PEARL DIVERS OF CEYLON. Marco Polo Tells of Charmers Who Keep

Away Sharks, When you leave the Island of Sailan and sail westward about 60 mfles, you come to the great province of Maalar, which is styled India the Greater. It is the best of all the Indies and is on the mainland,

In this province there are five kings, who are own brothers. The province is the finest and noblest in the world. At this end of the govince reigns one of those five royal brothers, who is a crowned king, and he name is Sonder Bandt Davar. In this kingdom they find fine and great pearls, and I will tell how they are got.

pearls, and I will tell how they are got.

The sea here forms a gulf between the Island of Seilan and the mainland, and all round this gulf the water has a depth of no more than two fathoms. The pearl fishers take their vessels, great and small, and proceed into this gulf, where they stop from the beginning of April till the middle of May. They go first to a place called Bettelar and then go to miles into the gulf. Here they cast anchor and shift from their large vessels into small boats. The merchants divide into various companies, and each of these must various companies, and each of these must engage a number of mon on wages, hiring them for April and half of May. Of all the produce they have first to pay the king, as his royalty, the tenth part, and they must also pay there men who charm the great fishes, to provent them from injuring the divers while cogniged in seeking pearls under water, one-tweptieth part of all that they may take.

These fish charmers are termed abrainman, and their charm holds good for that day only, for at night they dissolve the charms so that the fishes can work mischief at their will. These abrainman know also how to charm beasts and birds and every living thing. When the men have got late the small boots, they jump into "Demorest's Magazine," Judge's Library," and the water and dive to the bottom, which may be at a depth of from a to 12 fathons, and there they remain as long as they are able, and there they find the shells that contain the pearls, and these they put into a net ling tied round the waist and mount up to the surface with them and their dive anew. When they can't hold their breath any longer, they come up again, and after a little down they go once more. and so they go on all day. These shells are in shape like cysters or son hoods, and in these shells are found pearls, great and small, of every kind, sticking in the fiesh of the shellfish In this manner pearls are fished in great quantities, for thence, in fact, come the pearls which are spread all over the world. And the king of that state hath a very great receips and treasure from his dues upon those pearls.—"The True Story of Marco Polo," by Noah Brooks, in St. Nicholas
