PICQUART HIS BEST WITNESS.

But Even the Colonel Who Was Punished For His Beilefin Dreyfus' Innocence Withholds Full Particulars on Account of "Professional Secrecy."

Paris, Feb. 12.-There were the usual crowds about the assises court of the Seine yesterday when the fifth day of the trial of MM. Zola and Perreux commenced. M. Zola and Colonel Piced. There are still 60 witnesses to be examined, and therefore the case will continue most of next week,

The first witness was General Pellieux. The general testified that General Saussier, the former military governor of Paris, desired a public trial for Major Esterhazy, but General Billot, the minister for war, ordered that the trial be in secret. Nevertheless, the witness added, the court martial refused to keep the entire proceedings secret, therefore it was impossible to contend that Major Esterhazy was ac-The Dreyfus papers, added Colonel Pellieux, were sealed after the conviction of Captain Dreyfus in 1894, and were not opened until quite recently. when the witness opened them in order to re-examine the writing of the bor-dereau. The papers had since been sealed up, and had not been reopened. Colonel Pellieux also said he desired to emphatically deny the statement of M. Le Blois that MM. Le Blois and Henry held a two hours' conference with him

General Pellicaux also said: "If the members of the court martial who been heard here, they would have in-dignantly repudiated the accusations against hem. I, their chief, will be court martial was regular."

On General Pellieux leaving the stand M. Zola rose and exclaimed: "There are several ways of serving France, You, general, made your campaigns, but I will bequeath to posterity the name of Emile Zola, and posterity will be my judge."

Colonel Picquart was then called and narrated how he had acquired frag-ments of a telegraphic card in 1896, and concluded therefrom that Major Esterhazy was corresponding with suspicious characters. His chiefs ordered him to continue his investigations, and he pro-cured some of Major Esterhazy's handwriting, which, compared with certain documents, led to the conclusion that Major Esterhazy was improperly using official papers.

Colonel Picquart was the best witness for M. Zola thus far heard. He made an excellent impression upon all present in court. His evidence was very damaging to his superior officers and favorable to Dreyfus, and it also showed him to have been the victing of persecution since he began his endeavor to probe the truth. At the con-clusion of his evidence Colonel Picquart met with an enthusiastic reception from the public.

Colonel Picquart emphatically denied General Pellieux's statement that he had divulged an espionage affair to outsiders. He candidly admitted send-ing an agent to Major Estorhazy's apartments, but he pointed out that at the time Major Esterhazy's flat was advertised to let, and his agent only brought him an unimportant letter, which, however, served for a com-parison of handwriting. The agent, however, reported that a number of letters had been burned in a fireplace. Colonel Picquart added that he communicated his suspicions of the guilt of Major Esterhazy to his chiefs, who never said they had additional evi-dence of the guilt of Dreyfus beyond what he himself knew. Colonel Picquart said he knew a superior officer whose name was mighty, mentioned furnishing documents to a foreign power, adding that he did not wish to further disclose secrets while he (the colonel) was still investigating. He continued: "The newspapers began an agitation, and interpellations coman agration, and interpenations com-menced in the chamber, adding to my difficulties. Then I was sent to Tunis, where all letters reached me opened. When I was summoned back to Tunis, to attend the Esterhazy inquiry, Gen-eral Pellieux treated me as the real defendant, refusing to listen to my charges against Major Esterhazy."

Colonel Picquart pointed out that while the anti-Dreyfus papers publishof the bordereau they
