It is a recommendation from a dietetic authority that whole wheat grains are an excellent pick me up between meals when the craving for a bit of food is strong. The wheat kernels should be well cooked and are better, according to the dietitian quoted, than the usual cracker taken at such times.—New York Post.

Toward the close of the nursing period, or when nursing is protracted through the entire hot summer, few mothers are able to nurse their growing babies as they ought. It is rare that the breast milk does not show a decided falling off in richness. Infants fed at the breast on such milk, insufficient in quality and amount, soon show the effect in colicky attacks and in diminished growth from week to week. Their drooping heads are continually moist, and a pained, drawn expression—the sign of weakness, often steals over their faces.

No mother can be long in doubt about what to do.

The food must be changed to a rich, safe diet of lactated food. Parents sometimes make the mistake of employing cow's milk without personal knowledge of its fitness for baby's food; trouble ensues in many cases. Diarrhea and cholera infantum result from just such ill-advised substitutes. Fully one-half the infant deaths are caused by improper feeding.

When breast milk is insufficient, or the mother not well, lactated food may be also entirely relied on to take the place of vigorous mother's milk.

It is endorsed by the best physicians, by nurses and by happy, grateful mothers in every town and village in the land.

Science has come to the aid of perplexed parents.

Lactated food is a substitute for healthy mother's milk that meets the hearty approval of physicians, nurses and mothers. No less an authority than Dr. Guesroy, the senior editor of the New York Medical Times, says that he uses lactated food with his children. He says that it is pleasant to the taste and easily digested, and assimilated. The famous Dr. Agnew, as is well known among physicians, was one of the first to publicly recommend the food.

The Wilson Murder Mystery.
Philadelphia, Aug. 28.—The jury in the Wilson murder inquest yesterday afternoon rendered the following verdict: "Death was due to hemorrhage of the chest due to a blow inflicted by persons unknown." The fact was developed that the murdered man was not killed by the blows of the hammer, but that his death was due to internal hemorrhaging. The blows of the hammer were inflicted after death. Stayovernight was held to await the action of the grand jury in that his innocence might be passed upon by the proper tribunal. Mrs. Young, his mistress, was discharged.

Shot by an Intruder.
Ashland, Pa., Aug. 28.—William Lonn, a wealthy farmer of Numedia, near here, was shot Thursday night by a man whom he had detected trying to break into his barn. Lonn was attracted by the screeching of his chickens, and while approaching his barn a man stepped from behind a tree and shot at him, the bullet striking him in the forehead and passing out at the top of his head. The man made his escape. Lonn is seriously ill, but will recover.

Plea for a Soldier.
EDITOR EVENING HERALD: In my travels around town this morning I was struck with surprise by seeing an old and decrepit soldier who was digging a ditch across Main street. It seemed almost impossible for him to do the work and, on entering into conversation with him, he told me he had traveled around for five weeks looking for something to do and could not get it, and was compelled to accept this kind of work. He is a very old soldier ever since the School Board put him out of his position as janitor. It seems there is no sympathy for an old soldier any more. I think any body of men having a spark of patriotism in them ought to look this matter up, and see what can be done for him.

A PARIS CEMETERY.

The Famous Resting Place of the Great Dead of France.

In the center of the most populous and hardest working part of Paris lies Pere Lachaise, the city of the dead. All the fates of the famous best against the will of this silent spot, which has its own fate twice a year. Within less than a century this cemetery has become the abode of at least 800,000 dead. It formerly formed a part of the domain of the bishopric of Paris under the name Champ Leveque. Under Louis XIV it was known as Mont Louis. At last, May 21, 1804, the official opening of the new necropolis took place.

The white monuments among the green trees remind the visitor of an oriental city, but it is estimated that in 90 years there will not be space enough for one lone dead man. A calculation has been made which would point to the fact that the sum of $50,000,000 is represented in these last sleeping places of man. Even though the French may not always be grateful during the life of their illustrious children, there is a mighty attempt after death to prove appreciation. Among the famous men who are today lying calm and beloved in Pere Lachaise are Rosini, Bellini, Chopin, members of the famous Carnot family, Mollere, La Fontaine, Delacroix and Balzac, and the great Rachel sleeps there, and Bernhardt will sleep there too.

Here the tomb of Holbein and Abelard is visited continually by large numbers of pilgrims, and there is never an end to the sentiment around the Gothic monument rising from the bright hood geraniums and roses. Notwithstanding the iron railing, many a lover carries from the hallowed spot a pot of lawn across by the obliging trustee. Except for one section, where a considerable number of artists and authors, brothers in beauty and inspiration, are grouped, the tombs succeed each other without much order. There is a single monument erected by the state to the soldiers killed in the siege of Paris, and this pyramid is the Mecca of a countless number of black clad women, who slip close to its base, as if trying to get nearer to the husband, sons and lovers perished so long ago.—Exchange.

WOMEN WITH LITTLE FEET

Can have the double satisfaction of putting them into some of the prettiest Oxford Ties we have in the store, and putting money into their pocketbooks at the same time.

A number of Black Oxfords that sold for $1.25 and $1.50, sizes 2 to 4, we've cut to 75c a pair to close them out. All widths; medium toes; perfect foot gear. Fine enough for street wear; exceptionally good for house wear.

We've Just a Few Pairs

Of Russet leathers, too, that sold for $2.00 and $2.50; any pair you can have now for $1.39. Some are the new toes; all are good toes, and very becoming.

Men who still like to wear narrow-toed shoes have a veritable harvest in some russets and blacks that we got $2.25 a pair for. Any pair now for $1.59. Finest shoes we ever had in the store.

Checks for amount of purchases made, are given every customer. $25.00 worth entitles you to a

The Faust Wheel Made to Fit.

A bicycle, in many respects, is like a suit of clothes. If you do not appear with ease and grace upon your cycle, it is because it don't fit you. With ease and grace also comes power. Secure them all by ordering a special wheel, measured to fit by the home manufacturer. A guarantee goes with every wheel. Patronize home industry and secure a reliable wheel.
