No treaty of peace between Bolivia and Chile was made until 1895. A truce was arranged in 1893 which left Peru in possession of Bolivia's stretch of near coast and two ports. Bolivia's great object was to secure again an outlet to the sea, and by the treaty of 1895 Chile agreed to give Bolivia a scaport. If the siretch of territory taken from Belivia, however, the coast between the provinces of Tacna and Arica were again taken from Peru, it was muni-festly impussible for Chile to surrender an outlet through the old territory of Bollym without completely segregating and disconnection but the and dismembering her own territory. It is this problem which has delayed the settlement of the whole question

The situation was further complicated by the contention of Bolivia that the revolutionists in Chile, at the time of the overthrow of Balmaceda, promised to cede the fermer Peruvian provinces of Arica and Tacna in return for the recognition of the beligserents by the Bolivian government. Any individual pledges which may have been made to this effect. pledges which may have been made to this effect, it is stated, have been practically repediated by the Chillean government. But it seems probable that the final outcome will be the censation to Bolivia of one of the ports at the northern extremity of the territory taken from Peru, in order that Chile may preserve the integrity of her territory to the south. At the Chilean legation a peaceful solution of the whole difficulty is anticipated.
