Justice Toomey's Office the Scene of an Exciting Incident.

Andrew Drogulis and Thomas Kreschalis became involved in a quarrel in a South Main street saloon last night and Kreschalis was badly beaten. He went to Justice Toomey's office and swore out a warrant for his assailant's arrest. Drogulis was in a very excitable mood when before the Justice and made several ineffectual attempts to get at the complainant. The Justice warned him that to commit an assault during the hearing would constitute an offense of a much more serious character than an assault elsewhere. This appeared to have an effect upon the defendant and he remained quiet. The case was then proceeded with. The complainant stood in front of the desk and the defendant a few feet from him. As Kreschalis was telling his story the prisoner suddenly swung his arm around and gave the witness a back-hand blow in the face that sent him flying against the wall about eight feet distant. The assailant was about to follow up the attack when Justice Toomey and Constable Gibson sprang upon him. The hearing was dispensed with and the prisoner was committed in default of $500 bail. The floor of the Justice's office was bespattered with blood when Drogulis' blow caused to flow from Kreschalis' face.

An Excellent Production.

The Payton Comedy Company, opened a week's engagement at Kaler's opera house, Mahanoy City, last evening to a crowded house. This company has the strongest repertoire of comedies and dramas ever presented in this region at popular prices, and carries a sixty-foot car of special scenery for the artistic mounting of its plays. The production of last night was "Woman Against Woman." It was presented in a manner to equal the productions of the high priced companies. The large audience was delighted, and the many from this town who witnessed the play are enthusiastic in their liberal praise of the cast and the special scenic effects. The production will be repeated during the week. Manager Quick is to be commended for securing such a strong combination at popular prices for the amusement of the patrons of his pretty play house. This evening they will produce "Alone in London," and at the matinee to-morrow they give the most sensational of "The Lyons" ever given in this region. For other dates see the opera house advertisement in another column. Between each act specialties are introduced, including popular illustrated songs.

Charged Her Mother.

Miss Lizzie Schmidt, of Pottsville, swore out a warrant before Justice Toomey yesterday, charging her mother, Mrs. Philip Schmidt, of Mahanoy City, with the larceny of a gold watch. The story told by the prosecutrix was that she visited Mahanoy City on Sunday to attend a funeral and gave the watch to her brother, that the mother took the watch from the brother's pocket and refused to surrender it. The story of the defendant is that she gave the watch to her daughter and concluded to take it back. Mrs. Schmidt furnished $300 bail before Justice May at Mahanoy City.

THE FIGHT AGAINST MARTIN

It is Attracting Attention Throughout the State.

MUGWUMPS ARE ALL AT SEA!

Swallow Wants to Run, But Wharton Barker and Wayne MacVeagh Are His Only Sponsors—One is a Free Silver Man and the Other a Free Trader.

Special HERALD correspondence.

Philadelphia, Dec. 7.—The local political situation in Philadelphia is growing in intensity and interest. The fight is nominally upon the question of who shall be the next receiver of taxes, but the result will mean more than this, because it will determine which element of the party is to name the next mayor of the municipality, and the termination of the contest will also make it clear who will control the Philadelphia delegates to the next gubernatorial convention and also the members of the legislature from the Quaker City. The fight is a battle against the power of David Martin in city politics, and those who are in it propose to continue their efforts until they have succeeded in overthrowing the odious machine that Martin has commanded for the last eight years. The particular object at present in time is to elect William J. Roney for the nomination for receiver of taxes, but the contest has in it nothing personal against Mr. Roney, who unfortunately happens to be a brother-in-law of Mr. Martin, and who is regarded in a special manner as being the personal choice of the combine boss. The fight is against Martinism in all its phases, and Mr. Roney is a mere incident in the contest.

Those who imagined that the meeting between Senator Quay and Mr. Martin would deter Quay's former friends from conducting the fight against Martin now find that they were sadly mistaken. The anti-Combine element in Philadelphia believe in Quay, consider him a sagacious national leader, and consider that he has made a valuable United States senator, but they do not regard his judgment as infallible when he condenses to dip into division, ward and city politics. Hence, they propose to go ahead on their own lines without consulting any person or persons outside of the city limits. United States Senator Boies Penrose, who has won all of his political laurels by reason of the fact that he has kept in touch with the plain people, has not belied his record in this instance. As soon as he became known that there was to be a serious fight between the Martin and anti-Martin elements in Philadelphia he promptly and courageously allied himself with the anti-Martin party. He has endorsed the candidacy of Harvey K. Newitt, the anti-Martin candidate for receiver of taxes, and has signified his willingness to take the stump in Mr. Newitt's behalf.

The people of Philadelphia are thoroughly aroused upon this issue, and if the $200 municipal employees, including the police and firemen, are compelled to keep their hands off there cannot be a shadow of a doubt concerning the result. Mr. Martin will simply be swept out of political existence. He obtained his hold in local affairs through the assistance of the officeholders, and he has continued his grip upon the party machine solely because of the immense patronage that has been placed at his disposal by a subservient mayor and by weak and vacillating heads of city departments. Penrose, who always has been strong in the city of his birth, has strengthened himself immeasurably by his decisive stand in this controversy.

The mugwump element and the constitutional kickers in the Republican party seem to be all at sea concerning their intentions for the coming gubernatorial contest. There has been much backing and filling during the last three or four weeks, and no one can tell just what they propose to do in the matter. The friends of Dr. Swallow are anxious to have him nominated as the candidate for governor, but the most sanguine of them admit that as a purely Prohibition candidate he could not hope to poll more than half the number of votes next year for governor that he polled this year. The friends of the Democratic party, who are expected to give comfort to an independent movement, has come out in a public interview in which he dashes the hopes of the mugwumps to the ground. He says that he is against a coalition in any shape or form, and that no one but a straight simon pure Democratic candidate can expect the support of his organization next year.

In addition to this there is a division in the Democratic party. The party represented by Mr. Garman and his free silver friends are in favor of the nomination of some candidate like ex-Congressman Joe Sibby or James M. Guffey, the millionaire Pittsburgh oil operator. On the other hand, the gold standarders, like ex-National Chairman Harry and ex-State Chairman Wright, favor the selection of some man in the class of Robert E. Pattison or ex-Attorney General William U. Hensel. The party seems to be all at sea concerning the coalition idea are Wharton Barker and Wayne MacVeagh, the one a free silver man and the other an avowed free trader. Here we have confusion worse confounded.

The distinction between anti-Quay Republicans and those who are in favor of the successful endeavor to rally around Attorney General McCormick, McCormick wants to run, but he has not the courage to come out and boldly declare himself a candidate. He is living in the vain hope that some deal may be made by which he can obtain the support of Senator Quay. Without that his case seems hopeless. He is not personally popular in the state, and outside of his own county and in a few anti-Quay spots in the state he has no political strength worth talking about. Moreover, it is out of the question for him to go into the field as a reform candidate, because he is mainly held responsible for the Hastings regime, which has been anything but a reform administration, and which has in addition to answer for the political sin of appointing David Martin as secretary of the commonwealth.

Congressman William A. Stone, of Allegheny, stopped in Philadelphia a few days ago on his way to Washington to attend the session of congress which begins today. Colonel Stone has nothing to say concerning his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor except that reports from his friends throughout the state who are working for his success are very favorable.

"My whole attention just now," he said, "is devoted to advancing the bill I introduced in the extra session, and which is in committee, to restrict immigration. I have every reason to believe that it will be favorably reported on an early date, and will pass the house before the summer recess. The Pennsylvania members should support this bill as a writ, as this state suffers more through excessive immigration than any other state in the Union. The bill would restrict immigration to the cities, but in Pennsylvania they are not only located in the large centers of population, but also in the country districts.

"This is because of the diversified industries spread over this state. We have anthracite and bituminous coal mining, coke, oil, iron and natural gas, and the operation of these varied interests attracts the immigrants in such numbers that competition with American workmen reduces wages and results in our citizens walking the streets because they cannot support their families upon the compensation that foreign rivals are willing to labor for.

"Over 70,000 immigrants were dumped into Pennsylvania last year. Our mills and workshops are running on full time, yet we have thousands of unemployed citizens seeking work. That is not prosperity. We should seek to take care of our own first, and the proper way to do it is to place some restrictions upon immigration. It is said by the opponents of my bill that Americans will not dig ditches. The answer to that is they will dig ditches if they are paid fair wages. The digging of ditches and dirt do not degrade labor; it is the wages that degrades it. Pay a man wages enough to enable him to keep his family and educate his children, and no matter what his work is, if it is honest, he and those dear to him are contented and happy.

Colonel Stone was asked if he thought congressmen from other states would support a bill that would benefit Pennsylvania to a greater extent than the other commonwealths.

"I think so," he replied. "We passed the Chinese exclusion act in the interest of California, yet it has been of benefit to almost every other state in the Union. If they do not support a bill to restrict immigration in time their own states will feel the effect by the overflow from Pennsylvania seeking employment in their localities."

Sour kraut, free, to-night. Something special to-morrow morning.

The Coal Trade.

The anthracite coal trade season of 1897 has practically closed, and from now until the end of the year the demand for coal will be regulated by the thermometer. Whatever new business is done will be only from hand to mouth. The scarcity of small tonnage vessels, owing to so many wrecks and abandonment of the large business which has made the building of new coastwise coal carrying schooners unprofitable, is now telling. In the month of November the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad is reported to have overbooked its coal tonnage, but the company was anxious to hurry forward to Buffalo all the coal possible for shipment to Western Lake ports before the close of navigation. The Lackawanna company is now reported to be curtailing its output, and will, it is said, hold down its tonnage of newly-mined coal as closely as possible to the actual requirements of its trade. The Lehigh Valley Coal Company is believed to have recovered in November a part of the tonnage it lost by the strike in the Hazleton region in October. The Reading Coal and Iron Company, which closed its collieries about two-thirds time last week, but that company was benefited in October by the Lehigh strike, so that it can afford to go more slowly now.

M'KINLEY'S MESSAGE!

Urges Action to Prevent Repeated Bond Issues.

SHOULD NOT RECOGNIZE CUBA!

Spain Should be Given Time to Perfect the Proposed Autonomy Plan Promised by Sagasta's Cabinet—Favors Hawaiian Annexation.

Washington, Dec. 7.—The attendance in both houses of congress yesterday was notably large, despite the known fact that no business would be transacted. The event of the day was, of course, the reading of the president's message, a voluminous document of 14,000 words, and at the conclusion of the reading both houses adjourned until today.

The message congratulates congress upon assembling under felicitous conditions. Peace and good will with all the nations of the earth remain unbroken, he says, and we should feel positive satisfaction at the growing spirit of fraternal regard and amity in all sections of our country and the lifting of great public sense above party prejudice.

Beginning with the subject of the finances the president says that, while the full effect of the legislation of the extra session has not yet been realized, what it has already accomplished assures us of its timeliness and wisdom. To test its permanent value further time will be required, and the people, satisfied with its operation and results thus far, are in no mind to withhold from it a fair trial.

The next question pressing for consideration is that of the currency. With the great resources of the government and with the honorable record of the past before us, we ought not to hesitate to enter upon a currency revision which will make our demand obligations less onerous to the government and relieve our financial laws from ambiguity and doubt. The chief of the present system is found in the great debt to the government of maintaining at parity with gold our different forms of money, and the experience of the past four years have demonstrated that this is not only an expensive charge upon the government, but a dangerous menace to our national credit.

Protection Against Bond Issues.

It is manifest that we must devise some plan to protect the government against bond issues for repeated redemptions. We have $600,000,000 of currency which the government by some enactment has undertaken to keep at par, and nobody is obliged to redeem in gold but the government, which must redeem in gold. The law which requires the payment out of the treasury of redeemed United States notes demands a constant replenishment of the gold reserve, especially in times of panic and insufficient revenue, and during the preceding administration $25,000,000 4 1/2 per cent bonds were issued and sold to sustain the gold reserve and the expenses of the government in excess of the revenue. It is true that a greater part of this is used to supply deficient revenues, a considerable portion was required to maintain the gold reserve. If no further legislation is to be had to correct this and the policy of selling bonds is to be continued, then congress should give the secretary of the treasury authority to sell bonds at long or short periods, bearing a less rate of interest than is now authorized by law. The president says:

"I earnestly recommend, as soon as the receipts of the government are quite sufficient to pay as the expenses of the government, that when any United States notes are presented for redemption in gold and are redeemed in such notes shall be kept and set apart and only paid out in exchange for gold. This is an obvious duty. If the holder of the United States note prefers the gold and gets it from the government he should not receive back from the government a United States note without paying gold in exchange for it." That amounts, to the president's mind, to giving an interest-bearing debt, a government bond, for a non-interest-bearing debt, a United States note.

The president invites careful consideration for the detail plan of the secretary of the treasury to protect the gold reserve. He concurs with him in the recommendation that national banks be allowed to issue notes to the face value of their bonds deposited; that the circulating tax be reduced to one-half of 1 per cent, and that national banks may be established with a capital of $25,000. He also recommends that the issue of national bank notes be restricted to the denomination of $10 and upward, and that they be required to redeem their notes in gold.

The Cuban Question.

The president devotes much space to a consideration of the Cuban question. Summarizing the history of former outbreaks, the president comes down to the present insurrection, speaking of its remarkable increase, its tenacious existence against enormous forces massed by Spain, the widespread destruction of property and the disregard of the civilized code of war on both sides. He says these conditions give rise to gravest apprehensions. There is no desire to profit by Spain's misfortune, and we have only the desire to see the Cubans enjoying that measure of self control which is the inalienable right of all. Of the concentration policy of Weyler he says: "It has utterly failed as a war measure. It is not civilized warfare; it is extermination."

Against this abuse of the rights of war the president says he has felt constrained on repeated occasions to enter the firm and earnest protest of this government. He outlines his instructions to Minister Woodford, which were in substance to impress upon the Spanish government the sincere wish of the United States to lend its aid toward the ending of the war by
