The Rev. Dr. Raiosford, a "fashionable" prescher in New York, recently criticized a proposition to give a ball at the Waldorf Hatel by the Bradley-Martins, leadors or fashionable society at the metropolis, taking the position that it was an ill-timed exhibition of wealth by the rich when se much distress prevailed among the poor. The reverend dector has precipitated quite a discussion, and as is generally the case there are two sides to the question.
