury portfolio and the latter in connection with the head of the treasury and postofiles department. It has been known for some time, however, that Mr. Hanna's ambition was a seat in the United States senate. The retirement of Ohio's veteran senator to accept the position of premier in Mr. McKinley's cabinet will probably open the way to a gratification of this ambition.

Mr. Sherman's term as senator would expire two years hones, March 4, 1899. The vacancy created by Mr. Sherman's retirement will be filled by appointment by Governor Bushnell, pending the assembling of the Ohio legislature in January, 1898. It is understood that the old war in Ohio between the Sherman and Foraker factions has consed, and that complete harmony has been restored. to the unfortunate man. cut, with this portfolio.

As the fact that Senator Sherman was to be secretary of state was not generally known in Washington last night it occasioned no gossip or comment.
