THE Populist Superintendent of Banks, in Kansas, is astonished at the condition of affairs in his state. The surplus cash in the banks is larger than it ever was, while the eash in circulation is undiminished. VACATION is nearly over, and the small boy who has been reveling in the element he is said to be made of, sporting stone bruises and cut fingers and torn breeches, while the school marms have been spending their surplus wealth and airing their millinery at the seashore, will soon be compelled to return to the pursuit of knowledge, which, in these days, has been made so pleasant that it is not such a hardship as it was in days gone

REV. T. DE WITT TALMAGE sagely Tearns to Hire. observes that "a newspaper whose columns overflow with advertise ments of business men has more influence in attracting attention to and building up a city or town than any other agency that can be employed. People go where there is business. Capital and labor will locate where there is an enterprising community. No power on earth is so strong t build up a town as a newspaper well patronized, and its power should be appreciated."

THAT "there are as good fish in the sen as ever were caught" is an ancient maxim of undisputed good repute. It finds verification in many cases. A conspicuous illustration of this is found in the case of Maceo, the first principal and successful leader of the revolution. When he was murdered and died the gravest apprehensions for the future prevailed in regard to the struggle. But apprehensions in that direction were speedily banished. One after another, and in quick succession, successors of ability arose, until to-day the leaders of the revolution are claimed to be not only the equals but the superiors of Maceo, thus demonstrating still further that thus demonstrating still further that no single man is absolutely indispen. There cannot be a single question as to the fact that those who venture into that inhospitable region at this time of year, however well equipped, will have ninety-nine changes out of a hundred against their achieving success, if indeed they are ever per mitted to return. They take their lives in their own hands, and venture not only into a region naturally and fearfully inhospitable in winter, but amongst a class of men whose lawlessness has been time and again demonstrated in the most unquestionable manner. Not to thus caution all intended Kloudike gold hunters would, we feel, be an unpardonable dereliction of journalistic duty.
