THE TARIFF BILL.

The changes which the finance committee has made in the Dingley bill are not quite as aumerous or as radial as the Democrats predictal or as the Republicans at our time expected. Still, they make some important alterations in the measure from the form it had when it passed the House. As was an-Heimted, the retreactive clanes is stricker aut. The resiprovity provision placed in the bill by the House is displaced by a moregeneral section which will accomplish a sume what similar purpose in a simpler way. The tax on heer is increased from the rate placed upon it by the House. On wools of the first nd second classes the duty is cut below the House figures, while on these of the third class the dutg is advanced. Tobucco of nearly all kinds will have a higher duty than was placed on it by the House, and liftes are transferred from the free list to the dutiable achedules. Most of the duties on metals are reduced below the House rates.

In general it may be mid that the hill as it will be reported to the Senate will be a more moderate measure than it was when it passed the House. While the changes are not radiral, the majority of them are reductions. As a revenue measure the finance committee's modified bill is an improvement aver the House measure. Nor is the requirement of greater protection than the Wilson law affords lost sight of. Many duties are left as the House fixed them.

mand the House. The webcaus who composs the Republican end of the finance committee have ind a good deal of experience in tariff legislation. They understand what the country needs in this line, and, what is of prime importance at the prisent time, they know the Sconte's temper and what sort of a measure it will new pt.

It is made to predict that there will be not long-conflict between the two branches an this till. 'The charges made by the finance committee are not extreme. Unlike those made by the Senate in the Wilson full, they are not calculated to arouse the resentment of the House.
