PRETTY CHURCH WEDDING.

Took Place at St. Joseph's Church, Girardville, This Morning.

St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, at Girardville, was the scene of a pretty wedding this morning at 10 o'clock, when the Rev. Peter McCullough, united Miss Maggie Morrison, of Honesville, and A. J. Farrell, of Girardville, in the holy bonds of matrimony. The bride is one of the popular school teachers of Butler township, while the groom is the well known and efficient train dispatcher of the P. & R. railway at Mahanoy Plane, and also a brother of T. J. Farrell, clerk at the P. & R. freight station, in town. The church was filled with many friends of the contracting parties to witness the nuptial knot tied.

The groom was attended by his best man, A. J. Dean, of Wm. Penn, operator at the P. & R. depot, in town, while the bride was supported by Miss Beatie McAndrew, of Honesville, also a school teacher of Butler township. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride. The happy couple departed later on a wedding trip to Atlantic City. It is needless to add that they began their journey through life amid a shower of congratulations. The Herald takes pleasure in wishing them a bright and joyous future.

J. Percy Nielda and Miss Jean Tinley were married by the Rev. John Heaney in the Presbyterian church at Shanhook, yesterday morning.

Joseph Ellison and Miss Charlotte M. Ackerman, of Pottsville, were married in St. John the Baptist church at that place yesterday. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. W. Longinus, with a nuptial mass.

Rev. Van Fossen's Health.

About a month ago Rev. G. W. Van Fossen, the highly respected pastor of All Saints' church, was compelled, by failing health, to relinquish his duties for a time and give his attention to recuperating, and for a month past he has been under the care of physicians who inform him that a total cessation from work for a few months longer is necessary to his recovery. He will, therefore, spend a month or two at Atlantic City, where he is at present, and hopes to be able to resume his duties fully restored about September 1st. Mr. Van Fossen's geniality has endeared him not only to the members of All Saints' church, but to many outside of his parish who hope for his speedy return, fully restored, to the work his heart is set upon.

HOT LEAD IN STOCK!

Determined Chase After Horse Thieves by a Danville Man.

THREATS TO SHOOT THE THIEVES

A Drive in Pursuit to Ashland, Thence a Chase by Car to Gilberton, Where the Thieves Were Three Hours in the Lead.

Some interest was created among the horse-men of town this morning by the arrival of two men who were in hot chase after horse thieves. One of the men was elderly and the other quite young. They were evidently father and son. They did not stop in town long enough to register at any of the hotels. The elderly man was Adam Benzyl, a brother of the man who built the Borough building in town.

Mr. Benzyl stated that at about eleven o'clock last night their stable at Union Corners, near Danville, was robbed of a valuable team of black horses, each of the animals weighing 1,200 pounds. The stealing was discovered shortly after it was committed and the owners lost no time in giving chase. They followed with carriage and team. Arriving at Ashland early this morning they learned that the thieves had passed through that town to Gilberton. The horses of the pursuers were tired out and it was decided to stable them in Ashland. Proceeding by electric car to Gilberton the two men learned that the horses were seen in that place about three hours earlier and it was believed they had been driven to Shenandoah. Benzyl and his companion did not wait for an electric car, or train, but hurried over the hill by way of Turkey Run on foot, with great expectations of overtaking the thieves; but they were doomed to disappointment. A vigorous search was prosecuted in town and Benzyl became convinced that the thieves had not come to town. The next step taken was to send messages to the police of Mahanoy City, Delano, Tamaqua, Pottsville and several other places, after which the two men left town on a Schuylkill Traction car for Ashland, where they again took charge of their team. They were met by a man who had a band of apples in his cap. They went to a late hour this afternoon no report was received as to the result of the visit to the camp.

Benzyl was in a hot frame of mind when he and declared that should he overtake the thieves in attendance, he would inflict satisfaction out of them for the long chase and trouble they put him to. "I'll treat them as horse thieves are treated in the west," said he. "The first man I overtake driving that team I'll shoot. I'll not bother taking him into custody and hauling him back to Danville. I'll treat him like a dog."

DIED OF CONVULSIONS.

A Fall Causes Convulsions and Ultimately Leads to Death.

Michael, the 4-year-old son of John Scanlan, of 411 West Mayberry alley, died at four o'clock yesterday from convulsions. He was seized with them first last Monday evening but recovered. Yesterday afternoon he had a relapse. Dr. D. J. Langton, who was the physician in attendance, says that the death was chiefly due to an injury the boy received last fall, when he fell and received a severe blow on the right temple.

SCHOOL APPROPRIATIONS SAFE.

Pennsylvania's Lower House Will Deny the Proposed $500,000 Cut.

Harrisburg, June 23.—One hundred and thirty-three of the 207 members of the house have signed a paper pledging themselves "to use all honorable means to prevent a reduction in the public school fund." This insures the defeat of the proposed cut of $500,000 a year, as it will require 162 votes to make the change. Every Democratic member has signed. Representatives Young and Smith, of Ploga, who circulated the paper, say the list will be considerably increased. Almost the entire afternoon session of the house yesterday was given up to the consideration of a Senate amendment to the house bill. On motion of North, of McKean, the Pittsburgh "ripper" bill was recommitted to the municipal corporations committee. The house refused to concur in the Senate resolution continuing the committee to investigate the convict labor system in Pennsylvania until the next session of the legislature.

The governor's veto of the bill authorizing the incorporation of pawnbrokers was taken up, and Mr. Conrad, of Philadelphia, appealed to the house to pass it over the executive head. He said the measure was in the interest of charity, and was similar to a law in force in New York city and many foreign cities. Mr. Conrad said the governor's objections were untenable. Mr. Moore, of Philadelphia, also urged the passage of the bill, despite the governor's objections.

Mr. Baldwin, of Delaware, defended the veto. He said the governor was right in refusing to approve such legislation. The veto was sustained by a vote of 40 to 56. The conference report on the Hamilton road bill was called up by Mr. Phillips, of Chester, and adopted by a vote of 123 to 31. The measure now goes to the governor.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Poor Director Dietrich's Trial Opened. The Blythe Township Case.

Judge Gordon yesterday overruled the motion to quash the indictment against Director of the Poor Nori Dietrich and ordered the selection of a jury for a trial. Of 14 jurors drawn the following were selected to sit: Frank Orthner, Levi Rhoad, Daniel Stephens, W. Evans, L. Prasser, Lawrence Haley, Charles H. Seaman, Louis Reed, F. Leidinger, William G. Parker, Patrick Monaghan and George Hunter. After the selections were made an adjournment was ordered until this morning.

The case against Joseph Clemens, Michael J. Conroy, Martin Delaney, Michael Whalen, James Keema and Thomas J. Devlin, members of the Blythe township School Board, is progressing before Judge Bechtel at Pottsville with damaging developments against the accused.

The first witness called was Matthew W. Whalen. He testified that he supplied 12 chairs to the dietrich. He put in a bill for Butler & Co., for $300, the price of the chairs being $30 each. He secured the chairs through John I. Matthias, of Mahanoy City. He paid the latter's clerk for the chairs. He received $100 himself. This was all he got for the chairs. He asked for no explanation from the Board. The latter told him to charge $30 each. He did not know the list price of the chairs, but might it be $20 each. Although he knew this he said the Board directed him to put in a bill for $30 each for them. Mr. Whalen then read from the minutes of the Board of August 17th, 1895, when the minutes showed, was to furnish 60 seats. He did not do so. He did not endorse the order before presenting it to the treasurer of the Board. He said he made the arrangement for charging the district $30 for 80 chairs with members of the Board. Thomas Devlin, he said, objected to the price, claiming it was too high. He sent away the order for seating, but did not know what price. The bill did not come to him.

John I. Matthias, of Mahanoy City, agent for school books, testified that the list price for chairs was $9, with a discount ranging from $9.00 to $6.00 from his clerk, who had been paid by Mr. Whalen. The balance between this sum and $100 went to the local agent. He did not know the chairs were sent in Blythe township at $30 each.

Michael Brennan was next called and testified that he was a member of the School Board in '94 and '95. At that time the Board purchased Excelsior seats for $2.25 each. There was charged against the district at this time, by the Board, $4.50 each for the seats, but in the Board's books the seats for $2.25 each, but drew an order at the rate of $4.50 each.

THE DIAMOND JUBILEE DAY.

Remarkable Outpouring in Honor of England's Queen.

BUT THE PARNELLITES OBJECT!

In Dublin and Other Irish Cities the Opponents of the Government Display Black Flags—Brilliant Decorations at Night.

London, June 23.—The last stroke of 12 had not died away on Monday's midnight air when from some metropolitan beehives a tumultuous peal of bells announced Diamond Jubilee Day. The vast crowd that filled the miles of streets and squares answered with ringing cheers, and here and there the singing of "God Save the Queen."

In many places the crowds were very noisy, blowing horns and cornets, playing mouth organs and concertinas and altogether vociferous. The music halls every popular ditty was greeted with shouts and cheers. Everybody fung about confections; everywhere hawkers vended fruit, and the street stalls where coffee, hot potatoes and waffles were on sale did a roaring trade.

Early in the morning the work of clearing the streets for the great procession was begun, and it was a Herculean task, for the people persisted in crowding into the gayly decorated streets despite the efforts of the police. By the time the procession appeared, however, a semblance of order had been secured.

The route was kept by troops in review order, standards and colors carried, infantry of the line carrying rolled capes, volunteers in addition, haversacks and water bottles. The men took position one foot in front of the curbstone. Turning first to the Senior Service, in addition to the Naval Guard of Honor 300 Bluejackets with 100 men of the Royal Marine Light Infantry lined the route in "straggling squares." Bluejackets and 300 marines were stationed in St. George's circus on the Surrey side. There, with the naval gun detachment, in the procession, and a detachment of the Royal Naval Reserve, composed of the naval demonstration, which, if it seemed to be lost in the magnitude of the part assigned to the Junior Service, was none the less interesting to those in the neighborhood where the navy gave tone to the show.

The army, in the various arms of the service, presented an imposing array of almost 20,000 men, with those in the procession, formed the flower of the British soldiery—infantry, cavalry, artillery, engineers, ordnance men, men of the army service, militia, yeomanry, volunteers, cadets and men of the medical staff. A description of the uniforms would fill a fair-sized book, so varied were they.

The procession was practically in three sections as far as St. Paul's, through the two last en route to the cathedral were consolidated as they moved into Piccadilly. The first to take up the position was the colonial procession, formed on the embarkment, and moved via the Mall, thence past the palace, where her majesty viewed it from a window, over the route to St. Paul's. Then came the troops of the crown colonies and finally the royal procession proper, escorting her majesty. Cheers broke forth that seemed to shake the ground, renewed again and again as her majesty's carriage passed, and everywhere along the route was shown the love of Englishmen for England's queen.

The pageant was dramatic and historic. The head mayor, in his robes of office, meeting the sovereign at the city gates, recalled the early suggestion of liberty, in the privileges of the realm, by free citizen, and the sheriff, in medieval costume, escorting the monarch within his balliwick, gave a glimpse of the origin and recognition of civil rights by the throne. The monarch, escorted by princes and guarded by the military forces of the realm, both regulars and volunteers, national and colonial, evidenced the strength and permanency of the monarchical system with this people.

White, yellow and black soldiers trooped by, each accelerating and increasing the tide waves of enthusiasm and presenting a panorama of power unequalled in history.

The concentrated and irrepressible joy and pride which preceded, accompanied and followed the queen like a fountain of life, surpassed anything ever witnessed before. Though many races and many tongues participated in the dominant, stirring expression was English, and the glory was England's. Peers and commoners, masters and workmen, millionaires and the multitude were welded by a tremendous force. The enthusiasm and shouting were far different from those evoked by the triumphal procession of a Roman conqueror. Men and women eagerly expressed to each other, and emphasized to foreigners as the colonies marched by, that they were not captives chained to the chariot of their conqueror, but "willing subjects, free citizens of the worldwide empire following their sovereign."

The Canadians easily took the lead among the colonies. The fact that the province of Quebec was in rebellion when Victoria came to the throne, and that her premier, now here, is a Frenchman and a Catholic, appealed to English imagination. That the descendant of Montcalm and his countrymen should vie with the children of Wolfe and his soldiers in their loyalty, and that Canada has made a boastful showing by favoring Great Britain as against other nations in her tariff, have touched both the British heart and pocket.

No Redemptorists and only some half dozen Dominicans were to be seen in the official stands at Westminster. Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone passed the day at Hawarden, where Mr. Gladstone delivered a patriotic address in connection with a children's fête.
