THAT EXCAVATION.

Councilmen Become Nervous Over Its Progress May Go to Court.

There was a flurry of excitement amon some of the Councilmen this morning, caused by a report that the excavation for the presed new electric light plant at Plum alley and Oak street was threatening the safety of the electric railroad and the bridge. Several f the Councilmen visited the place and found that the report was true in part. The foundation of the bridge was apparently mfo. but the excavation had approached dangerously close to the railway. One part of the road is less than three feet from the brink of the excavation. The care passed over the place without the brink of the excavation. The care passed over the place without the care passed over the p apparently disturbing the ground, but it is feared that in case of rain the edge may be beaten or swept down and the track left without a foundation. Councilman J. P. Boehm was puzzled as to what action to take and a conference with some of the other Councilment failed to open a way for the chairman of the street committee to proceed. This dilemma was increased by the fact that the Borough Solicitor was ill and could not give the consideration required to form Thomas J. Justice Shoemaker this merning held a searing which was an echo of a hig street fight that took place in Brownsville Saturday night. George Eberman and John Osers were arraigned on charges of assault and battery on oath of John Schmidt, who alleged made a liberal display of a revolver. Eber-man and Osers awore that Schmidt was the aggressor and knocked each of them down after he had felled two other men to the ground. Justice Shocmaker remarked that, if the story was true, Schmidt should be able to tackle Fitzsimmons if properly trained. Eberman admitted that he had a revolver, but said it was passed to him while he was surrounded by about fifteen of Schmidt's friends this term, if possible. and they were threatening to pounce upon him.
