A Real Blood Remedy.

Tracheotomy was performed, and artificial breathing attempted, but all efficial breathing attempted, but all efdoctors and his seconds carried him to Zellino and laid him on a bed in the

Though political opponents, Signor Vavaliotti and Signor Macola were per-sonal friends. For this reason their seconds tried to avoid the duel, but the matter becoming ridiculous in the pub-ilc eyes, the principals decided that they must fight. The death of Caval-lotti is a great loss to the Radical party. Italian laws regards killing in a duel as "qualified murder," but Signor Ma-cola has gone to Venice, unmolested, under the protection of his parliamentary prerogative.

The news on reaching this city caused a great sensation. Numerous deputies and friends burried to the spot, and there is universal regret over the tragic end of Cavallotti.

The late Signor Felice Carlo Eman-uele Cavallotti, who was a member of the town auditors.

The late Signor Felice Carlo Emanuele Cavallotti, who was a member of a family originally Venetian, was born at Milan on Nov. 6, 1842. At the age of 18, having become already noted for his poetry breathing hatred for Austria, he threw himself with ardor as a writer and a solider into the struggle for Italian independence, taking part in various expeditions and publishing in the newspapers of the day articles and verses whose revolutionary audicity attracted wide attention. Since that day he has been a most prolific writer, and his dramas have always attracted wide attention.

Often elected to the Italian parliament, his career in the chamber from time to time was signalized by no less agitation than the publication of his poetic efforts. More than once his interpellations and his speeches invoked the parliamentary tempests. He was a liftelong opponent of Signor Crispi, the parliamentary tempests. He was a lifelong opponent of Signor Crispi, and was glad to be known as one of the Italian politicians who resisted with all their energies the tide which,

under the auspices of Crispi, carried Italy toward Germany.

In 1895, when the Banca Romana scandal was the sensation of Europe. Signor Cavallotti, then leader of the opposition in the Italian chambers, discovered what he called a new and most promising lode. Going through the list of great and little men entitled to wear the Grand Cross of the Order of St. Maurice and Lazare, he came upon the name of Dr. Cornelius Herz. Rightly conjecturing that it would not be there except for a cash consideration, he warranted in making the public declaration that Signor Crispi, the pre-mier of that day, was guilty of an illicit trafficking in decorations. Not long after he published a pamphlet against Crispi repeating this charge, and adding the charge of bribery in the fifth district of Rome, where the pre-mier had defeated the Sicilian Socialist, Guiseppe de Felice Giuffrida. He even gave notice in the chamber of a motion to annul the election. When the matter came up Crispi flatly declined to make any statement as to the quarrel, and the chamber sustained his ac-

Signor Cavallotti then renewed the attack in his paper, The Secolo, of Milan, and announced that he would prefer charges in the courts. This threat he carried out, and in his denunciation of Crispi to the criminal authorities he asked for the examination of the Marouts di Rudini and Signor Berti, secretary of the department of decorations, as witnesses in support of his charges, as touching Cornelius Herz, a Panama canal lobbyist. These proceedings, with various modifications, were continued until the court of cassation recently transferred the whole matter to parliament. Pending this decision how ever, Signor Cavallotti proposed impeachment of Signor Crispi, then fallen from power, for the disasters in the Abyssinian campaign. To the last he relentlessly pursued Crispi, and the latter, in the death of his brilliant and fearless adversary, will probably see the end of the long campaign against
