The descrip-tion of Theyer tailies exactly, says the dispatch, with a man who on the night of Nov. 37, 1899, assaulted a prominent wo-man of Detroit, and for whose arcest a reward of $3,000 was offered by the hussathese things hand of the woman. Officers have gone to Boston to identify the prisoner.

If the prisoner turns out to be the man the Detroit police are looking for he will have to answer for a long agries of assaults committed on women and young girls in this city. The "mysterious assaulter" is the only name by which the culprit has been known here. Several girls were involgled into vacant houses by him and eriminally assaulted, as were a number of married women, whom he attacked in their homes, but he always excaped arrest. In the specific case for which the reward is offered, he entered the home of Mrs. Emma Hitzel, on Mt. Elliott avenue, on protense of attending to the gas meter, and assaulted Mrs. Himel. Our Herbert Hockin, a inborar employed on the new government building, who hears a striking resemblance to Theyer, was arrested for the orline. He was instantly nod posfor the orlus. tilvely identified by Mrs. Hitzd as the oriminal. Some of the girls who had been victims of the assaults were also inclined a balleve him to be the man wanted. Fortunately for Hockin he had an unques-tionable alibi, and after being held for wooks he was released.
