The witness then described the meeting of the sheriff and the strikers, the latter advancing with a paper in his hand. The sheriff was crowded into the gutter, and then some one gave an order to fire.

William J. Evans, a reporter of the William J. Evans, a reporter of the Hazieton Sentinel, corroborated the above testimony. He continued: "Af-ter the shooting I saw three men lying dead together, and close up to the hand of one of them was a revolver. I picked it up, stuck it in my pocket and shorter I to the shorter I beck and reported it to the sheriff. I kept it until the inquest, when I gave it to Coroner McKee." The prosecution fail-ed to prove that the pistol picked up by Evans was his property. Benjamin Norris, a motorman on the trolley line, testified to bringing the dead and wounded to Hazleton, and as to the finding of an empty pistol in the coat of one of the dead men.

Dr. John Koons, a practicing physi-cian of Hazleton, testified to being called by the chief of police to treat two wounded men in jail. One of the men declined to be examined, although he claimed he had a broken arm, and the examination had to be made by force. There was no fracture of the arm. The other man had two slight scalp wounds. John Landmesser, an old resident of West Hazieton, advised the strikers to disperse and go home. They re-plied, "The sheriff no good."

Rat-cliffe, the English wife. Reporters were excluded, but at the close of the hear-ing one of the attorneys said that Ratcliffe admitted that the woman had been legally married to him. Immediately after the hearing before Refree Paul there was a similar one before Thomas C. Kinney, referee in Alice DeLacey's suit for annulment of marriage. Ratcliffe was called and asked if he admitted the two marriages. He refused to answer, on the ground that by so doing he might in-criminate himself. He also refused to answer several other questions. The hearing then came to a close and Rat-cliffe was taken back to the Tombs.
