Whether the Spanish soldiery could entirely subdue the island if they were led by incorruptible and capable generals is another question. They could undoubtedly give the rebels a good deal of trouble, but the natural fastnesses of the mountains, the lack of roads and the heavy undergrowth give the natives

Our right was really never engaged, and the railway station was defended by only a small force, with two Krupp guns. Toward the end the large Turk-ish center was seen to advance in the distance, but sunset, at 6:45, caused a temporary constion.

"Trains are running to Pharsalos now, and I managed to get through. Returning on horseback in the dark-ness to Volo. I was captured by the Greek outposts, thanks to the fault of headquarters to issue regular passes. I was treated with much civility, but ras detained until a late hour.

"Having met reinforcements on the way to Velestino, I went out again Monday, when the Greeks brought up nearly the whole Pharsales force. Save the Greeks have been successful, holding their ground. The Turks mounted a battery on a hill facing the Greek teft, approached the end of the wood and burned a small village. Nearly all the fighting has been on the extreme right, in the direction of Lake Karla. and the eastern Volo road. Whoever ould cut off retreat here."

The Athens correspondent of The Dally Telegraph says; "I had an interview yesterday with M. Ralli, who told me that the report sent by the ministers of war and the interior from Pharsaios was in most respects highly satisfactory. He said they had wired him from Pharsalos that the front line of the army was in battle array, and the Turkish at-tack imminent. All the preparations possible had been made for heroic de-fense, and the spirit of the army was much better than before, owing to the hange in the supreme command.

"M. Raili declared that the victory at Velestino was the most splendid achievement of the war, the Greeks capturing an enormous quantity of arms, ammunition and horses. The Turks, after this crushing defeat, M. Raill believes, are not likely to re-engage in hostilities in that quarter." The chief points of interest in the war situation today are: First, that the decision of the ministers who have returned from the Greek frontier seems to be in favor of a con-tinuance of the war; and, second, that fighting continued almost incessantly at Velestino from last Tuesday until Sunday, with the result that General Smolenski has been prevented from actually assuming his new duties as chief of staff. As a further result, the Greeks at Velestine have managed to retain their positions, but they are too much fatigued to follow up their success.

Altogether 14 officers have been recalled from Crete to be sent on to Thessaly, and this also is a proof of the Intention of the new cabinet to con-tinue the war. The movement is actuated by necessity. All the best offi-cers are being sent to the front, nor is there any intention yet displayed to evacuate Crete.

The Turkish army is advancing in three columns on Pharsalos, while an additional column is operating in the direction of Volo. As the Volo column could easily take Velestino in the rear, the Greek position is very precarious. This probably explains the retention of General Smolenski there, as it was natural to expect him to go to Pharaa-los to assume the supreme command.
