WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 5, 1898

Those interested in the prosecution of Wintersteen, the alleged Bloomsburg dynamiter, say that there has been no agreement as to the settlement of the case and that it has not been dropped. On the contrary, the Datafriends of Levi E. Waller say the gigan trial may be pushed at any time. Notwithstanding this statement, the public believe the contrary.

THERE are very few business men who do not believe in advertising as a powerful business force: Especially if such advertising be conducted by a good reliable newspaper that has a large and continuous circulation. Realizing this to be a fact it is strange and rather unfortunate that the majority of merchants fail to recognize and take advantage of their golden opportunity. Some one has likened them to a man with a toothache. He knows he ought to see a dentist and have the matter attended to at once. He knows also the sooner he goes, the greater his benefit in every way: less cain, better tacth, more money in his purse. Now take the merchant, he realizes that his goods are becoming shop worn, some of them, while others are not yet properly introduced to the public. But times are dull and he can hardly afford to advertise them until business begins to boom. This is a mistake. The early bird catches the worm. Putting off your announcements is poor policy. but promptness will benefit your business in every way. It will save physical depression and blues, your goods will be first rate, not shop worn, and financially you will be many dollars ahead. Publicity is the great essential to business success and the highroad to publicity is advertising.
