Treacherous Match. A blaze that threatened to develop into a serious fire occurred at the residence of Fred. W. Hooks, on West Lloyd street, at about 6:30 o'clock last night. Mrs. Hooks stepped upon a match which had fallen to the parlor or and escaped notice. In an instant the trimmings of a couch were a mass of flames and the fire spread to the hammock. A large crowd soon gathered at the house and members of the Phoenix Fire Company hurried to the scene with their carriage, but no fire alarm was sounded and the other fire commnies were not out.

Mrs. Hooks snatched the burning hammock from its fastenings and threw it into the street and several men hustled the burning bouch out of the house. The removals put an end to danger in the house and a bucket brigade attended to the burning articles that were carried to the street. The damage was about twenty-five dollars.

Kendrick House Free Lunch. Oysters on toast will be served, free, to all patrons to-night.

A young man from Lost Creek became a guest at the Hotel Francy last night and before retiring to his room was considerably the worst from wear and tear. When a porter attempted to arouse him this morning he was unable to do so. At the same time the porter detected an odor of gas in the room. He reported to the hotel office. A rumor got affoat that the guest had blown out the gas in his room upon retiring and asphyxiation followed. This was not so, how-ever. The fact was that the young man was a sound sleeper. Upon retiring he did not shut off the gas entirely, but the escape was so slight that it had no effect upon him
