Powerful Armor Plates. Bethlehem, July 17.—Yesterday a most successful test of armor plate was made at the Bethlehem Iron company's proving grounds, at Redding. The plate subjected to test was one representing 60 tons of side armor for the battleship Kentucky, now being built at Newport News. Two shots were fired at the plate. The first was a Carpenter projectile weighing 500 pounds. A charge of 128 pounds of powder was used, and the penetration was between seven and eight inches. No cracks were developed in the plate. The second shot was a Holtzer projectile of the same weight as the first, 500 pounds. A charge of 230 pounds of powder sent it against the plate at a velocity of 1,620 feet per second. The penetration could not be determined because the projectile was wedged in the plate at the point of impact. No cracks were developed.

Of the total number under the present regime, the changes at 66 offices were based on resignations, 156 on expiration of the commissions of incumbents, 128 on removals, 7 by reason of the office being raised to the presidential class and 35 on deaths of the postmasters.

The only issue before the supreme court was an application for permission to argue for a new trial, which permission was granted.

Killed on the Rail. With the head crushed and severed from the trunk, the body cut and mangled beyond recognition, the remains of John Hanlon, a miner, 50 years old, were found in St. Clair tunnel on the P. & E. Railroad at 5 o'clock yesterday morning by E. L. Thomas.

Hanlon was a miner who was passing through his way to work. It is believed that Hanlon was struck by one of the trains leaving Mt. Carbon early in the morning. Hanlon had been out of work for some time and had recently been sustaining himself by picking blackberries, which he sold in Pottsville.

He was here Thursday and it is supposed he was overtaken by a train in the tunnel. He was killed because he was exhausted and fell asleep upon the tracks. The crew of the train passing that way could throw no light upon the mystery. Deputy Coroner Clemens' jury rendered a verdict in accordance with the facts as discovered. The deceased was a son of Patrick Hanlon, and formerly lived in Frackville. He was unmarried, but is survived by a sister, Mrs. James Welsh, of Mahanoy Place.

SICKEN AND DIE.

Hot Weather Weeds Out the Feeble Babies. Cholera Infantum Traced to Improper Feeding.

Nurses Say Only Safety is in Lactated Food.

Puny Babies Grow Big and Strong When Fed on It.

The Best Diet in the World For Growing Children.

It is truly a triumph in infant feeding when babies take a feed with evident relish, even when the weather is the hottest, and when the tone of their little stomachs is so reduced by the heat.

And this is why so many careful mothers who have reared large families successfully, not to mention physicians and trained nurses everywhere, so earnestly urge a diet of lactated food whenever the infant digestion is feeble.

Wherever no special precaution is taken in feeding children hot weather is just as sure to multiply the deaths of infants as the infants are to be born.

Babies and young children feel the disastrous effect of high temperature much more than others.

Half the deaths in July are those of children under five years. Every summer more than a third of all who die are infants.

Babies who have the advantage of their mother's milk stand the hot weather better than others, provided the mother's milk agrees with them and is plentiful and rich in the elements that make it rich and home.

But such perfect breast milk is rarely maintained during the entire nursing period by even the most robust mothers. Where a falling off in the nourishing qualities of baby's earliest food is suspected, lactated food is the most perfect substitute for the pure mother's milk.

Physicians, when called in cases of severe bowel affections, which come on so suddenly, and so commonly prove fatal, put the baby without delay on a diet of this splendid nutrient, lactated food. It fully nourishes the child, yet does not irritate the intestinal tract, but has been distributed by hot weather, for over twenty years.

Weak, pining and fretful babies are quieted by lactated food. They take it eagerly and gain steadily in weight and size, without interruption because of hot weather.

Parents are apt to wait from day to day hoping for improvement in the condition of their child. It is this unwise delay that so often costs the child's life.

At the first indication that baby is not taking sufficient food for rapid growth, or when the child shows signs of weakness, its skin continually wet with perspiration, its lips and cheeks pale, and its eyes heavy, it is imperative that the little one should be better nourished. Lactated food at once improves the appetite and makes sure that the child's digestion is supplying strength and the means for steady growth. Babies grow big and strong on lactated food. Close observation of countless weaning babies and of others not thriving because they cannot be induced to eat, or because their food does not nourish them, led to the preparation of lactated food. With all these hindrances to perfect infant health in mind, lactated food is prepared under the advice of professors in the medical department of the Vermont university. This remarkable infant food is usually agreeable to an infant's stomach. Painsableness was one of the advantages earnestly sought in its preparation. It was seen that with every advantage of purity, richness and nourishing power lactated food must be made palatable to effect any good. Children take lactated food even in the hottest weather, because it agrees with them. And they take it in sufficient quantities and with relish, so that they increase rapidly in weight and size, and begin very soon to hold up their heads, play and become noisy and happy.

Practical physicians prescribe lactated food to be kept always on hand and used at once on the first indication of looseness or loss of strength, or if baby is evidently not thriving on its present diet. Lactated food is the infant food physicians use in their own families.

Voted by the Governor. Governor Hastings has vetoed a number of bills. Among them is the bill to regulate travel upon the highways, streets and roads and is exceedingly difficult to understand. It provides for vehicles to turn to the right hand blocked on when it is dangerous or impossible to turn out to the left, all of which, the governor says, is meaningless, as he applied the tonnage law. The bill amending the act of 1895 reducing the license fee for circus, theatrical performances, etc., from $20 to $30 in boroughs and townships and extending townships of less than 1,200, was also vetoed. Divisions of boroughs and townships are not permitted by the constitution. The law should apply alike to all.
