ENTOMBED IN A MINE.
A Miner's Thrilling Experience in Paeker No. 3 Colliery.
Joseph Karawicz, a Lithuanian residing on West Coal street, was released from a manway at Paeker No. 3 mine this morning after having been entombed for about nineteen hours. The man frequently works many hours over time, and has sometimes worked two and three shifts on a stretch, but on Tuesday he decided to go home to have his meals sent to him. His wife felt no uneasiness about him until this morning. Karawicz's brother went to the mine and reported the miner missing. Patrick Fenton, the mine foreman, James Alexander, fire boss, and Louis Kline and Joseph Katschi went into the mine to make a search. They found the place the missing man worked in choked with coal and assumed what had happened and at once proceeded to locate the missing man. After working about an hour they succeeded in reaching the heading in which Karawicz was entombed and got him out. The man was unharmed and came out in excellent spirits. He lost no time in getting home and, after washing himself and eating a good breakfast, he went to bed and had a good sleep.
Karawicz said to a HERALD reporter to-day that his work was to run a coal car out of a battery in the shaft. At about 11:15 yesterday morning he made a hole and was about to put in the shaft and cup when the coal started. He jumped into a manway, barely escaping a rush that blocked the place at the opening of the manway and entombed him. Karawicz says that he did not become alarmed, as he thought that some one would be in the matter of very short time after he would be reported missing. He had his watch with him and by watching the movements and occasionally listening to the ticking he managed to dispel some of the loneliness attending his situation. He did not suffer from hunger and only slightly from thirst. Karawicz is a man 22 years of age and is married, but has no children. He speaks and understands English well. He spoke of his experience in a very somnolent way.

A Modern Drama.
While General Chanzy was commanding the Army of the Loire, a small company of soldiers got too near a large post of the enemy near the town of Azange and were driven back by a terrific cannon fire. They had left their regimental flag behind them, a thing almost unheard of in that army, and when Captain Henry, who was riding toward them on the field of battle, noticed this loss, he immediately ordered them to follow him into the camp.
One of the worn and excited men laughed at him, and with insults refused to obey the officer. Captain Henry made report of this act of insubordination to General Chanzy that evening, and the strict but just commander ordered the soldier to be brought before a court martial at once. The unfortunate man was condemned to death and suffered the execution of his sentence within a few hours.
Long after this occurrence, when General Chanzy was in Paris, in the seat of a deputy in the national assembly, he was informed by the father of that same man that he was writing in one of the outer halls to see him on very important business.
General Chanzy went out to see what was wanted of him and found an old man, who told a pitiful tale of a son lost in one of the engagements just before the entry into Le Mans. He gave his name—a well known name—and said:
"Can you tell me whether my child was killed, or whether he was taken prisoner?"
General Chanzy's kind heart almost stopped within him. This was the father of the unfortunate young soldier who had been shot for insubordination on the field of battle!
"What could he say to him? What was there to say?"
Finally, with emotion, the old general told the wretched father just what had happened and how. "It was necessary," he concluded. "You will understand me better than any one, judge, you who have so often debated and entered the law!"
"General," replied his father, "since my son had taken his first step away from the enemy, it was better that he should never take a second. You acted well. A mother may weep for his child, but the Frenchman thanks you from the bottom of his heart!"—Youth's Companion.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETS.

Short of Funds and Bills Paid Over Pending Receipts.
A regular meeting of the School Board was held last evening with the following Directors in attendance: Messrs. Devitt, Hanna, Sullivan, Conners, Britt, Kelpner, Haugh, Frelce, Edwards, Dove, Coughlin, and Price. The meeting was held in the reading room of the Board building. The minutes of the last preceding meeting were read and approved.
The committee on building and repairs submitted a report on bids received for work to be done in and about some of the school houses and also reported the following assignments of janitresses: Mrs. Kinney, West street building; Mrs. Kitchin, Centre and West street; Mrs. McCormick, Centre street; Mrs. Marx, Lloyd street; Mrs. McKoon, Lloyd street; Mrs. Dowling, new White street building; Mrs. Lechleitner, Coal street; Mrs. Flynn, Turkey Run.
The committee's report embraced a recommendation that the grounds of the new White street school building be graded and otherwise improved and on the bids submitted the Board awarded the contract for the iron railing to A. L. Graf and Michael Heffron received the contract for the stone coping and steps. The contract for blackboards was awarded to M. H. Master.
On motion of Mr. Trester it was decided to advertise for a firm to furnish coal for the schools during the ensuing term.
Mr. Coughlin, of the finance committee, reported that there was little hope of immediate receipts of money and Secretary Hanna said there were $1,200 worth of bills on the table with no funds to meet them. All bills, except those for salaries and labor, will be laid over and the secretary was instructed to withhold all orders until the finance committee is enabled to secure funds to pay them.

Be Careful! Be Careful!
In the use of Brandy during season of bowel complaint. Nothing is so useful to assist in clearing the system as Speer's Brandy when ordered by your physician as Pure Brandy made only from Grapes. But how and where to get pure is the question. If it is not pure from grapes it will do you no good. Kill the patient. The Old Climax Brandy distilled from Grapes by Mr. Speer is absolutely pure. Be sure and see that the bottle has the label stamped with Speer, N. J. Wine Co. Get it of your druggist; take 30 cents. Price $1.50 a bottle qt.; $1 pints.

Not an Ajar.
During the terrific thunderstorm last night, one of the conspicuous characters about the Ferguson House, who frequently carries samples for commercial men about town as a side issue, avoided the serpent like flashes of lightning by taking to the cellar in the back of the basement saloon. He substituted a box and a pair of overalls as a head rest to be down and covered himself with an abandoned bath tub until the storm subsided. This was certainly a bright idea. Joe.
