FIGHTING IN CRETE.

Reported Defeat of the Turks at Fort Voukalas.

THE OPPOSITION OF THE POWERS.

The Greeks Urge That the Action of European Governments be Resisted at Any Cost—Premier Salisbury's Sub to Emperor William.

Athens, Feb. 23.—A despatch from Cairo says that the Greek army has taken the offensive and attacked the Turkish outpost at Plateia. The Turkish outposts were overpowered and compelled to retire in the direction of the town. The Greek regulars alone in the attack on Voukalas. One officer and three soldiers were killed. Eleven soldiers were wounded. The Greek artillery destroyed the fortress of Voukalas. The advance guard of the parsons succeeded in reaching the Turkish outpost at Plateia. The fate of the other members of the garrison is unknown. According to the early reports received, the garrison of Fort Voukalas consisted of 300 soldiers and 150 Greek Muslims.

The proposal of some of the European powers to take coercive measures against Greece to enforce their prohibition of Greek action in Crete have aroused Greek public resentment throughout the kingdom, and popular demands that the government resist the action of the powers at any cost are being made in all quarters. The government, backed by the unanimous sentiment of the people, still insists that the Greek soldiers in Crete waters shall be allowed to act in accordance with the customs to which the vessels were sent. If the European squadrons should prevent Greece from acting against the Turks by sea, a revolution in Macedonia and Bulgaria is certain to follow.

In the chamber yesterday the premier, Mr. Deligdis, introduced a bill establishing the constitution of Greece in the island of Crete. The Greek steamer Pan Hellenic, conveying munitions of war to the insurgents in Crete, has been stopped by a British cruiser and turned back. A British steamer also prevented the steamer from landing provisions on the island of Crete, but it is understood the prohibition only applied to that portion of the coast occupied by the powers.

The Greek consul at Cairo has asked his government to send more men-of-war. The foreign consuls have expected from the insurgents a promise to give 12 hours notice in case of an attack on Haliata.

SALISBURY'S SUB TO WILLIAM.

The Emperor's Proposal for a Blockade Promptly Rejected.

Berlin, Feb. 23.—The newspapers of this city reflect the bitter resentment felt by Emperor William at the rejection by the cabinet of the emperor's or his majesty's personal proposal to coerce Greece by a joint blockade of the Piræus, the port of Athens, and the fleet of the powers. The emperor's proposal caused great surprise in this city, as it was generally assumed that he would not oppose the Greek pretensions in regard to Crete, owing to his sister, Sophia, being the wife of the Duke of Sparta, the crown prince of Greece. But it appears that there had been an absolute estrangement between the emperor and his sister, arising from old time quarrels, and his majesty, in addition, has never been over friendly to the royal family of Greece. The emperor's proposal to blockade the Piræus was urged by his majesty with unusual vehemence. The Marquis of Salisbury, without any hesitation, promptly declined the emperor's proposition, saying that public opinion in Great Britain would never acquiesce in such a policy.

Pro-Greek Riots in Paris.

Paris, Feb. 23.—Prison hundreds of students met at Place Pantheon last night and crossed the Seine, despite the police, who attempted to block the way. The students paraded the Boulevard des Capucines, shouting "Vive Greece and Crete; a bas Turkey." Violent collisions with the police occurred, and many persons received injuries. Attempts were made to burn the houses of the Turkish ambassador, but the police prevented this. The disorder continued until late, and particularly in the Latin quarter. One of the students had one of his legs broken and a commercial traveler also received injuries to the head.

Another Turkish Defeat Reported.

Vienna, Feb. 23.—The Neue Presse publishes a report from Salonica to the effect that a collision has occurred between the Turkish soldiers and the Greek insurgents at Naslitz, near the Greek frontier. The Turks were defeated with losses and withdrew to fetch reinforcements. The governor of Salonica has ordered troops to the point where the disturbances took place. The population along the Greek frontier, according to The Neue Presse, is eagerly awaiting the signal to rise against the Turks.

Senator Sherman Fails to Secure a Vote on the Treaty.

SENATOR DANIEL'S OBJECTIONS.

The Virginia Assents that the Ratification of the Treaty Would Only Aid Great Britain's Greed for Acquisition of Territory.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The senate adjourned at 2:15 o'clock last night, after having spent almost eight hours in continuous session on the arbitration treaty. No results were accomplished beyond voting down the motion made on Thursday by Mr. Nelson to postpone further consideration of the treaty until March. Senator Sherman made repeated efforts during the day to secure a vote on the ratification of the treaty to fix a day and hour when it would agree to vote upon the treaty. He was defeated in both purposes, and when the senate at last adjourned because of the absence of a quorum he did not say whether he would make another effort against this session to secure further consideration. He is generally supposed that he will renew the motion for an executive session.

The feeling throughout the senate among the friends as well as the opponents of the treaty is that any effort to secure a vote will be futile. There are very few, if any, senators who agree with the Ohio senator that it is possible to act finally during the present session, and even the friends of the treaty admit that it must necessarily be left aside for another session.

The advocates of postponement were somewhat disappointed in the size of the majority developed against them on the vote on Mr. Nelson's motion, but they say that the vote indicated the points made in his statement published last Monday, and added that the more the treaty was discussed the more necessary it became to postpone in order to give proper consideration to such a "hanging document." No one, he declared, could tell what it meant, or could construe its provisions. He would not say that its content form and on account of lack of consideration he certainly should vote against it.

Senator Daniel, of Virginia, made a strong speech against the document. He was opposed to it on several grounds. He declared that under it the United States bound itself with shackles. "I love the blood of revolution," he declared, "but it is not a good thing. Revolution is often progress. The senate has never declared war unjustifiable. For 130 years this country has made a record of peace. The United States has never acquired territory by war, except in a war of self defense."

On the other hand the senator pointed out that the whole method and scheme of England was acquisition. Ever grasping and greedy, always reaching out for some territory, the only nation she feared, the only nation with strength to cope with her, was the United States. It was the purpose of this treaty to bind the United States to peace. With the shackles on this country England could continue her operations of weak nations, and when she interfered with what was considered the rights of the United States or countries under her protection, arbitration would step in with a tribunal against us. The senator said that he opposed giving away the rights of the senate as a part of the treaty making power. To submit many questions to arbitration would be impolitic. We had always had good presidents, but some times there might be a bad one. Then the country would suffer.

Senator Daniel also opposed sending judges of the supreme court as members of the tribunal. He objected to mixing our judiciary with foreign complications, because some of the questions submitted might come before the court. He also stated that the United States members of the tribunal should be confirmed by the senate. He did not believe the senate should abate one jot of its power in questions so vitally affecting the welfare of the country. Senator Lindsay followed Senator Daniel with a legal argument intended to refute the Virginia senator's contention that the ratification of the treaty would result in the abdication of the treaty making power of the senate. He argued that the senate would surrender nothing by accepting the treaty and that it would do much to promote the cause of peace throughout the world.

Mrs. Gougeon's Plea for Suffrage. Indianapolis, Feb. 23.—Mrs. Helen Gougeon presided at a special meeting of the woman suffrage society to declare that women have an equal right with men to vote at general elections. At the general election in the fall of 1894 Mrs. Gougeon offered her vote in the precinct in which she lives at Lafayette, and on being refused brought suit for her rights. The court there refused her petition, and she appealed. Yesterday she declared her suit to be a plea for freedom in a government which deprives all its citizens from the consent of the governed.
