A FREAK OF LIGHTNING.

C. W. Dangler's Office Lighted by a Bolt Last Night.

During the storm last night lightning entered the office of C. W. Dangler, on North Main street. It passed down the street along an incandescent electric light wire, following it along the ceiling down the wall near Mr. Dangler's desk. It passed two lightning arresters. There was nothing to show where the bolt made its exit. In its descent the bolt burned and bent a gas pipe. It also burned a picture fastened behind the pipe and a large patch of the wall paper where the picture was fastened was badly scorched. Although the burned picture fell upon papers lying on the desk no fire resulted. The work of the lightning was not discovered until Mr. Dangler entered this morning. People reading on the opposite side of the street say that during the storm they noticed the office brightly illuminated for a second, or two.

THEY WERE SUPERIOR!

Reference to an Anniversary Brings Out Interesting Facts.

TOWNSMEN WHO CARRIED ARMS!

Co. H Was a Crack Branch of the Seventh Regiment, National Guards, and Made an Envious Record For Itself.

On Tuesday last, the HERALD called attention to the fact that the day marked the 21st anniversary of the organization of Co. H, 7th Regiment, N. G., in town. The company was the pride of Shenandoah and the people of the town always refer to it with a feeling of interest and pleasure, hence it is that reference to the anniversary that has led to requests from various sources that a brief history of the organization be given to the public. Through the courtesy of Capt. George W. Johnson, of Lost Creek, the HERALD is enabled to comply with the request and furnish a list of names on one of the inspection rolls as furnished to the state department. The list, as well as the brief history of the company, it will be doubtless read with interest.

Company H was organized in the latter part of 1875, but was not mustered into service until June 22nd, 1876. At that time its enlistment numbered about 60 men. On August 2nd, following, the company attended the Centennial encampment at Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, having in that short space of time fully uniformed and equipped every one of its members, while some companies in the same regiment, although having been in service over a year before, were not yet ready to appear in uniform. The company remained in camp ten days, at the expense of the men, having nothing furnished them by the state except transportation and tents. The company's first arms were the old muzzle-loading rifles, but at the inspection held while in the Centennial camp the company created such a favorable impression that it was at once furnished with the new breech-loading rifles. This was quite an honor to be conferred on the field. On the grand review Co. H was the largest in the parade.

In July, 1877, during the Pittsburg riots, the company was ordered to camp at Harrisburg for duty at the state arsenal at Harrisburg, and from there to Pittsburg, to take the place of the Philadelphia troops, which had been driven away by the mob. They went into camp at Ross station, about three miles east of Pittsburg, and were continuously on guard duty along the Pennsylvania Railroad as far west as Lawrenceville, or the 25th street crossing, where most of the fighting was done. They continued there until August 9th, when their services were no longer required. They were relieved from duty and ordered home.

By reference to the Adjutant General's report for that year, 1877, it is found the following report on Co. H: "Condition, superior. Officers present, 2. Enlisted men, 72. Absent—officers, 1; enlisted men, 8. Aggregate, 73." This, as in 1876, showed a larger number present than any other company in the state.

On the annual inspection held in Pottsville December 31st, 1878, we find the following report: "Present—Officers, 2; enlisted men, 55; total, 57; absent, 10; aggregate, 67." For 1879: "Present—Officers, 3; enlisted men, 62; absent, 4; total, 69; per cent, present, 94." And also the following rating: "General appearance, superior; discipline, superior; condition of arms, superior; books, (how kept) very good; condition of roll, very good; company average, 92.7." And so it found about the same rating for 1880 and 1881.

On December 25, 1880, Benjamin G. Hess and Frank Temple were commissioned 1st and 2nd Lieutenants, respectively, vice Lieutenants James G. Roads and John C. Glover, honorably discharged.

Notwithstanding the excellent record of the 7th Regiment and all the companies connected with it, to the surprise of all concerned, an order was issued from headquarters at Harrisburg under date of July 11th, 1881, disbanding the regiment as an organization and companies H and I as local organizations. Why this was done has never been satisfactorily answered. The other companies of the regiment were divided between the 4th and 8th Regiments. For a long time the promise was held out that Co. H would be attached to another Regiment, but it was never fulfilled. The men tired of waiting and finally disbanded.

And thus ends Shenandoah's first and last military company. It is but just to state here that Co. H never received its fair annual appropriation. Having served five years, it only received allowances for four years, and was thus wronged to the extent of $300. Repeated efforts were made to recover it, but never successfully. The Adjutant General claimed that the company was not entitled to it, and yet Co. A, of the same regiment, was mustered in on June 22nd, 1875, exactly one year previous to the mustering in of Co. H, and received its annual allowance for 1875. Why Co. H should not have received its allowance for 1876 never could be learned, or understood by those interested in it.

The following is the enlistment as shown by the roll of the Shenandoah Rifles, Company H, 7th Regiment, 1st Brigade, 4th Division, National Guards of Pennsylvania, under date of June 22nd, 1876:

Charged With Swindling.

A dispatch from Brooklyn, N. Y., says Charles Schaefer, a young man, who says he hails from Pottsville, Pa., was arrested today on a charge of petty larceny. According to the present story he went to Brooklyn two weeks ago. Being out of work and hungry he went to a grocery store, asked for some article and said that some one of the grocer's customers wanted it. The grocer, as a rule, would give Schaefer what he asked for, charging it to the customer, whose name Schaefer had obtained. Schaefer would then go to the customer's house and tell the servants that the article had been ordered C. O. D. He usually got the money for it.

The grand jury at Pottsville this morning failed to find a true bill against Paul Venalovick, the Polish youth who was charged with attempting a criminal assault upon his six-year-old cousin, Paulonius Venalovick. One of the men who was instrumental in causing the arrest swore that the accused was innocent. The witness also stated that he could not tell why he made the charge. He said he was drunk, and must have been crazy.

REPUBLICAN SENATORS!

Hold Another Caucus to Discuss Tariff Schedules.

FINANCE COMMITTEE SUSTAINED

In Placing a Duty on Hides, Despite Western Senators' Objections—The Committee Also Sustained in the Rate Fixed on Wrapper Tobacco.

Washington, June 25.—The Republican senators decided in caucus last night, by a vote of 22 to 11, to sustain the action of the finance committee in placing a duty upon hides, but did not pass upon the question of the amount of duty to be imposed. The committee was also sustained in the rate fixed upon imported wrapper tobacco. The only other disputed questions considered were watches and watch jewels, and upon these the finance committee was reversed, the house rates being accepted on watches, and watch jewels being made free.

The caucus was held in the marble room of the senate and was well attended. While the discussion was in progress the door was opened and a number of special incidents. The greater part of the time was given to the proposition to fix a duty on hides. Senator Lodge led the contest against the action of the finance committee in taking hides off the free list, and was seconded by Senators Hoar, Platt, Spooner and others, while Senators Nelson, Allison, Warren and Gear spoke for the duty.

Mr. Lodge contended that the duty, if imposed, would not be of any consequence as a revenue item, and that it would do nothing to the farmers' return on his cattle, while it would have the effect of greatly injuring the industry of leather manufacturers, which had grown to immense proportions under the system of free hides. He said that the cost of leather goods amounted to $25,000,000 per annum, and asserted that if a stiff duty should be imposed the industry would be greatly checked.

In reply the western senators claimed a direct benefit to the farmer from the duty. The fixing of the rate, it was understood, should be left to the finance committee, but the expressions were so general in favor of the ad valorem rather than the specific system that the committee probably will feel it self instructed to substitute this system for the 1 1/2 cent a pound rate originally agreed upon. There was also a general expression against any increase upon India tanned goat and sheepskins, which the manufacturers regard as a substantial victory.

The debate on the tobacco schedule was confined to brief speeches by Senators Hawley and Fairbanks. The finance committee had originally fixed the rate on unsteamed wrapper tobacco at $1.00 per pound, in opposition to the lower rate of 25 cents per pound. The representatives of the leaf growers immediately began a contention for the restoration of the house rate, which was resisted by the smaller manufacturers, particularly of the western states. The finance committee yielded at the request of the growers, and the rate was advanced to $1.75. Senator Hawley last night represented the growers in their efforts to secure a 42 rate, and Senator Fairbanks the manufacturers in their attempt to hold the original rate.
