They think that Mr. McKinley wants to throw the responsibility on Congress of either repealing the law altog ther os mineuding it. This is probably flerce a civil service advocate as his actions would indicate.

Gary For Postal Savings,

Postmaster General Gary devotes the greater portion of his first annual report, which was made public yesterday, to the advocacy of postal savings banks. Many millions of dollars, he insists, is undoubtedly secreted by people who have little or no confidence in ordinary securities and man John M. Langston, of Virginia, monetary institutions organized by one of the prominent colored men of private citizens.

It is dead espital, Mr. Gary con-It is dead capital, Mr. Gary con-tinnes, but if its owners could be in-pated at the age of 6 and was squeated spired with absolute confidence in at Oberlin, where he graduated from the security of an investment, it is the theological department in 1854. More than a third of the postal savings accounts in European offices are held by minors and over two-thirds by the most humble callings. Postal savings would not conflict with the savings banks, but would encourage savings rather than accumulations.

Associations of the larger cities the financial currents of the country, says Mr. Gary. Security and not the rate of interest is the primary and ex-convict was mistaken. essential condition of such a system; and bonds of states, counties and municipalities and real estate furnish an illimitable field.

The people demand that Congress at its next session shall provide for the establishment of postal savings banks under the control of the post office department, and a measure looking to this end would have hearty support. Postal savings banks have given satisfaction to the people wherever they have been tried. Their existence in all parts of the country is a constant invitation to thrift and economy, and wherever thrift and economy prevail poverty, ignorance and crime disappear. The establishment of such a system of agencies for the reception of the smallest deposits would be in exact accordance with the principle which should characterize all our legislation -namely, the protection of the weakest. If we protect the weakest, we protect all.
